TICKET COST $357,000, SENATORS TOLD

Bankers' Gifts to Brown Turned Over to General Fund for Both Candidates

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP.)—Expenditure of $357,000 for the Davis-Brown ticket in the recent Pennsylvania primary, including $15,000 contributed by the Mellon family, was recorded today before the Senate Campaign Funds Committee.

As reported by Samuel Vauclain, the state organization spent $129,000.

For the Philadelphia citizens' advisory committee, Robert Quigley accounted for the output of $62,000.

Harry O. Perry said Pittsburgh activities cost $88,000 and Wayne Blakely, treasurer of the Western Pennsylvania organization, testified $77,000 was used in the 17 counties embraced.

MELLONS GIVE $15,000

The Mellon contributions were made in $5,000 lots by the Treasury secretary and his brother and nephew, R. B. and W. L. Mellon.

Secretary Davis, who won the senatorial nomination, denied these had been given in his behalf. He was supported by Vauclain, who said the checks had been given to Francis Shunk Brown personally.

Brown, who was defeated for the gubernatorial nomination by Gifford Pinchot, turned the Mellon checks over to the state fund.

The $357,000 Davis-Brown expenses exceeded those previously reported by Senator Grundy in his unsuccessful contest against Davis for the senatorial nomination by almost $20,000. Grundy

Girl Flier Claims Altitude Record

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—(AP.)—Bobby Trout, girl aviator, today believed she had bettered the women's altitude record for cabin monoplanes.

On landing after a two-hour flight, she said her altimeter registered 15,200 feet, which would be about 2,000 feet above the cabin monoplane record for women, although 4,000 feet under the men's record.

A sealed barograph was carried so its calibration is awaited.

DIRIGIBLE'S FIRST STOP IN SPAIN

22 Passengers Booked for Last Leg of Tri-Continent Tour; Leave at 10 O'Clock

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN, International News Service.

LAKEHURST, N. J., June 2.—Twenty-two passengers will be carried by the Graf Zeppelin, which is scheduled to leave at 10 o'clock tonight for her home port of Friedrichshafen, Germany, via Seville, Spain, on the final stretch of her tricontinental journey over the Atlantic Ocean.

This announcement was made at noon today at the Hamburg-American line offices at the hangar. The names of the passengers were to be given out later. There was possibility of some cancellations.

LESS FREIGHT

Loading of the freight which the Graf will carry back to Germany has been started. The amount of freight was considerably less than was taken on the last trip across the Atlantic. About 750 pounds had been put aboard by noon, including five automobile tires consigned to the King of Spain.

All forenoon visitors came to the hangar and peered at the huge German dirigible which was berthed beside the U. S. dirigible Los Angeles. About 1,500 automobiles were parked in the landing field adjacent to the hangar.

FAIR WEATHER

It was announced that one of the passengers on the Graf tonight will be Fred M. Harpham, vice-president of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation, who will be

BLUE LAW POLL IN M'KEESPORT

The third-class cities in Allegheny County are reached in the Blue Law poll of the county by the Sun-Telegraph with the first distribution of ballots to McKeesport today.

Additional consignments of ballots are forwarded also to boroughs and townships.

Additional returns from registered voters of the 32 wards of Pittsburgh have increased the total vote to 32,737, divided as follows:

For the Blue Laws...	4,680
For modification	2,400
For repeal	25,677

These figures give a ratio of 5.5 votes for repeal for every vote in favor of the Blue Laws. They represent 79 per cent of the total vote for repeal, 14 per cent for the Blue Laws and 7 per cent for modification.

The division between men and women is as follows: For the Blue Laws, 2,462 men and 2,218 women; for modification 1,426 men and 974 women; for repeal, 17,047 men and 8,630 women.

The returns for the day total 1,239, divided as follows: For the Blue Laws 247, for modification 92, for repeal 899.

Ballots from sections outside the city are increasing in number, showing the interest in the poll among eligible voters of the county, and will be tabulated by cities, boroughs and townships. Results will be announced as soon as a substantial vote is registered from each subdivision.

POSTAL PLAN CHANGES VETOED

Conference Held Here Ends With Proposals Rejected; Speedy Progress Forecast

Pittsburgh has lost its fight for conveniences in postal facilities and modern traffic arrangements in the proposed new federal building at Seventh avenue and Grant street.

This fact became known today following a conference between government officials from Washington and members of local civic committees in the Chamber of Commerce.

CONFERENCE HELD

Eugene W. Satterwhite, assistant general superintendent of the railway mail service; E. R. Witman, of the Treasury Department, and Lawrence Konvalinka, of Trowbridge & Livingston, New York, architects for the building, arrived here and, after a brief survey of the site, met the committee of Pittsburgh citizens, headed by Arthur E. Braun, Frank L. Duggan, E. B. Lee, James Francis Burke and Postmaster George W. Gosser and representatives of the city and county.

By including the headquarters of the railway mail service in the building the Washington representatives declared that it would be impossible to make changes in the plans to conform with suggestions made by Pittsburgh business men.

The first floor of the structure will be given over largely to railroad sidings. The handling of trucks carrying bulk mail to and from the building must be worked out by the construction of a ramp if left turns are to be avoided in Grant street and the public must climb to the second floor to carry on its business of buying stamps, posting letters and packages and in patronizing the registry and money-order divisions.

MUST CLIMB STEPS

Patrons of the postoffice using the Seventh avenue entrance of the building will have 12 steps to climb, while those who enter from Grant street or the Pennsylvania Station sides will be obliged to

COUNTY DETECTIVES ARMED WITH RIOT GUNS AND TEAR BOMBS ON HUNT FOR SHOTGUNMAN SHOOTING UP HORNING MINE

3 POLICE SHOT, GUNMAN FLEES

A dozen county detectives, armed with riot guns and tear gas bombs, today in vain searched the hills in the vicinity of Horning, a mining community in Baldwin Township, for James Nixon, Negro miner employed by the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, who escaped after shooting a county detective and two special deputies.

The man hunt was called off at noon after a 12-hour search in which three Negroes were arrested.

Nixon was cornered by Ben Kalinowski, 35, and Felix Becowski, 40, deputized by Justice of the Peace William Nugent, of Horning, shortly before midnight.

The deputies had a warrant sworn out for his arrest by Elmer Mann, another Negro, following a fight at a party in House No. 51, lat. yesterday.

COUNTY DETECTIVE SHOT

Nixon, detectives said, opened fire on the deputies with a shotgun, wounding both in the legs and body.

County Detectives Dave Carlin and Michael Stabile were sent to the scene. While standing in front

Hearst Anglo-U. S. Pact Proposal Greeted by British, Canadians

In all Hearst newspapers yesterday, there was reprinted from the leading newspapers of the British Empire, a statement by William Randolph Hearst giving his opinions on the importance of maintaining understanding and good relations between the United States and the British Empire.

Mr. Hearst declared the London naval treaty "will probably do more to prevent a genuine agreement between English-speaking peoples than anything that has occurred in recent years."

He declared that "entrance into the League of Nations would be a suicidal policy for the United States, while an agreement with the British Empire would be a natural policy, which would immediately benefit the two nations and have an ultimate beneficent effect upon all other nations."

Charges Unsound, Stand

He declared that the attitude of the statesmen of the United States with regard to agreements with other nations is "fundamentally unsound, diametrically wrong and a policy of pacifism, not of peace, and of sentimentalism rather than of sound sense."

He decried the sky-high tariff policy of the politicians of the United States while advocating a reasonable tariff and a reciprocity agreement between the United States and the British Empire.

He stated an Anglo-American understanding is only possible on a basis of absolute equality.

CHARGE FRAUD IN COUNTY VOTE

If Attorney Samuel S. Rosenberg appears in court today with petitions to bring in 150 ballot boxes in behalf of "leaders of the Regular Republican Organization" he will dispel a mystery that has all the known local leaders of the organization perplexed and puzzled, if their statements to newspapermen are true and not the "I don't know" variety.

Attorney Rosenberg has announced that he is bringing the ballot boxes from districts that gave Gifford Pinchot large majorities over Francis Shunk Brown, to show fraud was committed in the recent gubernatorial primary fight.

LEADERS PUZZLED

Local leaders who say they "knew nothing about it," are County Commissioner Joseph Armstrong, local Davis-Brown Campaign Manager William H. Ziefel, Assistant County Solicitor Mortimer B. Lesher, member, and Attorney Charles B. Prichard, chairman of the Republican Organization Legal Committee, and State Senator Max G. Leslie, who perhaps would know if anything was being done over the head of County Chairman Armstrong.

STATEMENT BACKED

Attorney Rosenberg's statement was corroborated, however, by W. R. Douglass, manager of the Davis-Brown headquarters in Philadelphia, who said that County Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong "knows all about it and probably has designated somebody else to do the work for him," and Robert

Deprived of Cubs, Mother Bear Kills Feeder in Rage

WATERTOWN, N. Y., June 2.—(AP.)—An enraged female black bear whose cubs recently had been taken away from her killed her feeder, Emerson E. Joyce, 60, at the John C. Thompson Park Zoo here today.

So ferocious was her attack that none at the park dared go to the assistance of Joyce in his death battle. Grove H. Brenon, park superintendent, heard Joyce's cries and the bear's enraged roars, and rushed to the cage.

When he got there the bear had dragged Joyce's body into an artificial cave so that only his feet were visible.

Police later recovered the body, badly crushed and with the neck broken. The bear weighed 500 pounds.

Park officials explained that when Joyce entered the cage he failed to drop an iron grating over the mouth of the animal's cave. She walked out and up behind him, taking him off his guard.

A shotgun was brought into play to recover Joyce's body, and the bear was wounded in the head.

Bad-Check Game 'So Easy' She Couldn't Resist

Mrs. Virginia Kline, 34, of 311 North Jackson street, North Side, has faith in the gullibility of people—especially bank tellers. That's why she's in the county jail today—sent there by Alderman Ray Schneider on a charge of obtaining money under false pretense.

"It was so easy I couldn't stop it," she told Alderman Schneider.

Constable Carl Steigerwald and Bank Teller J. H. Proudley had her arraigned, accusing her of passing a check for $84 at the Second National Bank of Allegheny, where Proudly is employed

"People are so gullible," she added.

Proudley, and a dozen other tellers from banks in the district, said Mrs. Kline visited their banks and addressed each by his name in a familiar fashion.

They say she asked for their mothers and sisters and brothers, presented herself as an old family friend, and reminisced about the tellers' boyhood days. Then she would present a check to be cashed.

Certain of her friendship, Proudley and the other victims cashed the checks, which came back marked "no account."

Proudley and the constable said Mrs. Kline spent some time investigating the addresses and families of the bank tellers chosen to be her victims.

Mrs. Kline admitted she had passed the checks at different times during the past few years, Alderman Schneider stated that investigation indicated the woman was not in need of money. Several physicians and druggists also made information against her.

BRITISH RETALIATE FOR REBEL OUTBREAK AT PESHAWAR

EIGHT 'RED' AGITATORS SEIZED

Troops Occupy Neighboring Villages as Tension Hints New Disorders Will Occur

International News Service.

LONDON, June 2.—British military forces moved swiftly today in the Peshawar district, in retaliation for the latest outbreak of violence there, in which seven persons were killed and nine injured.

Troops occupied the villages of Charsadda and Prang, where tension prevailed, threatening further outbreaks. Eight Communist agitators were arrested, according to Peshawar dispatches to the Exchange Telegraph.

Vigilance is being maintained in Peshawar particularly because it is the guardian city of Khyber Pass. Afridi tribesmen are reported to have instituted a sniping campaign.

SCORES UNDER ARREST

Nine women among the scores of Nationalist volunteers arrested during a salt raid at the Wadala suburb of Bombay, were released today.

Nearly 3,000 of the raiders were women volunteers under the leadership of Miss Patel, daughter of the late speaker of the Indian legislative assembly, C. J. Patel. Patel is now leader of India's civil disobedience c... n.

More th... n 100 were injured as a crowd of 2,000 volunteers, led by Hindu and Sikh women, attempted to break through the police cordon surrounding the Madala pans.

Salt raids at Dharasana resulted in injuries to 106 persons, Saturday.

MASSED ESCAPE FOILED

Two hundred Nationalist prisoners attempted a massed escape from the World internment camp and tore down the barbed wire that forms the main enclosure. Police and soldiers prevented their escape.

A dispatch to the Daily Herald from Simla says that Mahatma Gandhi has written a letter from his prison to the Viceroy, expressing regret at the violent incidents which have followed the civil disobedience campaign, but disavowing all responsibility for them and reaffirming that his followers were determined to maintain the principle of nonresistance.

FIGHT 'NO JURY' LIQUOR TRIALS

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP.)—Five members of the House Judiciary Committee today filed a minority report against the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission's bill to let United States commissioners handle petty prohibition offenses without a jury.

The bill will be considered by the House tomorrow. The five hostile members contend it is unconstitutional, depriving those accused of trial by jury and inaugurating a new procedure in criminal prosecutions.

Signing the minority report were Representatives La Guardia, of New York, and Bachmann, of West Virginia, Republicans, and Tucker, of Virginia; Dominick, of South Carolina, and Celler, of New York, Democrats.

La Guardia said of the measure:

"The bill authorizes the commissioner to recommend the punishment, but the Constitution prevents him saying whether the defendant is guilty or innocent. The bill is highly technical in its provisions of criminal jurisprudence, yet it is drafted in the phraseology and nomenclature of the cross-word puzzle.

"It is destructive of every fundamental, precedent and custom in our federal practice. The plan is a slipshod, ill-advised, impractical system of turning out stereotyped justice in quantity production, regardless of the merits and the circumstances in each individual case."

MELLON CASH IN DAVIS CAMPAIGN

personally spent $291,000 as opposed to $10,500 by Davis.

DAVIS TESTIFIES

Secretary Davis took the stand momentarily to explain that he gave his contribution to the Allegheny County Davis-Brown organization.

Vauclain said that contributions were given to 30 county organizations in the eastern part of the state from his fund.

Chairman Nye noted that this campaign was conducted for "much less" than "the $2,500,000" campaign of 1926, which was won by William S. Vare. He was denied a Senate seat because the $785,0000 expended for this ticket.

Vauclain said he didn't think a campaign could be conducted for less than this year's. He said Mr. Vare gave $5,000 to the Davis-Brown ticket.

Vauclain said W. W. Atterbury asked him to serve as treasurer.

J. Hampton Moore, chairman of the Citizens' Advisory Committee in Philadelphia, which supported the Davis-Brown ticket, was then called.

Mr. Moore referred the committee to Robert Quigley for an accounting of the expenditures of his committee.

Replying to Senator Dill (Dem.), Washington, Mr. Moore said:

"It seems to me this was about as fair an election as has been held for some time and about as clean.

"I haven't even seen every one as careful about expenditures," added Moore, "as in this campaign. The fact that your committee was in existence served to better these conditions."

PER CAPITA SYSTEM

Moore said he favored a limitation of campaign expenditures, but he wanted the limitation on a per capita basis which would allow the larger states greater expenditures.

Quigley said Vare gave $1,000 to the advisory committee. Senator Dill called attention that J. H. Louchheim, of Philadelphia, gave $5,000 to the Philadelphia campaign and $5,000 to the state campaign.

Quigley said he did not know Louchheim and Vauclain said he did not know the business of the contributor.

Quigley said $25,000 listed for "wards" was turned over to the 48 ward treasurers. He said the ward leaders were instructed to vote for the entire Davis-Brown ticket.

James M. Hazlett, chairman of the Philadelphia Republican city committee, said he had asked Atterbury to call upon Vauclain to serve as treasurer of the ticket.

He testified his organization spent no money in the campaign.

Asked about Louchheim, the Philadelphia leader said "he used to be a contractor."

HEAR ALLEGHENY ITEMS

Hazlett said he thought expenditures ought to be limited.

The committee then turned to the Pitsburgh end of the Davis-Brown campaign.

Perry, secretary to Dr. F. H. Fredericks, treasurer of the Allegheny County Davis-Brown organization, reported receipts of $88,460. He said $40,000 was received from the Western Pennsylvania organization.

Walter A. Bonitz, Pittsburgh manufacturer, was listed as contributing $86,750 to the Davis-Brown ticket through the Western Pennsylvania organization.

Lax Preachers and Police Blamed for Lynchings

ATLANTA, June 2.—(AP.)—Pointing to four lynchings in the South, in as many weeks, the Commission of Interracial Cooperation today placed responsibility for the mob violence on "official neglect and local religious indifference."

After declaring that "American lynchings probably do more than anything else to discredit Christianity at home and abroad," the statement said that a study of mob outbreaks over a period of years had convinced the commission that "preachers and officers of the law can end lynchings whenever they determine to do so, and in the meantime cannot escape definite responsibility."

100 CALLED IN INQUIRY

CHICKASHA, Okla., June 2.—(AP.)—Investigation of mob activity Saturday, which resulted in the fatal stabbing and shooting of Henry Argo, a Negro, today brought a statement from Attorney General J. Berry King that he expected a number of arrests to follow an inquest, set for Wednesday.

More than 100 witnesses have been summoned for the hearing.

GOOD WILL AIR TOUR DARES MOUNTAINS

Planes Poised for Hop Over Alleghenies, En Route to Wilkes-Barre, 137 Miles

By AL GOUGH,
Staff Correspondent.

ALTOONA, Pa., June 2.—The Allegheny Mountains, one of the most treacherous stretches of flying country in the world, loomed before the Pennsylvania good will air tourists today, the fourth day of the "round-the-state" flight which left Pittsburgh Friday.

Twenty-two ships were poised this morning on Stultz air field for the hop to Wilkes-Barre, a 137-mile jaunt between breakfast and lunch. They were to fly an uncharted course across the rugged mountain ridges, the longest single hop in the nine-day tour which finishes in Pittsburgh next Saturday.

FLY OVER 'HELL STRETCH'

Yesterday the flying tourists came across "Hell Stretch"—that part of the present coast-to-coast air-mail route which has brought so many pilots to grief.

East of Greenville, along the Allegheny River banks, the tourists picked up the mail route.

Dotted with beacon towers and every 30 miles an intermediate field, this part of Hell Stretch was made famous by such intrepid fliers as Cy Bettis, for whom Bettis airport near Pittsburgh is named; Johnny Nelson, Jappy Pearson and "Wild Bill" Hobson, whose exploits are aviation history.

The rugged mountains, rolling away into a horizon of lofty ridges, have a most formidable appearance from above.

STUNTS FOR DUBOIS

Twenty-one ships including an Aeronca Flivver from Rodgers Field, piloted by George Jackson, which joined the tour over the week-end, took off from Greenville, where the fliers spent Saturday night.

They straggled into Dubois, some of the faster ships making the trip in little over an hour.

An American Legion band greeted them at Dubois, and the Legionnaires acted as hosts at luncheon.

Several of the visiting fliers gave impromptu stunting exhibitions, then the tour continued on into Altoona.

State Aeronautics Commissioner John P. Wolfinger joined the tour at Dubois, continuing on to Stultz Field and later taking off again for his home in Reading. He will be host to the air travelers in Reading tonight.

75,000 AT ALTOONA

Before continuing to Reading, the commissioner conferred with State Inspector Larry Faurot, who is acting as co-pilot with John C. Kelly, Jr., factory representative for the new Stinson Lycoming cabin ship.

A crowd estimated at 75,000 gathered at Altoona to greet the good-will fliers. They jammed the highways for miles and waited hours to get a glimpse of the aerial cavalcade.

A program of aerobatics, parachute jumping, balloon strafing and other exhibitions was given, and the tourists retired to a hotel for the night to rest for the trip today.

Immersion Problem Halts Church Merger

Disagreement over immersion was one of the principal obstacles to unification of the Northern Baptist and the Christian churches, the Rev. Edward Bleakney, pastor of the Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church, told his congregation yesterday. He was a delegate to the Baptist convention at Cleveland which voted down the merger.

NANCY CARROLL

Miss Carroll, film star who with her husband and 13 others was rescued by a fishing schooner from their yacht, pitching and tossing off Minot Light when it all but foundered in heavy seas.

NANCY CARROLL SAVED AT SEA

BOSTON, June 2.—(AP.)—A thriller in real life very nearly ended the career of Nancy Carroll, screen star, when the 38-foot motor yacht Katherine II, aboard which was a guest, all but foundered in a stiff southwest gale off Minot Light.

The movie actress and her husband, Jack Kirkland, and 13 companions, were tossed about by heavy seas and a high wind for hours before aid finally came in the form of a fishing schooner, the Jackson Arthur.

Bedraggled and ill, Miss Carroll and the others were landed at T wharf last night, still shaky and frightened.

Miss Carroll and her husband have been in the East for three weeks on a vacation.

CAMDEN, N. J., June 2.—(AP.)—Four tanks containing 75,000 gallons of oil at the Sun Oil Company plant burst into flame today, the resulting explosions breaking windows in houses nearby and seriously injuring one employe. William Debrimm, 22, of Audubon, N. J., was burned when he ran through a burning building to shut off a valve and prevent the fire from communicating with two larger tanks containing 100,000 gallons of oil each.

of the house, they said, the Negro, who was hiding on a knoll nearby, fired twice at them with the shotgun.

Several shots struck Stabile in the leg and shoulder. After being treated by a doctor near the scene he was taken to his home at 2557 Ammon avenue. He is not seriously hurt.

RUSH REINFORCEMENTS

When word of the shooting reached the county detective bureau, Chief George Murren organized two squads of officers and hurried to the scene. Every house in the community, known as the Patch, was searched for the Negro.

Austin Parker, Negro miner, of House 96, Broughton, said to have been with Nixon at the time of the shooting; William Keltch, suspected of trying to carry ammunition to the fugitive, and Clarence Maloy were taken in custody.

The search then was extended to the hills.

Mann told detectives that the fight started over Myrtle Ferguson, his common-law wife, and that he was beaten by the other Negro.

Franco-Italy Diplomatic Duel Grips Europe

PARIS, June 2.—(AP.)—All Europe is watching with interest and some anxiety a political situation which promises to develop into a duel between two European statesmen, Benito Mussolini, premier of Italy, and Andre Tardieu, premier whom France regards generally as a worthy successor of men like Clemenceau and Poincare.

Mussolini has attracted attention again because of his recent series of political speeches in Northern Italy, wherein he warned the world that Italy's independence and Italy's future would find that the Italian people would form themselves into a solid mass to defend Italian rights.

Frenchmen generally believe that Mussolini's addresses were directed against their country, first because of the French refusal at London to grant naval parity to Italy, and also because of the failure of negotiations concerning Tripoli and Tunis to materialize in a manner pleasing to Mussolini.

Tardieu indirectly answered Mussolini by ordering the evacuation of the last zone of the Rhineland. And than on May 18, in a speech at Lyons to former soldiers, he called upon France's veterans to devote themselves henceforth in the cause of peace.

But there are Frenchmen who seem convinced that France is showing over-indifference to the activities of the Italians. Foremost among these is Henry Berenger, former French ambassador to Washington, who, with Secretary A. W. Mellon, fashioned the accord which arranged the war debt between France and the United States.

PROBERS SET TO GRILL CANNON

Senate Committee Ignores Bishop's Defiance; Plans For Lobby Quiz Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP.)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., is expected before the Senate Lobby Committee tomorrow, despite his questioning of the committee's right to scan his expenditures in the anti-Smith campaign of 1928.

Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, acting chairman in the absence of Senator Caraway (Dem.), of Arkansas, when asked if the committee could compel the bishop to answer, said the investigators would cross that bridge when they came to it.

He had challenged the authority of the committee to inquire into his expenditures as leader of the anti-Smith fight in Virginia.

The spotlight also will be turned on Cannon's dealings with Kable and Company and the Cosmopolitan Fiscal Corporations, two New York bucket shops which were closed by the Federal government.

SETS FORTH DEFIANCE

Cannon's defiance, set forth in a formal statement, indicated a lively session tomorrow, with a possibility he may refuse to answer certain questions to be propounded by Chairman Caraway and others. He said:

"On my return to Washington I examined the text of the Federal Corrupt Practices act to verify my statement that a person or a committee operating in only one state is not required to make any report.

"Not only is such report not required, but upon a thorough examination of all the reports in the office of the clerk of the House, I found that it has never been customary, for state committees — Democratic, Republican or otherwise—to make such reports."

Consider Calling Brother of McBride

WASHINGTON, June 2. — The Lobby Committee today was to consider the letter of Emmet McBride, of Ohio, brother of F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League.

This letter, sent to Representative LaGuardia, of New York, has been turned over to Senator Caraway by LaGuardia for such action as the committee may take.

If charged concealment of contributions to the league, specifying a $25,000 gift from Stanley Kresge, of Detroit, and attacked the national and state Anti-Saloon League organizations.

DENIES BROTHER'S CHARGES

In dispatches from Des Moines, Ia., where F. Scott McBride, is now stopping, and from Detroit, McBride and Kresge denied all statements in the letter. McBride said:

"Mr. LaGuardia has released a letter purporting to be from my brother, Emmett, containing derogatory statements concerning my brother, D. L. McBride, the Anti-Saloon League and myself.

"Since his severe breakdown 22 years ago, my brother, Emmett, has been practically an invalid, apparently regaining his health at times only to become again irresponsible, a fact which can be easily verified, being well-known to the family and friends.

"This recurring condition which I mention in all kindness and with keenest regret is the explanation of his letter.

"The charges it contained are absolutely false."

VETO POSTAL PLAN CHANGES

mount stairways aggregating 48 steps.

After a conference lasting more than two hours, members of the Pittsburgh committee retired, leaving Mr. Satterwhite and his associates to make a personal survey of traffic conditions accompanied by representatives of the Better Traffic Committee.

Mr. Satterwhite said he expected to return to Washington tonight. With the plans standing practically as they have been drawn by government architects, he said that he hoped that good progress would be made toward the working out of specifications.

MAKE FINAL STAND

Representatives of the Pittsburgh committees, realizing that they were making their final stand in behalf of their suggested improvements in the plans, presented the plaster model of the City Planning Commission's plaster cast of the proposed cross-town bridge and boulevard and apparently in vain pointed out that the postoffice should be arranged to conform to the traffic streams of the future and should combine facilities looking to the growth of the city until 1950.

Provision for the railway mail service in the same building, it was urged by the government officials, precluded any material change in the designs already drawn.

The only way out of the dilemma seemed to be the erection of a separate building for the accommodation of the railway mail service. This, it was stated, would necessitate another appropriation from Congress, and all agreed that such a course had little chance of success. At this point the conference closed.

CAPONE AIDE HELD IN KILLING OF 3 IN CHICAGO FLAREUP

FIVE DETROIT SLAYINGS TRACED

Woman Wounded as Liquor Gangs Renew Battle for Supremacy in Two Cities

International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 2.—"Machine Gun" Jack McGurn, Capone gunman, was taken into custody today for questioning in connection with the massacre yesterday of three gangsters at Fox Lake.

McGurn was accompanied by Charles Joey, another underworld character, when picked up by a police shotgun squad cruising the South Side.

No weapons were found on the pair, but Deputy Commissioner of Detectives John Stege ordered both men held for further questioning.

McGurn was arrested last year in connection with the St. Valentine's Day massacre.

Two men were killed and two wounded in different parts of Chicago in incidental gang frays.

WOMAN WOUNDED

The victims of the Fox Lake massacre were Sam Pellar, Michael Quirk and Joseph Bertsche, killed, and George Druggan, brother of "Terry" Druggan, West Side beer baron, and Mrs. Vivian Ponic McGinnis, wife of an attorney, wounded.

In Chicago, Samuel Monstero was fatally shot and two companions wounded and an unidentified man was slain in an alley off Grand avenue.

The same warfare of extermination was responsible for the slaying Saturday of Philip Gnolfo and the wounding of two of his companions in the old West Side "valley district," where the Druggans and "Terry's" partner, Frankie Lake, were brought up.

The police theory is that the Fox Lake slaughter was in retaliation for the Gnolfo killing.

8 SLAIN IN DETROIT

DETROIT, June 2.—(AP.)—Gangster's guns, breaking into activity after several weeks of quiet, took five lives in the metropolitan area during the week-end, two of the victims being policemen who were shot down from an automobile which they stopped in their investigation of a hit and run accident.

The fifth victim, an Italian who was not immediately identified, was sent to his death with four bullets in his head and body at daybreak. Police connected this killing with the shooting of two Italians in a fish market Saturday afternoon.

The slain policemen, described by their chief as "the best men in the department," were Erhardt W. Meyer, 28, and Claude Lanstra, 24.

Police of Detroit and suburbs were concentrating their efforts on solving the shooting of the policemen when the fifth killing occurred near Ferndale in Oakland County, just outside the city.

Detroit detectives saw a connection between this killing and the slaying Saturday afternoon of Gaspere Scibilia and Samuel Parino, who were shot by two men as they sat at lunch in the rear room of a fish market on Vernor highway, east.

TWO SHOT IN BOSTON

BOSTON, June 2.—(INS.)—Gangsters today shot and seriously wounded two men prominent in Boston sporting circles.

The two victims are Guy (Morgan) Perelli, 36, and Joseph (Chick) Burno, 30, both men are on the dangerous list at the hospital. They were shot down amid a fusilade of 15 shots as they left a South End hotel.

ROBERTS TAKES JUSTICE OATH

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP.)—Owen J. Roberts, of Philadelphia, was inducted into office today as an associate justice of the Supreme Court.

When he had taken the oath, the bench again had its full membership of nine for the first time since February. Roberts succeeds the late Justice Sanford, of Tennessee.

Simple ceremonies, following a form laid down years ago, attended the ascension of the new justice to the highest court.

The courtroom was crowded. Mrs. Roberts and their daughter, and a number of friends from Pennsylvania coming to Washington to be present.

ZEP READY FOR FLIGHT HOME

a guest of Commander Hugo Eckener.

Eckener and a majority of the passengers who made the trip from Friedrichshafen to South America to Lakehurst spent Sunday in New York City, visiting friends.

Fair weather was forecast for tonight. Fresh southerly winds were expected to prevail this afternoon, diminishing after sunset.

Refueling of the giant dirigible has been completed, and minor repairs on two damaged struts have been made.

The struts, which support the rear gondola, had been loosened when the Zeppelin ran into squalls Friday night between the Bermudas and the north coast of Florida.

CONQUERS WEATHER

So far on its epochal tri-continental journey from Friedrichshafen to South America to Lakehurst, the Graf Zeppelin has traveled 13,400 nautical miles in 204½ hours of flying. She has encountered all kinds of weather, including severe tropical squalls, and emerged with colors flying.

No difficulty in negotiating the North Atlantic Ocean is anticipated by Commander Eckener. The Graf already has crossed the Atlantic six times.

Lieut. Com. J. C. Arnold, who supervised the refueling of the Graf Zeppelin for her return trip, said 1,200,000 cubic feet of gas had been injected into the dirigible.

A total of 780,000 cubic feet of this gas is a compound of pyrofax and hydrogen which is used as fuel. The remaining 420,000 feet is hydrogen gas and is used to lift the ship.

A huge pack of mail is to be carried back by the Graf to Germany. Thousands of letters and postcards bearing a Lakehurst postmark will be taken aboard. The special stamp for the letters costs $1.30, and the stamp for the postcards 65 cents.

ARCTIC FLIGHTS PLANNED

Bootleggers took advantage of the fact that big crowds were on hand and plied their trade. Dealers in "applejack" were dispensing their wares at $2 a pint, twice the regular price.

The Graf Zeppelin will not remain in her hangar at Friedrichshafen after her return to Germany, for she has a busy summer schedule ahead, including three flights to the Arctic Circle and trips to almost every part of Europe.

From July 8 to July 11 the dirigible is scheduled for a 48-hour northland cruise to Tromsoe or the North Cape at the extremity of Norway. One week later it is slated for another northland cruise of about 60 hours—probably to Spitzbergen—and seven days later a 60-hour voyage to Iceland is expected to be made.

Flights to the Baltic and Mediterranean seas also are planned.

ECKENER THANKS HOSTS

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP.)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, has sent Secretary Adams this message:

"After a happy landing and a safe berthing of our ship in the Lakehurst hangar by means of the newly developed ingenious ground handling device, I am happy to have the privilege of once more enjoying the hospitality of your department, for which please accept my sincerest thanks and deep appreciation."

EXECUTE KILLER BY LETHAL GAS

CARSON CITY, Nev., June 2.—(AP.)—R. P. (Bob) White, Elko gambler, died today in the lethal gas chamber in Nevada State Prison here. He had been convicted on circumstantial evidence of the murder of Louis Lavell, another alleged gambler.

White was taken at 4:40 a. m. into the stone chamber he helped build and strapped into a chair.

He smiled to the 53 witnesses through a window.

Before White's chair stood a two-gallon jar containing a quart of sulphuric acide and half a gallon of water. A string extending into the next room was pulled, opening a container dropping nearly a dozen one-ounce "eggs" of cyanide of potassium into the acid solution. The deadly gas was generated almost instantly.

Three minutes after he entered the death chamber he apparently was dead.

2 DEAD, 14 HURT, TORNADO TOLL

WAGON MOUND, N. M., June 2.—(AP.)—Two dead, 14 injured—one perhaps fatally—and property damage of approximately $60,000, was the toll today of a tornado which struck this town late Saturday afternoon.

The dead: Charles Geist, 35, Paterson, N. J., and Alfred Holbrook, 18, Wagon Mound.

Mrs. D. M. Brewer, of Los Angeles, a tourist, was in a serious condition from injuries and physicians expressed doubt of her recovery.

Relief workers ministered to sufferers today, and crews of highway workers and other volunteers cleared the streets of wreckage and aided in repairing damaged homes.

Swooping down off Turkey Mountain to the west, the twister cut a swath about 200 feet wide through the town, which has a population of 825, demolishing 40 dwellings and half a dozen business buildings.

PRESBYTERIANS SCAN DIVORCE

CINCINNATI, June 2.—(AP.)—Problems of marriage and divorce were laid before the One Hundred and Forty-second General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church today, with a lively debate in prospect.

The report of the committee on marriage, divorce and remarriage was expected to draw the adverse criticism of the Philadelphia Presbytery as dealing too frankly with personal matters.

The suggestion that pastors form classes, to instruct young persons concerning marriage and sex, was included in the report.

The committee asserted:

"The attitudes which are to support sex and marriage and the continuing home should be honestly stated."

The younger generation was taken to task for "sagging morality," but the remedy is better understanding, and not scolding, the committee said.

The ministry's double function of representing church and state in marriage ceremonies was termed unsatisfactory. The committee suggests that in the future two ceremonies might be recommended, one civil and the other religious.

PENSION BILL TO BE CHANGED

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP.)—After conferring with President Hoover, Chairman Knutson, of the House Pensions Committee, predicted today that the Chief Executive would sign a compromise Spanish-American War pension bill now in preparation.

Knutson said the new measure would retain the provisions for veterans whose disabilities arise from "vicious habits," one of the clauses objected to by the President when he vetoed the pensions bill last week.

It will eliminate, however, another provision opposed by Mr. Hoover lowering the minimum service period from 90 days to 70 days for non-service-connected disability pension.

Hoover, Home From Trip, Welcomes Infante

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP.)—Riding nearly 300 miles in an automobile, President Hoover returned to the White House late yesterday from the lodge of Jay Cooke, of Philadelphia, in the mountains of Pennsylvania, and after a quick change of costume received informally the Infante Alfonso, cousin of the King of Spain.

Much of the long journey across Pennsylvania and Maryland was made through lanes of cheering crowds. Along the road hundreds waved their tribute as the Chief Executive sped southward. Repeatedly Mr. Hoover bowed and doffed his hat as he rode along.

The ride was interrupted only twice—once for the President to worship at a small Methodist Episcopal Church in Liverpool Pa., and again at the home of Henry P. Fletcher, former ambassador to Italy, at Greencastle, where the party had lunch. A brief stop was made at Harrisburg to allow Governor Fisher and Mr. Cooke to alight.

A surprised congregation and pastor, the Rev. H. L. Jarrett, faced the chief executive as he was ushered into the little church.

Henry P. Fletcher, former ambassador to Italy and a close personal friend of President Hoover, said that if he was being considered for the vacant post of ambassador to Japan it was news to him.

The former ambassador also disclaimed any knowledge of the source of reports that he was to run for governor of Pennsylvania as an anti-dry.

Gov. Hammill and Congressman L. J. Dickinson have made the tariff a prominent issue. The governor has declared opposition thereto, saying the Hawley-Smoot bill would be a detriment to Iowa farmers and should be revised. President Hoover, Dickinson has championed the tariff.

Senator Steck was unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

A third Republican senatorial candidate, Frank T. Lund, predicted he would get strong support from labor and farmers. A fourth, William O. Payne, a newspaper editor, has campaigned on an anti-League of Nations platform.

All of the Iowa delegation in the House of Representatives except Dickinson sought renomination. Nominations for the governorship and attorney generalship office are also at stake.

Yes, Bobby Jones Is a Good Name In Atlanta

ATLANTA, June 2.—(AP.)—At least one Atlanta Negro knows the answer to the time-honored query "what's in a name."

In lieu of a policeman he straightened defectedly up to the judge, P. W. Calloway, bench in Police Court.

After the judge inspected the records of the case, this dialogue ensued:

"Is this your right name?

"Yes, sir."

"And what is the charge, officer?"

"Parking over time, your honor."

"Case dismissed. I can't fine a man with a name like that today, of all days."

The Negro's name was Bobby Jones.

RESERVE BANK REPORTS GAIN IN BUSINESS

Philadelphia Area Shows Some Increase in April; Level Under Last Year's

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—(AP.)—The Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, in its monthly report on business conditions in the Philadelphia Federal Reserve District says trade and industry as a whole showed a slightly higher level of activity in April than in March, though continuing below the exceptionally large volume of a year ago.

The report says:

"Credit conditions remain easy, with an ample supply of funds for business purposes and little change during the past month in interest rates charged commercial customers.

RESERVE RATIO HIGHER

"Banks report some increase recently in the item which includes commercial loans. The reserve ratio of the Federal Reserve Bank is much higher than a year ago, and the borrowings of member banks are in relatively small volume.

"Conditions in manufacturing industries showed slight improvement in April. The demand for manufactured products in the first fortnight of May was less active than a month ago, and continued well below last year.

"Factory employment and wage payments in this section have declined between March and April by about the usual seasonal amounts.

CONSTRUCTION EXPANDS

"Construction activity has expanded further since the middle of last month, reflecting largely a higher rate of operation in public works and utilities and to some extent commercial and residential buildings. Nevertheless, the value of contracts awarded in the first half of May in this section, computed on a daily basis, was materially smaller than the average for April or that for May, 1929.

"The market for anthracite is quiet and sales have declined further since the middle of last month. After a sharp decline in the early part of this year, reaching in March the lowest level in several years, colliery output increased 12 per cent in April. In the first fortnight of May, production also continued upward.

SOFT COAL GAINS

"In sympathy with the moderate rise in industrial activity, production of bituminous coal increased somewhat in April, in comparison with a year ago.

"The wholesale and jobbing trade in this district during April decreased seasonally. In comparison with a year ago, the dollar volume of daily sales was almost 7 per cent smaller."

CHARGE FRAUD IN ELECTION

B. Vale, director of publicity of the Davis-Brown organization.

Douglass at his home near Harrisburg yesterday said:

"The contemplated action in Allegheny County is in charge of local leaders and I have discussed it several times with County Chairman Armstrong. If he is not personally handling the matter, then he has delegated it to somebody else. I cannot understand why there should be any secrecy about it."

Vale told the Associated Press that the petitions were inspired by the Brown organization in Philadelphia. He said:

POST $60,000 BOND

"We want to recount a lot of ballot boxes in Allegheny County, for we feel that the figures announced for Mr. Pinchot and Mr. Brown are incorrect. We desire to make a recount in a number of Allegheny County districts and have posted $60,000 bond to conduct the work."

SERVICE MEN IN SADDLE AT SEATTLE

Influence Shown in Vote Against Dry Regime and In League Court Rebuke

By E. B. FUSSELL
Universal Service.

SEATTLE, June 2.—Service men are in the saddle in Washington politics, as the result of dramatic action of the Republican state convention a week ago, in overturning the resolutions committee and declaring for revision of prohibition and against the League Court.

They have waited 10 years for the position of complete dominance that they have won. But political prophets believe the World War veterans are now destined to rule their generation as the Grand Army men did following the Civil War.

Rather than liberal the veterans are anti-speak-easy, and for stripping hypocrisy from politics.

THREATEN WAR PATH

Their attitude on nationalism and internationalism goes further than opposition to the World Court, and represents more the Roosevelt type of patriotism.

With their adjusted compensation bill vetoed by President Coolidge, World War veterans in 1924 were frankly threatening to break all Republican ties and go on the war path.

MUST ARREST SELF

Steps have been taken by the United States district attorney's office here today which will put C. T. McKinney, former assistant district attorney, in the unprecedented position of causing his own arrest on the grand jury indictments charging him with conspiracy to accept bribes and to violate the national prohibition laws.

McKinney notified U. S. Marshall Beam by long distance telephone the other day of his whereabouts in California. Beim turned the secret address over to Tom DeWolfe, assistant U. S. District Attorney, and today DeWolfe mailed to McKinney personally the two warrants for his arrest.

We'd like to photograph them all, they're all so likeable and new! Each one of them suggests a new sports dress, an afternoon frock, a wispy dance dress or a smart evening gown. Suggestions that are easily accepted with so many fine quality silks at this popular price.

Dots have their inning in this sale. Pin dots, polka dots and large coin dots find their way to chiffon, georgette and flat crepe—and the majority of them are the favored white dots on black, navy or brown backgrounds. Dark dots on pastel grounds are also featured.

A heavy quality canton crepe with a dot-and-dash print . . . myriads of floral patterns on crepe or chiffon . . . widely spaced patterns on white and pastel silks . . . and an exceptional selection of sports silks with monotone and multicolor printed designs—are but a few of the many designs you'll find in this event.

And in addition to the beautiful patterns, every piece of silk is an unusually fine quality, the kind for which you'd willingly pay much more than $1.95. All the silks in this offering are 39 inches wide.

BORAH DEFINES RADICALISM

WASHINGTON June 2 (AP)—Senator William E. Borah's personal definition of a radical was given to a radio audience tonight in an address which the ardent Idaho Republican directed especially at the [illegible] mouth are [illegible] ter the affairs [illegible] He declared:

"A radical in these days is one who believes in the Constitution of the United States and will not barter away his devotion for party for the sake of so-called regularity and for the sake of being in the majority.

He urged [illegible] to be afraid [illegible] cals. He said:

"Political parties and organizations have their place and a very important place but they are not entitled to control the judgment and conscience of those who sincerely believe that the party method is wrong.

"There is not a crooked interest, there is not a special privilege, there is not an ill-gotten dollar there is not a vested wrong but are constantly crying out for regularity for leaving these things as they are for the status quo.

LINK SUSPECT WITH KILLING

PHILADELPHIA June 2 (AP)—Arrested here at the request of his wife who asserted he had deserted her and their two children two years ago Charles King was held pending check up of identification marks with a man of similar name and physical characteristics wanted on the charge of murder in Hamilton Ohio.

Local police lacked details of the Ohio killing. As a matter of routine when King was arrested they checked their records and found a "flier" from the Hamilton authorities describing a murder suspect which they said corresponded with the prisoner's appearance. Fingerprints and Bertillon measurements of King were sent to Hamilton tonight.

Police said King admitted having worked in several Ohio cities but declared he had never been in Hamilton.

Mrs. King came here from her home in Wilmington Del. with the warrant for her husband's arrest.

Graceful Frock for Afternoons

Pattern 1932

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

The mode is delightfully interpreted in this becoming sheer frock with fluttering cape collar and gracefully flared skirt. The chantilly lace vestee and the smart ribbon bows are interesting small details of real importance. Note how the lines where the skirt joins the bodice follow the lines of the collar in slenderizing manner.

Pattern 1932 may be developed in georgette, chiffon, voile, flat crepe or chinlity. A solid color or a print might be chosen for equally good results. The blues, reds, greens and pinks are particularly lovely this season.

May be ordered only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4 yards of 39-inch fabric.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

What infinite relief to know Kotex deodorizes

Kotex gives you every refinement of comfort and protection . . . and it deodorizes a complete, safe way.

DAINTINESS makes one important demand which some women overlook. And Kotex answers that demand. It deodorizes, by a special process, as it is worn. You've no idea what a relief it is!

And Kotex gives you—too—the relief that comes with safe protection. It is filled, you know, with Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding. This is a cellulose substance which, for sanitary purposes, fulfills the same function as cotton with 5 times the absorbency.

Used in leading hospitals

In world-famous hospitals, where health protection is doubly vital, this very same absorbent is now used today . . . 85% of America's leading hospitals now use Kotex filler, so its superiority and safety are unquestioned for your use.

Kotex is never bulky and uncomfortable, because it is fashioned in a way that eliminates bulk and makes the pad inconspicuous under the closest fitting frocks. It is not only soft to feel, but soft to wear. And that softness lasts—it doesn't pack into chafing hardness.

Once you use it, you'll find it indispensable. There are many reasons why—and one is the fact that it is so easily disposed of. That fact alone has changed the hygienic habits of millions of women the world over. Kotex Company, Chicago, Ill.

KOTEX IS SOFT . . .

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

3—Disposable, instantly, completely.

4—Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly, by a special process.

Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

BRITISH GREET HEARST PROPOSAL FOR ANGLO-U.S. PACT

WIDE COMMENT GIVEN VIEWS IN PRESS

Smith, Washington correspondent of the Southam group of Canadian newspapers.

The press of the British empire recognized it as a thought-compelling document and gave it prominent display in all their editions.

The following dispatches to Universal Service show how important the statement was regarded by the editors throughout the British empire.

Given Much Display

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE

LONDON, June 1.—The important London newspapers today gave prominent display to the exhaustive interview given by William Randolph Hearst to the Southam newspapers of Canada on the subject of Anglo-American relations.

The most important display was given by the Morning Post, the London Times, and the Manchester Guardian. In its final edition the Morning Post devoted a column of its foreign news page to the Hearst interview, carrying a large headline reading: "Britain and America—Mr. W. R. Hearst's Ideal." In its earlier editions the Morning Post gave the interview the center column of its news page.

Times Recognizes Worth

The Times emphasized the importance of the interview by publishing a cabled version of three-quarters of a column on the foreign news page, under the heading:

"Anglo-American relations—Mr. Hearst's views."

The Morning Post with a headline of "Saul Among Prophets" leads its editorial comment which says:

"Mr. Hearst, United States newspaper magnate, always has been reckoned a bitter foe of England. But the striking counsel he has just given his countrymen suggests a change in his attitude. He would scrap the naval treaty in order to substitute an Anglo-America agreement which would leave both parties perfect freedom to build as they like, coupled with a defensive alliance.

Await Effect on U. S.

"Mr. Hearst sees the best hope of world peace in the co-operation of the great English speaking peoples and the withdrawal from any part or lot in European complications. Coming from such a source the project certainly is one that must arrest attention. It will be interesting to learn how far Mr. Hearst is able to impress the imagination of his fellow countrymen.

"Meanwhile Lord Beaverbrook will undoubtedly be elated to note that Mr. Hearst gives his hearty blessing to the empire free trade scheme."

The Manchester Guardian, one of Britain's most important journals, carries today a whole column of Mr. Hearst's interview.

The Daily Herald, organ of labor, carried 250 words on an inside page with a heading: "Anglo-American 'antagonisms.'" The Daily Telegraph also carried a substantial story on the foreign news page with a heading: "Anglo - United States defense agreement."

Featured in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Man., June 1.—The Winnipeg Tribune carried Mr. Hearst's statement on Anglo-American relations on the first page under the following head:

"Hearst declared for Anglo-United States co-operative agreement; critical of Navy treaty and United States tariff."

The Tribune then comments editorially as follows:

"The interview given the Tribune's representative at Washington by William Randolph Hearst raises interesting questions. Mr. Hearst is a powerful figure in the United States. A vigorous and arresting personality in himself, he commands a larger audience of the American people day by day than any other man. What he has to say on a subject of such outstanding importance as the relations between the British Empire and the United States is therefore not only of interest, but of highest significance.

Questions Arise

"After reading Mr. Heart's statement of his views, various questions will arise in the mind of the average Canadian. Is not Mr. Hearst far in advance of the public sentiment of his own country? Have we had the slightest indication that the United States in world affairs is prepared to co-operate with the British Empire except in a very limited degree? Has not the tendency in recent years been to accentuate the attitude of aloofness?

"These questions arise. Evidence can be cited to show that these doubts are valid. Yet may it not be that the real difficulty is lack of understanding. We are of course perfectly aware of our own complete friendliness of spirit and confident of the correctness of our attitude toward the United States. But may not the American people likewise be animated by a most friendly spirit toward the British Empire, and similarly be regretting in our attitude evidences of an unwillingness to co-operate fully with them?

Compels Thought

"Mr. Hearst's interview may create certain doubts as to the course we have been pursuing. At least it compels thought, which is all to the good.

"The project of an Anglo-American understanding and defensive alliance will unquestionably secure the heartiest indorsement of the Canadian people."

TORONTO, Ont., June 1.—The Daily Star featured under a by-line on page one, Mr. Hearst's statement on Anglo-American relations.

The statement was under the following heading: "Anglo-American pact to foster world peace advocated by Mr. Hearst." The second line of the heading said: "U. S. publisher would set minimum, not maximum for two powers' fleet." The third line said: "London naval treaty will impede genuine agreement between two nations."

The total carried on the statement was one and three-fourth columns. The star makes no comment editorially.

Printed in Vancouver

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 2.—Mr. Hearst's interview with the Southam papers was featured on page one of the Vancouver Sunday Province under a three-column headline.

Article Much Discussed

MONTREAL, June 2.—The Montreal Star gave prominence to a statement by William Randolph Hearst in which the American publisher defines what he believes should be the relationship between the British Empire and the United States.

The article, which was widely discussed in business and political circles, appeared under the display headline:

"Equality must be basis for Anglo-American treaty."

A second headline says:

"Well-known publisher says pact impossible if either seeks to gain petty advantages."

Points which appear to be of special interest to Montreal Star readers are further emphasized by black type cross-lines stating: "For World Peace" and "Would Support Beaverbrook."

Frankness Hailed

HAMILTON, Ont., June 2.—The Hamilton Spectator carried Mr. Hearst's statement on Anglo-American relations under a three-column heading on page one. At the same time the Spectator says editorially:

"We publish today an interview given by Mr. William Randolph Hearst to our Washington correspondent, in which the American publisher speaks with considerable frankness on a variety of subjects of great importance to the British empire and the world at large."

"The interview is of significance, because it expresses the sentiments of an outstanding American publicist, who speaks for a large section of opinion in the United States. On the whole, the policies advocated are of a kind to appeal to British readers.

Idea Attractive

"The idea of an effective combination of the English-speaking races for purposes of defense and for the working out of common ideals is very attractive.

"To know that Mr. Hearst, with the powerful influence he exerts, is wholly favorable to such a plan is gratifying, though the reservations he deems necessary in order to secure it will not, perhaps, be regarded as politically practical, in view of existing international conditions.

"A combined British and United States navy, capable of bidding defiance to the rest of the world—'a co-operative combination to keep the peace and to keep free from the wars and disorders of other nations'—though the intention might be the most benevolent in the world, could scarcely fail to invite suspicion, as Mr. Hearst, himself, clearly foresees. He has no dread of other possible combinations, providing they are what he terms 'natural.'

"What Mr. Hearst has to say about the baneful influence of politics in international relationships will be generally endorsed. As for fiscal questions, though Mr. Hearst freely acknowledges himself to be a 'a strong advocate of reasonable tariffs,' he is vigorously opposed to the 'present sky-high policy of the United States.'"

Stirs Interest in Calgary

CALGARY, Alta., June 2.—Mr. Hearst's statement on Anglo-American relations appeared on page one of the Calgary Herald under a three-column feature head. A picture of Mr. Hearst appeared with the statement. Commenting editorially, the Calgary Herald says:

"Considerable interest attaches to the proposal of William Randolph Hearst that a definite and permanent understanding should be reached between Great Britain and the United States to ensure peace between themselves and promote peace throughout the world.

The circumstances surrounding his considered statement, which appears elsewhere in this issue, are somewhat unique. He is one of the best known newspaper publishers in the United States and, like other members of the profession, does not take kindly to the experience of being interviewed. On this occasion he was asked by the representative of the Southam newspapers in Washington to elaborate his views on international relationships, more especially as they concerned the two great English-speaking nations. These will be read with great interest in Canada as well as in the States."

Main Story of Day

OTTAWA, Ont., June 1.—Mr. Hearst's statement on Anglo-American relations appeared today in the Ottawa Evening Citizen. It was played as the feature story of the day under a three-column head.

Heralded in Advance

EDMONTON, Alta., June 1.—Mr. Hearst's statement on Anglo-American relations was carried in full under a two-column head and accompanied by a picture of the American publisher on page one of the Edmonton Journal today.

On Thursday the Journal carried a brief story notifying its readers of the impending statement and yesterday followed this with a second advance story.

Need of Understanding

OTTAWA, Ont., June 2.—Under the caption "Co-operation for peace" the Ottawa Citizen comments as follows on the interview granted by William Randolph Hearst to the Southam newspapers of Canada:

"The substance of the interview is that the direct step toward the safeguarding of peace in the world is through a co-operative understanding between the United States and the British Empire.

"Many critics will naturally at once begin to put forward arguments against the possibility of any such understanding. It is apparently one of the deep-rooted tendencies of the human mind to lay more stress on the difficulties, even to the extent of conjuring up imaginary obstacles, rather than to press forward with confidence along the path of human progress.

No Supreme Obstacle

"There is no insurmountable obstacles to close co-operation between the United States and the nations within the British union. For more than a century it has been demonstrated on this North American continent that international differences can be adjusted satisfactorily without resorting to force.

"For the last 20 years, Canada and the United States have jointly maintained an international court of conciliation, known as the International Joint Commission, for the adjustment of differences. When Canadian and United States interests along the international boundary line appear to be coming into conflict, whatever the issue, the International Joint Commission can be called upon to deal with it.

Conciliation Succeeds

"The commission is composed of six members, three citizens of the United States and three of Canad. They hold joint sessions in Washington and in Ottawa, where the views of interested parties in the question under consideration may be heard. The method of the International Joint Commission is conciliation. It is untrammeled by the formalities of a judicial court. It has never once failed to arrive at a satisfactory solution of problems submitted.

"Surely it should be possible for three British citizens, similarly meeting round the conference table with three representatives of the United States, to keep the co-operative path clear of obstacles. The International Joint Commission, after 20 years of practical demonstration, is a model instrument of international conciliation to commend itself to the British and American people."

Southam Thanks Hearst For Good Will Interview

F. N. Southam, publisher of a number of Canada's leading progressive newspapers, has sent the following message of appreciation to William Randolph Hearst for the interview Mr. Hearst granted C. O. Smith, Washington representative of the Southam newspapers. The interview as it appeared in the Canadian papers was reprinted in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

The message to Mr. Hearst follows:

I should like to express my cordial appreciation of the interview you have given C. O. Smith, our Washington representative.

This question of good relations between your nation and ours is of paramount importance and I feel that your present statement is a sound contribution to it. It may be many years before we can reach that basis of complete understanding which would open the way to such an agreement as you contemplate and there are, of course, collateral problems to be solved on both sides. But meanwhile, we can none of us doubt the wisdom or usefulness of seeking accord, where accord should be easiest, and strengthening a moral alliance that is, after all, only natural.

There is, I might add, encouragement in your reminder that American opinion is not unanimous in its approval of a tariff policy which we in Canada are compelled to regard as a piece of international thoughtlessness. Our editors will join me in thanking you for the courtesy you have shown the Southam newspapers and their Washington correspondent.

DR. LONG SEES CHURCH GAIN

DES MOINES, June 2.—Increasing membership and decreasing attendance are being encountered by churches today Dr. G. A. Long of Pittsburgh declared in a report to the Seventy-second General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church. Dr. Long blames the radio and automobile for apathy in church affairs.

Dr. Long, who occupied a local pulpit Sunday, is not alarmed at a 2,000 decrease in the membership of his own denomination, The United Presbyterian Church of North America, last year.

He regards the year as but a spoke in the cycle which had carried the church to a total membership of 170,000, and believes that next year membership again will be on the upgrade.

Dr. Long, who is chairman of the committee on home missions, included figures showing that home missions gained 1,229 members last year, and that 24 new congregations were organized.

The Rev. Robert Wilson of Abbyssinia, formerly of Pittsburgh, was speaker at a general meeting of young people Sunday evening.

Italy Pays Tribute To Dead Garibaldi

CAPRERA, Italy, June 2.—(AP.)—Grizzled old veterans in red shirts, stalwart young men in black shirts, repaired here today to honor the memory of Giuseppe Garibaldi, hero of two wars of liberation. The occasion was the fourty-eighth anniversay of the patriot's death, and the goal of the pilgrimage was the modest grave behind the simple house on this little island in which he died. In Rome, the great objective of the patriot, the new Garibaldi museum was thrown open to the public.

Mobilize to Curb Reds in Manchuria

TOKIO, June 2.—(AP.)—Japanese consular police and the Chinese military of the Chientao district of Kirin Province, Manchuria, mobilized in preparation for further expected outbreaks by bands of Korean communists.

Radicals were reported in Rengo News Agency dispatches from Suel, Korea, to have bombed and burned Japanese consulates, buildings and schools of the Korean Association.

Ordered From Farm, Kills Owner, Self

GALIEN, Mich., June 2.—(AP.)—Enraged because he had been served with notice to vacate a 60 acre grain and stock farm, a mile west of this village, Jacob Till, 37-year-old tenant, shot and killed the farm owner, Henry Krug; Chicago coal dealer. Till fled to a wood on the back of the farm, where he killed himself when surrounded by a score of officers and armed farmers.

Supposed Dead Man Wakes From Coma in Morgue

LOGAN, W. Va., June 2.—(INS.)—More than five hours after he had been pronounced dead, Edgar Cornelius, 22, of Liberty, Indiana, who is a victim of an epileptic disease, came to life and demanded, "where am I?"

Undertakers were standing over him, ready to embalm the body.

Cornelius was found in a state of coma near Taplin yesterday and brought to the county jail. He had previously fled from a local hospital.

He was officially pronounced dead, but when the embalmers stood over the body, Cornelius awoke from his coma and wanted to know why he was laid out on the marble slab.

He was removed to a local hospital, where, though he has elapsed into unconsciousness, his condition was reported as good.

SAFE CRACKERS ROB GROCERY

Safe-crackers hammered open a strong box in the office of the Societa Prodotti Nazionali, Inc., wholesale grocers, 1905 Penn avenue, and escaped with $40. John Lucas, manager of the company, reported to police today.

Lucas discovered the robbery when he opened the office this morning. He told police that a watchman employed by the company during the night had noticed nothing unusual and that the safe must have been robbed during Sunday.

The cracksmen gained entrance to the building through a rear window on the first floor.

W. Va. Graduates Hear Dr. Wishart

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., June 2.—(AP.)—The 562 members of West Virginia University's 1930 graduating class heard the Rev. Dr. W. I. Wishart, pastor of the Eighth United Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, urge them to "listen to God through their conscience" in performing their life's work. The baccalaureate sermon was delivered in the field house before an audience of 5,000.

Today Dr. Frederick B. Robinson, president of the College of the City of New York, will deliver the commencement address. Dr. John Roscoe Turner, president of the university, will present the diplomas to the largest graduating class in the institution's history.

STUDENT FLIER DIES IN CRASH

WINDSOR, Ont., June 2.—(AP.)—Nicholas J. Shafer, 19, of Detroit, a student flier, was killed tonight in a crash of a plane in which he was making a solo flight. The plane went out of control and fell 2,000 feet to the ground with the throttle wide open.

Shafer had made three attempts to land during the flight, but went up again, although officials at Walker Airport said he could have made a safe landing each time. Then the machine suddenly went into a nose dive, straightened out and dived again.

Someone Looks Like Garbo And Sixteen Women Are Flattered

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright 1930 by Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph)

HOLLYWOOD, June 2.

Dorothy Burgess recounts that tother eve whilst dining at ye Ambassador, there was one of those unaccountable lulls that frequently blanket a large gathering. You know, they're supposed to happen 20 minutes after the hour, or something of the sort. From the lull shrilled a voice:

"She looks exactly like Greta Garbo!"

"And" vivifies Dorothy, "16 women tried not to appear self conscious!"

"BEAU GESTE" AGAIN

HEARSAYS: That Famous Players has purchased "The Round Up," one time popular play that starred Macklyn Arbuckle. That it was originally intended for George Bancroft but all Bancroft intentions are in abeyance until a later "optional date."

That Fox has purchased "Beau Geste" from Paramount and plans to put Warner Baxter in the role Ronald Colman created.

Just hearsay, to be sure, but hearsay is no stranger than truth at times.

Dorothy Burgess.

OFF TO HONOLULU

Next Saturday, providing all goes well, Harold Lloyd and his "Safety Last" (that is the title isn't it?) troupe sail from San Francisco en route to Honolulu, with plenty of nocturnal shooting aboard ship.

The University of Southern California informs me that Dr. Bruce Magill Harrison, its professor of biology, will spend the summer in the interior of Borneo on a scientific expedition sponsored jointly by the university and Universal Pictures. Dr. Harrison departs June 5. He reckons to photograph the natural movements and sounds of the strange people, apes, animals, fish, birds and plants in the jungle. Listens darn intriguing. Wonder if anyone in Dr. Harrison's troupe has read Carveth Wells' "Six Years in the Malay Jungle."

FAME FOR LION

The M. G. M. lion has achieved the height of fame. A cartoon in this week's New Yorker depicts two chaps standing in front of one of the lions guarding the entrance to New York's public library at Forty-second street and Fifth avenue. The caption reads: "Let's go in here. Metro-Goldwyn pictures are always good."

If that isn't fame, I'll eat your hat, too.

And now Bert Wheeler is being discussed as the star for a talky version of "Charley's Aunt." Recollect when Syd Chaplin starred in this hilarious funster?

"LADIES OF LEISURE" FEATURES BILL IN HARRIS

"Ladies of Leisure," based on the Belasco play, Ladies of the Evening, opened its premiere downtown showing in the Harris Saturday. Barbara Stanwyck, talented actress, and Ralph Graves are featured.

The story has to do with one of those not so good little girls who becomes an artist's model and then falls in love with him. The artist can't see her at first, but eventually romance gets him too and the happy fadeout has them in each others arms.

The production is sophisticated drama. There is some melodramatics with a woman jumping into the sea from an ocean liner and that sort of thing. The picture and Miss Stanwyck's performances won praise from the critics when it recently had its Pittsburgh premiere in the Sheridan Square.

Victor Graff continues as the stage feature. He sings and leads Ralph Harrison's band, the R. K. Oliaus, in some entertaining numbers.

TWO WRITERS ASSAIL DRAMATIC LEAGUE PROMOTER

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Recent announcement in this department of the plans for a new subscription series of plays in Pittsburgh under the name of the Dramatic League of Pittsburgh has caused two writers to take their pens in hand and to dash off letters to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. One is communication from Chester B. Story, president of the Pittsburgh Drama League. The other writer is Elmer Kenyon, former instructor in the Schenley High School, honorary president of the Pittsburgh Drama League, now associated with the Theater Guild, which for two seasons has conducted successful subscription drama in Pittsburgh among other cities.

Mr. Story is interested, he states, in the similarity of title assumed by the new project which was launched here last week by Frederick Donaghey in behalf of the Shuberts, to that of the organization which he heads. The local drama league, he stated, has been functioning here for 18 years and he intimates that the addition of "tic" of the newer title is "to make it appear that the scheme is of local and independent origin."

PURELY ALTRUISTIC

"The Drama League of Pittsburgh," writes Mr. Story, "is a purely altruistic organization to foster attendance at such drama as has been found upon inspection to be worthy of support, and has not ever engaged itself to commend plays merely upon the assurances and promises of merit. This letter is, therefore, a protest against misleading and unwarranted appropriation by Mr. Donaghey and his employers of the name of a long-established and non-commercial organization in Pittsburgh under the presumed technical plea that three units of the alphabet have been added to it."

Mr. Kenyon takes up the matter from the viewpoint of a loyal representative of the Theater Guild.

DRAMA—OLD AND NEW

"The writer," he states, "is surprised that Mr. Donaghey finds it necessary to involve in his publicity for his employers the Theater Guild. The league, he says, unlike the Theater Guild, gives new plays while they are new, the aspersion being that the latter gives an 'old' play like 'Strange Interlude' after it has had a Broadway run. Apparently, he at the same time said that the league would not be given in Pittsburgh under the subscription plan the two plays that he regards as successes out of the crop of this season. No, audiences here would have to pay full prices for these. The subscribers are to have only the plays that are 'new' and presumably untried in America. If that is the Shubert 'selling point', one would think that good business ethics would suggest to Mr. Donaghey the better wisdom of merely making it without dragging in the Theater Guild at all."

KNOW WHAT TO EXPECT

Mr. Kenyon proceeds to state that the Theater Guild has sent as quickly as conditions permitted the guild plays that have won the highest commendation in New York, and that, unlike guild supporters in the latter city, local subscribers know beforehand of the merit of the offerings through the testimony of audiences and critics.

"The Theater Guild," Mr. Kenyon concludes, "also will send to Pittsburgh during the coming season 'new plays while they are new,' but will not withhold from its subscribers those already stamped as successes on the absurd theory that playgoers no not prefer to have the benefit of subscription reduction of prices on such plays."

Bowman to Return Late This Month

Chancellor John G. Bowman, of Pitt University, now touring Europe, will be back in his office at the university the latter part of June, according to a letter just received from him. Mr. Bowman writes that after concluding his visit at St. Ives, England, he will make a short tour to Kent and Norway, returning directly from the latter place to Pittsburgh. He has been absent from this city for two months.

Van Essen, Maurer Socialist Nominees

READING, Pa., June 2.—(AP.)—Their annual convention over, Socialist leaders in Pennsylvania left Reading today with plans to win more legislative seats at Harrisburg and to increase the party enrollment. The ticket, ratified yesterday, is headed by Dr. William J. Van Essen, Pittsburgh, for United States Senator, and Councilman James H. Maurer, Reading, for governor.

Brookline Club to Install Officers

The final meeting of the year will be held by the Brookline Woman's Civic Club in the Methodist Church tomorrow night at which time installation of new officers will be held. A board meeting is called for 7 o'clock and the regular meeting will be held at 8 o'clock. Officers and chairmen of the various activities will submit their reports.

Fifty to Graduate At McKees Rocks

Miles Bryan High School, McKees Rocks, and Stowe Township High School are arranging for their annual commencement exercises. The exercises in Stowe Township will be held June 8, when 70 students will be awarded diplomas. Exercises will be held in McKees Rocks June 17, there being 50 graduates.

Comedy

Marie Dressler appears to be hopping mad, but she's hopping even when she isn't mad in "Caught Short," comedy screen feature of the current bill in the Penn.

DAVIS TO TALK HERE FLAG DAY

James J. Davis, secretary of Labor and Republican nominee for United States senator, will be the principal speaker at the eleventh annual community Flag Day celebration which Allegheny Lodge, B. P. O. Elks will stage in East Park, North Side, June 14. American Legion posts and North Side high school students will also participate in the celebration.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park also will speak. The Rev. James R. Cox will pronounce the invocation. Henry R. Fowler is heading the committee on arrangements.

Drivers Awarded Safety Certificates

George E. Clarkson, manager of the interfleet drivers' safety contest just held by the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council and the Better Traffic Committee today announced the awarding of no accident certificates to 2,783 commercial vehicle operators who were entered in the contest. Clarkson's report shows that 3,610 cars in 68 fleets operated for a total of 4,469,439 hours with 236 personal injuries and 1,937 accidents involving property damage.

For Normal Girlhood

"My daughter Magdalen did not seem to develop as she should. At times she had no pep at all and couldn't get her school work very easily. For four years we doctored her off and on. Then a friend told us how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her years ago, so I got a bottle for Magdalen. Her nerves are quieting, her general health is better and she is now as normal as other girls."—Mrs. J. Bartholdi, Thompson's Addition, The Dalles, Oregon.

61ST ANNIVERSARY

STATE SYNODS CUT OPPOSED

READING, Pa., June 2.—(AP.)—Clergymen from this district are going to the annual meeting, opening tonight in Philadelphia, of the Lutheran Ministerium of Pennsylvania and adjacent states prepared to oppose the proposed redistributing of the state's six synods into four, as proposed at various meetings in the past year.

Although providing a small number of synods, the ministerium, largest of the six groups, would suffer a loss of territory and membership. This county alone has over 36,000 communicant Lutherans in the ministerium. The East Pennsylvania Synod, another body meeting here 10 days ago, voted in favor of the four-synod plan.

Edge and Tardieu Discuss All Issues

PARIS, June 2.—(AP.)—Premier Tardieu had a long conference with Ambassador Edge this morning, at which there was a "general discussion of all pending questions between France and the United States."

The ambassador had met the premier several times in a social way, but today's meeting was a long deferred conference on business and diplomatic matters. On previous occasions when meetings were planned Premier Tardieu was unavoidably absent and the ambassador was on a trip to investigate business and economic conditions in Southern France.

Swedish Cabinet Out Over Wheat Tariff

STOCKHOLM, June 2.—(AP.)—The Swedish cabinet resigned today as a consequence of the government's defeat in both chambers of the Riksdag Saturday on the proposal for an increased tariff on imported wheat.

The cabinet, headed by Admiral Arvid Lindman, was appointed October 2, 1928. The cabinet has been of Conservative complexion, although the Moderates have not had a majority in either chamber.

Bridegroom Jailed In Fatal Shooting

DENVER, Col., June 2.—(AP.)—A bridegroom of less than 24 hours, Everett E. Stewart, today was in custody here, while officers investigated the fatal shooting of C. W. Maloney, a friend, believed the victim of a tragic joke.

Stewart fired at Maloney, he said, after his bride screamed that she was being held up. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart both said Maloney approached them and told the woman to "stick 'em up."

OHIO MAN SLAIN IN DRY RAID

MARTINS FERRY, O., June 2.—Shot in a dry raid when he is alleged to have pointed a gun at an officer, John Terazakis, 48, proprietor of a confectionery store at Yorkville, died early today in the Martins Ferry Hospital.

When Caleb Harris, deputy town marshal of Yorkville, went to Terazakis' place Thursday, he reported, the latter threatened to shoot him with a revolver. Harris pulled his gun and fired one shot, the bullet entering Terazakis' neck.

Harris told his story to Prosecuting Attorney George C. McKelvey, of Belmont County, and was not arrested. He will be summoned to appear at the inquest. Last March Terazakis is said to have driven off prohibition officers with a rifle.

ITALIANS SET FLIGHT MARK

ROME, June 2.—(INS.)—Maj. Umberto Maddalena and Lieut. Fausto Ceconi, today had established a new aviation record for sustained flight by remaining aloft 67 hours 15 minutes.

The previous record for sustained flight, without refueling, was 65 hours, 25 minutes, made by Johan Ristic and Hans Zimmerman, German fliers, over Dessau in 1928.

The flight was made over a fixed course and the two men landed only after their fuel was exhausted.

The plane was a monoplane built by the Savoia Company and powered with a 550-horsepower Fiat engine.

Maddalena gained fame for locating Gen. Umberto Nobile and his stranded Italia survivors on the ice north of Spitzbergen. He is preparing for a non-stop flight attempt to the Panama Canal, according to his present plans.

LAWES WARNS OF PRISON PERIL

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—If more prison uprisings are to be averted state legislatures must be stirred out of their "apathy" in meeting the problem of better housing and personnel in the conduct of prisons.

This is the opinion of Lewis E. Lawes, a visitor here who is entering his eleventh year as warden of Sing Sing Prison at Ossining, N. Y., and has been for 25 years in prison work in the Empire State.

"Dumping experienced and inexperienced prisoners together in crowded institutions is terrible," he said.

"I am not in favor of our Baumes law in New York, which requires fourth term felony offenders to be sentenced to life imprisonment, and neither is Mr. Baumes himself, who told me three weeks ago he is going to recommend that it be modified."

NEW YORK, June 2.—State Senator Baumes, author of the Baumes law, whose attention was called to Warden Lawes' statement, last night said:

"Mr. Lawes apparently is in error as to my view. What I did say was that the Baumes commission probably would consider conferring larger powers on the parole board, but there was never any intention of restoring discretionary power to the trial judges."

in a cigarette it's Taste

KNOWING WHAT TO DO—and doing it—that's what carries a man up . . . and a cigarette, too.

PUTTING FIRST THINGS FIRST—good taste, uniform quality, aroma, flavor—Chesterfield's popularity is built on knowing what smokers want . . . and giving it unfailingly.

TASTE—THAT'S THE ANSWER and that's what smokers get in Chesterfield in fullest measure—the flavor and aroma of mellow tobaccos, exactly blended and cross-blended, all to a single, satisfying end . . . "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT "OFFICE WIVES"?

BECAUSE the private secretary comes so close to her employer she has set herself a new standard of men. The young business woman who may not be at all emotionally involved with the man to whom she gives her working hours, finds nevertheless that her personal life is colored and complicated by her association with this man. And if she has standards of comparison, so, by the same token, has the business man. How many business men wish futilely that their homes could be run as well as their offices, and their wives comprehend their needs as swiftly as their secretaries!

"No woman," said Ted O'Hara brutally, "gives herself, sacrifices herself for a job. The only reason is—for a man." And though Anne Murdock was femininely angry at that, she knew well enough it was true.

Once she had admitted to herself that she loved her employer, Lawrence Eaton, of the Eaton Advertising Agency, Anne found that she could not visualize the job without the man. An ambitious young woman from a small suburban home, she had thought when she got her job that she could remain more worker than woman, even with so dangerously attractive a man as Eaton. Later, becoming aware of their mutual attraction, she had planned to use it as any young business woman would—for the protection it might afford her.

BYRD AND GREEN GET MEDALS

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP.)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Hastings Hart, of New York, penologist, have been chosen to receive the Roosevelt medals for distinguished service this year.

The announcement, made last night by James R. Garfield, president of the Roosevelt Memorial Association, said the medals would be bestowed at a banquet at the Roosevelt house in East Twentieth street, New York, October 27, the seventy-second anniversary of President Roosevelt's birth. The awards were established by the association in 1923.

Rear Admiral Byrd will be honored for "the expression of pioneer virtues in the course of his flights over the North and South poles and his explorations of Antarctica. Mr. Green was chosen for his work in the advancement of industrial peace, and Mr. Hart for his work in promotion of social justice, especially in connection with prison farm reform, which he began as secretary of the Minnesota Board of Correction 40 years ago.

7 DEAD, WRECK LAID TO PLOT

MONTEREAU, France, June 2.—(AP.)—Officials today said the wrecking of the Paris-Nice express, with death of seven persons Saturday night, was caused by a handcar placed across the track here.

Minister of Public Works Georges Pernot announced the authorities were considering the possibility the car was left on the track with criminal intent. The dead included two men, two women and three children. Eight were hurt seriously and a score slightly.

Premier Tardieu had travelled over the same line four hours earlier, but officials scouted the idea that the train was wrecked in an attempt against his life.

"I FEEL LIKE 23 INSTEAD OF 53;" THANKS KONJOLA

Lady Tells How Six Bottles of New and Different Medicine Ended Stomach Trouble.

Daily Konjola, the new and different medicine, is winning new friends and fame in Pittsburgh and wherever introduced. There is a reason for such outstanding success and that reason can be summed up in just three words—Konjola Makes Good.

MRS. ANNA B. HARRIS

And Konjola makes good in those stubborn cases that have defied and resisted all other medicines and treatments tried. All who suffer and who would be well again are urged to find out about the merits of Konjola from the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh. There daily he is telling the wonderful story of this wonderful medicine and passing out free samples and free literature.

Daily many men and women call on the Konjola Man to tell of the benefits derived through the use of Konjola. Although many state that one bottle of this super-remedy brought amazing relief, it is recommended that six or eight bottles be taken to obtain the best results. Konjola works at the very source and fount of the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. It might have been compounded by Nature, for it works with Nature in cleansing and invigorating and paving the way for the return of new and glorious health.

Decide to profit from the experiences of others. Read the happy words of Mrs. Anna B. Harris, 916 Page Street, McKees Rocks, Pa., near Pittsburgh, who said to the Konjola Man:

"For several years I suffered from stomach trouble and a general run-down condition. Nothing that I tried did me the least bit of good until I took Konjola. Six bottles of this splendid medicine made me feel like twenty-three years old instead of fifty-three. Thank Heaven for Konjola."

Konjola was not designed to bring more temporary relief. Its goal is far beyond that. Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals. It needs no such hazardous ingredients in coming wonders to perform. All that is asked for this medicine is that it be given a chance to prove its merits.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, introducing and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine.

FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man.

Konjola is sold also by all Dow stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 2.—(Special.)—Giant Radio strode the boardwalk of this famous seaside resort today as 30,000 dealers from United States and Canada gathered to preview models which will attract the public eye this fall.

The playground is gaily festooned. Special lights and flags along the promenade proclaim "Radio Trade Week" and loud speakers everywhere make the radio men feel right at home. Hotels are crowded.

RADIO WHO'S WHO

In a city block one may find the "Who's Who" in radio. Big men . . . big names. They're all here . . . manufacturers, dealers, distributors, artists, announcers.

Milton J. Cross, the diction medal winner, came down for a short time today. He's a robust fellow with snappy eyes and a pleasant manner. He probably will announce the big banquet Wednesday night.

Mr. Cross didn't forget to mention the certificate voted him by Sun-Telegraph readers in the radio popularity poll conducted last January. The award hangs in the National Broadcasting studios alongside the gold medal given Mr. Cross for perfect diction on the radio, he said.

ELECTRIC GREETING

Our first thrill last night was a monstrous electric sign, "Welcome Radio Industry," which blinked a greeting to more than 500 in our party as we alighted from the train. The sign, perched atop one of the city's tallest buildings, weighs 10,000 pounds and is bigger than any three fancy signs which deck the hills back in dear old Pittsburgh. Each letter weighs 500 pounds.

Millions of dollars' worth of radio products were opened to private gaze this morning in the Civic Auditorium—itself a $15,000,000 product. For the first time in six years the Trade Show is concentrated on one floor—but, oh! what a hike to see everything. We expect to view the exhibit by wheel chair. Won't that be classy?

Tomorrow we shall tell you more about it.

PITTSBURGHERS PRESENT

"Jim" Simpson, manager of the Pittsburgh Radio Show, was busy with notebook and pencil this morning scheduling stars for the grand fiesta in Duquesne Garden this fall.

Radio Ralph and Radio Rex—those faithful servants of "WE NOW PRESENT"—are busy tabulating this Pittsburgh crowd which certainly must be over 1,000. After a whiff of good ocean breeze in the Knickerbocker last night they reported seeing these Pittsburgh radio leaders on the boardwalk early this morning, collecting souvenirs and preparing to make merry for the convention:

L. R. Middleman, M. V. Mansfield, Will Boate, Elmer Hamburg, Louis Hamburg, John O. Olson, Wallace Russell, James A. Simpson, P. W. Ewell, Ralph Silverman, Max Fischman, Walter Baer, A. A. Buehn, J. Blackheads, Pores —how Awful!

There's no use trying to hide large pores, blackheads and oily skin behind make-up. You only fool yourself.

Out in Hollywood they have the recipe for a lotion that quickly removes flaws and makes the skin beautiful and soft. Get 3 ounces of Orchard White from the druggist and mix it with the juice of 3 lemons. You have a full quarter-pint of the finest lotion.

The very minute you pat this cooling, reviving lotion on the face it gets down deep into the skin and cleans out the dirt that settles in large pores. It removes blackheads, closes the pores and quickly makes the skin smooth, good-looking and youthfully fresh.

You'll notice, too, that the skin is no longer oily and perspiration doesn't bother you any more.

Now if you want a smooth, soft, beautiful skin—just get 3 ounces of Orchard White from any druggist, mix it with the juice of 2 lemons and you have the new Hollywood beauty lotion.

Note: In the summer this lotion keeps the skin free from freckles and guards against that leathery look caused by wind and sun.

"Nerves" on Edge?

Start today to get rid of nervousness, sleeplessness, and increase vitality by taking a tablespoon of Tanlac before each meal and bedtime for two weeks.

Nothing like it to rid you of that tired, strained feeling and sleepless nights. It must help you, or money back.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

Mr. William Yorick Pfarr is on his vacation. That is good, particularly for Mr. Pfarr.

Before he left, appreciating that his readers got very little insight into his better self, he consented to an interview. That is, he admitted a few things. He would not admit everything. That's one of his characteristics.

But a general idea of the man whose middle name is Yorick, I believe, may be gleaned from these facts:

He got his fame as a coiner of phrases. To him is credited that great line:

"Alas, poor Yorick."

Or is it? Perhaps I'm confused. It may not have been he who said that. Perhaps it was that other Bill—Shakespeare. At least I'm certain he coined an equally famous, and even more cutting line. Once I heard him say:

"You remind me of the second act at the Bijou."

Mr. Pfarr did say that. In the interview he admitted that he had never been at the Bijou.

But to cut Mr. Pfarr's character cameo-like, as they say, is to write about what He likes to read.

He has been spending his leisure hours during the winter reading two things principally: a magazine on bicycle lore and the weather reports. About the latter, he's very keen. A repetitive phase preys on his mind. Often, out of a blue sky (I quote him directly), he says and says:

"Over the Plain States today, a high pressure area is causing a new disturbance."

That's how he started on his vacation. Reading so impresses the mind. He decided, reporter-like, to go to the Plain States to find out what these disturbances were, and write a series of articles about them to be published, probably, when he returned. They will also probably be printed in some other paper, perhaps, a paper in Arkansas which he also reads.

The other reading matter on bicycle lore suggested an inexpensive trip to him. He has taken a bicycle with him. It is attached to the back of a friend's $3,000 auto. He plans, when tired of riding in the auto to get his exercises on the bicycle, and if possible, to play bicycle golf, a game he invented in Schenley Park's course.

He admitted none of this, but it's generally known by his intimates. What he did say was this:

"My middle name is not Yorick, but Francis. But we'll forget that. I am not going to the Plain States, nor am I taking a bicycle. I'm going to Cambridge Springs to play golf and thence to New York to give Winchell a couple of paragraphs. Get me up a couple of columns for the first few days I'm back to work."

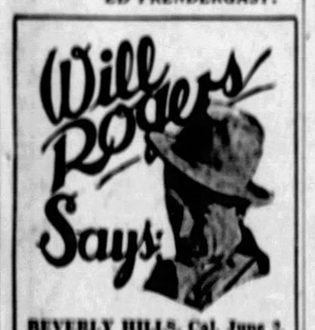
Mr. Pfarr is always succinct. However, in later columns, we hope to keep him informed on what's going on in Sidewalks. Any messages to him will be sent through this column. But they must be good.

Yours,
ED PRENDERGAST.



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal. June 2.

Read the new census talk about putting a quota on immigration. Why, the Yankees are swarming into the South like locusts. Get some of these gains:

Houston, Tex., Jesse Jones showed a gain of 110 per cent. Best bet in the South. Atlanta 73 per cent gain. Will be Houston's nearest rival in 20 years. Miami 273 per cent, Oklahoma City 100 per cent, Amon Carterville, (registered under the post-office name of Fort Worth) away over 100 per cent. Tulsa 95 per cent, Birmingham 44, Memphis 55, San Antonio, 57, and the Carolinas just packed 'em in. Only one drawback, the rascals bring their Republican politics with 'em. They ought to be met at the line and deloused. Yours

AUTOS CLAIM FIVE LIVES; 13 INJURED

GIRL UNAFRAID

By GLADYS JOHNSON

Ardeth Consoles Ken After Death of His Baby

CHAPTER XLVI.

Her first thought was that Ken had been drinking to excess. His face was ghastly, his eyes wild. It was his will alone which was holding him together.

"I shouldn't be here, of course," he began in an unnaturally calm voice, "but I had to come. You see . . . he died. The baby."

"The baby! Oh, Ken . . ."

He nodded very gravely. "Poor old Colonel. Such a little thing. So little, Ardeth."

"When?" she asked gently.

"Four days ago. They buried him yesterday. Such a tiny casket. I never realized that babies took such little caskets."

"Where is Cecile?" her voice was sharp.

"Cecile? Oh! . . . She's gone away. Her nerves, you know. She's awfully nervous. She went on a trip. It was all planned before—before . . . And there wasn't any use staying here, you see. She—she couldn't change matters . . . So—she's gone. Last night, I think it was. I'm sort of mixed on dates. Days and nights got tangled."

Ardeth put the key in the lock and pushed him gently ahead of her into the dark shop.

She lit the lamp in the back room and looked at Ken. She saw then that he was dazed with fatigue. His face was white and it shone moist in the soft light.

"What have you been doing, Ken?" she asked gently as she pushed him toward the couch.

Talks of Baby
Ardeth Insists Hearing Ken's Troubles

He looked up in weary surprise. Wrinkled his forehead. "Walking. I think I walked all over the city. It sort of helps to walk. Shouldn't have come here—" He made an effort to pull himself together. "Get you in a row if people saw . . . But I couldn't get you out of my mind. You liked the little fellow. I wanted to be with someone who—who liked him."

He sighed deeply. Leaned over and planted his elbows on his knees. Wisely, Ardeth, let him talk.

"You called him pretty—" Ken's low voice. "He wasn't, of course . . . Not like other babies. But I guess even a baby likes to be called pretty. And he was awfully bright. An awfully bright little fellow. Funny, isn't it, it helps to talk about him . . ."

"Go on," said the girl softly. She had slipped out of her coat and hat and seated herself on the couch beside him. "Tell me some more, Ken."

He slanted a weary blue glance up at her. "Gee . . . you're sweet, Ardeth. Well . . . he had a lot of personality. Not like a baby. Like an older person, you know."

Understands
Ardeth Cries as Ken Tells of Baby

Remembering the old soul which had looked out of those baby eyes, the girl nodded.

"I had an idea he was lonely," Ken went on. "He seemed to like to be with me. And so good all the time! Hardly ever cried. That was the trouble. Lack of vitality, the doctor said. He seemed to come into the world tired. But somehow, I never thought about him dying. He was so cold . . . Strange to see death in a baby . . . Why, you're crying, aren't you, dear?"

He leaned over slowly and laid his lips for a moment against her wet face.

"Never thought a little fellow could knock me out like that. And I thought of you. I wanted to see you. I knew you'd understand how I feel—" He drew a long weary sigh.

Ardeth rose. "I'm going to make you some hot tea, Ken. You're shaking with chill. Lean back against the pillows, dear. Put your feet up. That's it—"

She put a small pan of water on the gas jet which stood behind a screen. Put tea in the blue pot. Took a cup and saucer from the cupboard.

When she came back to the couch with the steaming cup, Ken was asleep.

For a moment she stood motionless looking down at his unconscious face. Relaxed like this, something of the bleakness had faded from his face. There was something of the gay Ken she remembered. She put out a hand and smoothed back the damp brown hair.

So intent, she was, that she did not see the face pressed to the alley window. The paint which Jeanette had put on it when she planned the Smokerie, had worn thin from many washings, and the yellow theatrical gauze which draped it did not hide the room from one looking in from the dark alley.

Unaware that she was watched, Ardeth flung a blanket over Ken's long figure. Then she reached over and pulled the cord of the floor lamp. The room blinked into a darkness relieved only by the dim rose glow of a night lamp.

Ardeth sat down in the big chair and closed her eyes. But not to sleep. She sat in the stillness broken only by Ken's weary breathing and now and then a troubled mumble.

Past Closed
Future for Ardeth Looks Dark

Too tired to think . . . only pictures of the night came crowding back on her. Pictures like the troubled fragments of a dream.

Neil and old Granny in the red kitchen. Ah, the past was closed to her. Nothing for her there. Not even if she would, could she re-enter. And the future . . .? A future where she could not follow Ken, even to comfort him. That Ken should turn to her for comfort for the dead child! The irony of life.

A wave of pitying love went from her, leaving her weak and sick. This moment—snatched from fate. These quiet hours, hidden from the world. Ken and herself . . . Ken, more truly her own than he had ever been. For this brief time she had him — had him to comfort — to strengthen. A fierce, protecting ownership welling up in her heart.

She went over to kneel softly beside the couch. Ken and herself, in this stolen hour. Hidden in the dark heart of the city. Ken, turning to her, a refuge . . . She felt unshed tears in her throat.

She studied his face. So thin . . . The sensitive mouth compressed in sleep as though he still held himself together by sheer force of will.

Her own. This proved it, didn't it? This instinctive turning to her for comfort? They belonged to each other. A thousand things proved it!

The tears were hanging on her lashes now. One splashed to his face.

And suddenly his eyes were open. Looking steadily up into her own, very wide and dark in this dim light.

His arm went about her neck, drawing her face down on his own.

WE SEE NO EVIL, CONSTABLES REPORT

'Blind Men'—Except One—Find Districts Spotless; Dozen Called for Inquiry

Allegheny County put on its quarterly comedy today.

The big spot on the bill was the Blind Man's parade. Scores of constables declared they lived in communities that were spotless. There is no vice in Heaven and Allegheny County, they say. Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Klunk did the questioning. The constables answered.

"Is there gambling in your bailiwick?" Klunk would ask.

"There's no gambling in my bailiwick," was the usual answer.

"Are there scofflaws selling booze outside the law?"

"Not a single bootlegger," they assured.

The parade of constables began shortly after 10 o'clock and continued until late today.

The only dissension in the constables' harmonious report was caused by Constable James W. White, of the Second Ward, Clairton. He said clearing house lottery agents were "running wild" in Clairton and that neither he nor Clairton police could cope with the situation.

Assistant District Attorney Klunk immediately ordered White to lay the facts before Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren.

DOZEN QUIZZED

Following the reports Klunk summoned a dozen constables from outlying districts to his office, and questioned them at length regarding violations reported by them previously.

About 50 constables out of 225 in the county who have failed to make their returns thus far will be summoned into court unless they file reports within a few days.

VICTIM FOUND KNEELING BY HIS BED

Morning Blaze Results in $9,000 Loss; Apartment Occupants Forced Out

Burns suffered when fire swept a building in Clairton today caused the death a short time later of John Estoto, 45, a barber. The blaze, at 502 Park avenue, caused $9,000 loss and left homeless several families who occupied apartments in the building.

Fire Chief Fred Batchelor found Estoto kneeling by his bed in the rear of the first floor of the building. Police took Estoto to the McKeesport hospital where he died.

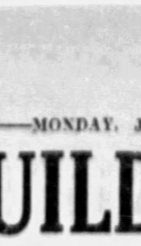
The fire started in the first floor of the building, in the front of which Estoto conducted a barber shop. Estoto's position where he was found led the fire chief to believe the man had attempted to escape but was overcome by smoke before he could reach a door.

The cause of the fire is undetermined, according to the fire chief.

The Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question: What can be done to decrease the number of fatalities caused by automobile accidents?



Miss Hibala

ELSIE HIBALA, Glenfield, stenographer: The traffic safety observers are doing good work in curbing fatal auto wrecks. A nation-wide program of traffic observers should decrease our annual accident death rate.

MARY COLEMAN, Braddock, secretary: An ordinance is before city Council to fine "jay-walkers." I think if every city in the county would pass such an ordinance and force pedestrians to use care in crossing streets a large number of fatalities would be eliminated.

Miss Coleman

IRENE FLYNN, secretary: A good way to cut down our increasing number of auto fatalities is to educate school children to the dangers of crossing streets. Civic organizations should sponsor campaigns to be held in schools throughout the country.

Miss Flynn

J. F. McMORRIS Downtown, controller: Education of drivers is the only cure for our high auto death rate. Motor clubs and other civic organizations should concentrate their efforts in pointing out traffic hazards and giving warnings of dangers that confront motorists.

J. F. McMorris

NORMAN L. PARK, East End, editor: The best way to cut down our auto fatalities is to give every driver whose automobile kills a pedestrian or auto passenger a sentence of from one to three years in a penitentiary. Almost everyone regards auto accidents as unavoidable but they are avoidable.

Norman L. Park

JOHN HOPPER, Downtown, traffic policeman: Much depends on the motorists themselves. A driver could aid in decreasing accidents if he wished to show care and use good judgment. I believe that the average motorist usually trys to be careful and fair to the other fellow.

BUS STATION, AGENCIES ROBBED

Garage, Rent-a-Car Offices Held Up; 2 Service Stores On North Side Are Looted

Police today still were without trace of the three armed bandits who staged six holdups, four of them in the downtown district, within 15 minutes early yesterday.

Their first invasion in the downtown section was on the Nevin Bus Termina., at 1011 Liberty avenue, where Eugene Magyer, of 82 Flowers avenue; Harold Corbin and Walter McMahon, both of Cleveland, were ordered to throw up their hands. After looting the cash register of $7, the thugs took $9 from Magyer. They returned $1 when Magyer pleaded for car fare. Corbin and McMahon were not searched.

LOOT STATION

The robbers escaped in an automobile and headed for the Hertz Drive Yourself Station, at Third avenue and Grant street. There Edmond T Spath, 714 Island avenue, McKees Rocks, the night manager, and Richard Jones and Lawrence Tracey, attendants, were forced to lie on the floor while the men rifled the register of $120. Warning their victims against making an outcry, the bandits leaped into their machine and sped down Fifth avenue.

The same three, it was believed held up the Kissel-Skiles Rent-a-Car Company at 125 Seventh street. Ordering L. N. Purvis, of 1221 Reddour street, the night manager, and N. L. Mercer, of 121 Seventh avenue, McKeesport, a patron, to lie on the floor, the thugs helped themselves to $250 in the register. They robbed Mercer of $110 and Purvis of $15.

SPEED OVER BRIDGE

In the office of the Seventh Street Garage, in the same building, the robbers confronted William Kimball, Negro attendant, with revolvers. Failing to open the cash drawer, they hurried back to their automobile and sped over the Seventh Street Bridge.

Two hours before the downtown holdups, two service stations on the North Side were robbed. The places raided were the Down automobile service stations, one at 1968 East Ohio street, where $51 was stolen and one at 3150 East street, where $150 was obtained.

BABY DESERTED, HUNT MOTHER

Detectives today were endeavoring to locate a young, well-dressed woman who was seen walking out of Candy way, in the rear of 100 block Wood street, shortly after a baby girl, gagged, was found in a rubbish barrel yesterday.

Moore removed the gag from the baby's mouth and took it to the Rosella Maternity Hospital, where it was said to be enjoying good health. On the infant's clothing was a note which said she was born on May 15.

Leisser; Oldest Artist, Lives for Present

By PENELOPE REDD.

The oldest, active painter in the town, Martin B. Leisser, well beyond 80, is the last of a brilliant galaxy of Americans whose Bohemian apprenticeship was spent in Munich when that city was the world's art teaching center.

Penelope Redd

In his studio at 833 Ridge avenue, North Side, Mr. Leisser will pause courteously while painting the rhododendrons from his garden, to answer a question or two. But to write reminiscenses—never. That is for my old age, he replies.

Martin Leisser went to Munich immediately after our own Civil War and stayed on through the Franco-Prussian War. Two fellow-townsmen, John Alexander and Stanley Reinhardt, both to become famous, were also at the Munich Academy. William Chase and Frank Duveneck, who were to become great teaching forces, were also in the group.

Mr. Leisser's photographs of these carefree, gallant youths, is prophetic of the epoch of bravura painting which they launched.

Leisser's early studies, made in Munich and Rothenburg, expresses his youthful interest in the romantic period when Ludwig, the mad king, was not a legend but a royal personage far more haughty in his public appearances in Munich than was the Emperor William I.

MEETS REBUFFS

When Martin Leisser returned to Pittsburgh from the happy camraderie of Munich, he turned to the Art Society as a place where one might expect congenial colleagues. But the Art Society at that time was so exclusive that he was not deemed worthy of acceptance until the sixth presentation of his name. Today he is the oldest member of that group.

Mr. Leisser did not settle down to a parochial life. We see him a pioneer artist at Atlantic City painting his first marine in 1876. We find him in the Southwest in 1878 with Robert Whitebreck, another Pittsburgher, who was construction manager of the Rio Grande Railroad not yet built. Mr. Leisser sketched the wild lands from his portable studio on a mule-drawn wagon.

In 1883, with another picturesque Pittsburgh citizen, Norman Spang, Mr. Leisser explored the Lake Superior country. They used a small sail boat and camped on the shore. Spang studied the geology of the country while Leisser painted.

Martin Leisser extended his youthful explorations in unusual corners of the United States to include every section from the Everglades of Florida to the Hawaiian Islands. He also returned again and again to Europe to paint familiar places.

HOLDS FIRST CLASS

He established the first life class in Pittsburgh before the electric light was invented. The model was lighted with oil lamps and every artist carried his own candles for extra light.

In the interludes when he was not traveling, Mr. Leisser painted portraits of his friends, many of them now distinguished in the city's life. The members of Thomas Liggett's and of F. J. Riebel's families are among his well known group portraits. He has done scores of individual portraits, notably those of Mrs. Enoch Rauh, Dr. Frank Buttner, John Slack, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Carroll, George Seibel, I. E. Hirsch and the late John T. Simpson, of Kittanning.

Mr. Leisser has painted such widely contrasting personalities as Eugene Debs and Andrew Carnegie. Incidentally, his portrait of Carnegie is the only one painted by an intimate friend of Carnegie's, and it is also done by an original member of the Fine Arts Committee at the Institute. Martin Leisser's easy, informal portrait of munificient Saint Andrew should properly be acquired for the collection at the Carnegie Institute.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Ann Buchanan's Wedding Ushers in Month of Brides and Roses

All during the "merrie month of May" I have been telling you about June brides, and now June is here and the June brides, too, and I know of a wedding that is taking place today, and nearly every day, for that matter, of this romantic month has its quota of weddings, quiet home affairs or stately church weddings.

And now I will tell you about today's bride.

Ann Buchanan, daughter of the Edward Robell Buchanans of Dennistoun avenue, is marrying Donald Albert Burdett of New Haven. Come at noon in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, with the Rev. Dr. H. Boyd Edwards, rector, officiating.

And the bride is wearing a simple afternoon gown of rose-beige lace and chiffon. Her sister, who is her matron of honor and only attendant, is wearing grey and blue lace. The bride's mother is wearing an afternoon dress of chartreuse green lace and chiffon.

And as I told you before, Burdett Gibson, of New York, is the best man and the bride's brother, Edward P. Buchanan, is one of the ushers, and another is Kelsey H. Jewett, of Buffalo, N. Y.

And after the wedding there is a reception in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, all the beautifully decorated with spring flowers and roses, palms and ferns.

The youthful Burdetts will make their home in New Haven, Conn., after a wedding trip.

There's a wedding of marked social importance taking place today in Baltimore, that of Elizabeth Cugle, daughter of the Edwin Cugles and John Baldwin Neil Benney, son of the Albert Barnes Benneys of Edgeworth. The ceremony is taking place late this afternoon in the Memorial Protestant Episcopal Church of Baltimore with the Rev. Benjamin Lovett, the rector, as officiant.

Benney Dinner

Some time ago I told you who would be the bride's attendants, and that Richard R. Quay, Jr., would be best man. And now I want to enumerate the ushers.

Hugh Nevin, of Lancaster, Arunah A. Abell, and J. W. Shirley, of Baltimore, William Gordon and James Todd and George Miles, of Princeton, are ushers. On Saturday night Mr. Benney entertained his attendants and other friends at a bachelor dinner, and Elizabeth Huey, of Ruxton, Md., gave a dinner the same evening for the bride-elect and her attendants.

And now I have news of a Pittsburgh son's engagement to a Georgia girl. The Stephen Cummins Upsons, of Athens, Ga., yesterday afternoon made known the betrothal of their daughter, Matilde Lumpkin Upson, to Paul DeForest Hicks, of Pittsburgh, son of the Harry Wade Hickses of the Lake Placid Club, New York. Matilde is a graduate of the Lucy Cobb Institute, Athens, and received her bachelor of laws degree from the Lumpkin Law School of the University of Georgia. That school was founded by her great-great-grandfather, the late Joseph Henry Lumpkin, the first chief justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia, you may be interested in knowing.

LAKEHURST, N. J., June 2.—John Henry Mears, who shortly will start on his attempt to establish a new time record for round-the-world travel, flew to Lakehurst on Sunday to look over his rival.

The Mears plane was piloted by Fred Melchior, who will act as pilot in the globe-circling dash. The record at present is held by the Graf Zeppelin, which last year, in the Hearst-Zeppelin flight, girded the world in 21 days.

Mears inspected his rival carefully and said:

"Well, old girl, you may be fast but something tells me you're going to lose that record."

MUCH ATTENTION GIVEN TO BACK OF EVENING GOWNS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, JUNE 2.—However much the evening frock may be to the fore, it is individual, still very backward. Which is just to tell you that many smart frocks still display most of their charms and originality of cut and design to the back of the garment. Decolletages may be quite plain and demure in front, but once they turn the corner around the shoulders, they lose all their inhibitions and give vent to all sorts of astonishing intricacies of cut and treatment. Thus so far as evening clothes are concerned there are no two backs alike, however uniform the rest of the silhouette may be.

The skirt is given various treatments of spiral effects, puffs and panniers or panels ending in short trains all placed to the side back of the gown and maintaining a simplicity of detail for the front. It certainly cannot be said of the present day evening frock that it is all front and no back, however low its back decolletage may be.

THE WRAP becomes shorter and shorter and in some cases even shrinks to shoulder scarf size while maintaining all its interest and charm. Such a scarf is the one sketched here and created by Paquin for many important clients. The fabric is white satin, very heavy and lustrous, and both sides of the fabric is employed. Two large bows and motifs in crystal and strass embroidery are the sole trimming. The scarf is also made in chiffon or crepe in colors to complement a certain frock and should prove itself a most pleasing and useful accessory.

THE EVENING GOWN is a creation of the same house. It is of dahlia colored crepe marocain, and all the detail is found to the back of the frock. Especially intriguing is the decolletage in diagonal effect, passing from one shoulder down to the opposite hip. The other side of the bodice is caught over in a point. A foundation of flesh chiffon is seen through the open part at the lower left side. The skirt wraps gracefully around and falls in a rippling line from the left hip, trailing in a short pointed train. Inset godets are employed to create the circular ripple along the edge.

Some reports were that the changes would be extensive and amount to a reshuffling of the cabinet. It was generally expected posts would be found for at least two or three back-benchers.

The changes were said to have been decided upon at a meeting attended by MacDonald, Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, Arthur Henderson, foreign minister, and other cabinet members at Chequers yesterday.

FORT SEES HOPE FOR FARMER

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., June 2.—(AP.)—Agriculture can be placed on a paying basis in the United States without an increase of cost to the consumer, Representative Franklin W. Fort, East Orange, N. J., declared today in an address at the Founders' Day ceremony and thirty-third annual tree dedication exercises of National Farm School.

The speaker did not mention his candidacy for the United States Senate in his home state. He declared:

"Six million farmers unorganized, each growing what he pleases, when he pleases and marketing his product in competition with every other man of the 6,000,000, cannot survive in competition with the highly organized distributing organizations that feed the congested populations of the modern city.

"There is no reason in economics why a sound and efficient distributing system cannot be worked out. This must be co-ordinated with a sound and efficient producing system."

Hines Held as Drunk, Blames Cream Puffs!

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—(AP.)—Johnny Hines, film comedian, will face a jury trial June 25 on charges of being drunk in an auto. He pleaded not guilty today.

His attorney, Henry Willis, said Hines will blame cream puffs in his defense. Hines was arrested Thursday with a woman companion who, police said, fell down as she left his car.

Hines offered the explanation that they had eaten cream puffs at a party which disagreed with them, and that their illness was interpreted as liquor intoxication.

CREED HONORED BY LUTHERANS

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—(AP.)—More than 8,000 persons gathered at the American League baseball park yesterday in observance of the four hundredth anniversary of the signing of the Augsburg Confession.

Their voices carried beyond the confines of the park by loud speakers, a chorus of more than 1,000 singers united in a program of hymns and anthems. In addition to the members of 165 congregations, the chorus and a band of 40 pieces filled the lower deck of the grandstand.

The confession, oldest of creedial statements of Protestants, was written by Martin Luther and Philip Lanchton in 1530.

The history of the document was described by Prof. Abdel Ross Wentz, of Gettysburg, and its social and intellectual aspects were discussed by Judge Claude T. Reno, Lehigh County.

Aged Felon Invents Airplane Propeller

JOLIET, Ill., June 2.—(INS.)—Although he has never seen a modern airplane, John King, aged convict in the state penitentiary here, has perfected an airplane propeller of revolutionary design, which, it is reported, has brought bids from the Navy, Henry Ford and the Guggenheim Foundation, it was revealed today.

Explaining his work on the invention that may make him a millionaire, King disclosed that the idea for the propeller's design came to him in a dream while he was in solitary confinement.

For five years he worked on the plans for his invention. Recently he was allowed to make a model in the prison workshop.

CHICKIE By ELENORE MEHERIN

Doctor Shields Chickie At Coroner's Inquest

CHAPTER C.

Emily Hall was a friend of the coroner. It was soon evident.

In the hush that tightened through the room her answers tossed guilt on Chickie's face.

The coroner passed. "You attended the woman known as Mrs. John Clayton when her child was born?"

"I did and I—she wouldn't look at it. She kept her face hidden. I felt—it was a girl. She said [illegible] and she would [illegible] hold it."

Chickie [illegible]. The little still thing with its soft red hair lay at her side again. And it was true. She didn't want a girl—she didn't look at it.

The coroner continued. "You've attended many mothers with their first born. You know what mothers are. Do they usually refuse to look at their children?"

"They do not."

"How old was the baby when it was carried away by the mother?"

"Four days."

"You saw the child an hour before it was taken away?"

"I did."

"What was its condition? I mean the state of its health."

"It was well as could be expected. It was in good health."

"Was there any evidence so far, as you could see, that pointed to its hasty death?"

"None at all."

"The day of the mother's disappearance, as you remember, was cold?"

"Freezing, sir—it would cut a stone wall. And the wind blew me across the road."

"Mrs. Paris, you have children? Would you expose a new-born infant to the danger of such weather?"

"I would not."

"Did the mother show any interest in her child?"

"Yes."

"What was it?"

Yes."

The mother left your hospital within an hour after leaving her dead child in your hands?"

An hour or two."

She went with your consent?"

Dr. Emerson sat forward, leaned directly from face to face of the men sitting against the wall the coroner's jury. He paused a full moment then answered swiftly. "She went to her dying mother with my full consent and knowledge. Thank God I could do the service for her."

Doctor Quizzed

"Answer the questions, sir!"

"Ask them, your honor."

Is it regular or customary for a doctor to sign a death certificate when he knows nothing of the circumstances leading to the death?"

It is not."

How many days elapsed since your last visit to this infant and the hour of its death?"

Two and a half."

"In two days a newborn infant, even in the most robust health might come to its death from causes not apparent previously? Is this correct?"

Quite correct. It might fall from a window. It might be devoured by wolves."

Quite so. Or it might be smothered by the mother or taken out and exposed to the elements. It might be removed from a warm bed and carried abroad in the coldest wind of the year."

The doctor measured his rival and smiled. "Yes, that's true."

"In which case the infant might be brought to your hospital dead? Would you be justified in signing the death certificate without referring the case to the recognized authority—namely, the coroner?"

The doctor hesitated, sensing the trap. He said, gruffly, "I am not here to discuss theoretical questions, but to tell of a certain, definite case that has nothing to do with death from smothering or exposure."

"You can be sure of that—sure that in two days and a half neither of these things could possibly have happened?"

Very sure."

"But you admit the possibility that death might have occurred from other causes?"

To Hear Chickie

"Possibly, but in this case death was due to complete material weakness—death I looked for from the moment of the infant's birth."

"So you are willing to state that an infant admittedly weak could be exposed to a driving wind and suffer no hurt?"

I state that this child did not die from exposure. An infant of four days in robust health might be thrown in the snow, and it wouldn't die if rescued in time."

"Would you ordinarily advise a child of four days to be taken out in a driving wind storm?"

"I am not here to give advice."

"How many times did the mother of this child visit you before its birth?"

"Twice."

"Had you known her previously, or did you know the father of the child?"

"No."

"Have you ever seen the father?"

"No."

"Did it occur to you as in any way suspicious that a young mother four days after the birth of her child should rush out with it in the cold, bring her dead child to you and leave without waiting for the burial?"

"Her mother was dying."

"How did you know this?"

"She told me so."

The coroner sat back and folded his arms. "Very well—that's enough. She told you so."

Chickie was called.

(Copyright, 1930, by Elenore Meherin. Distributed by King Features Synd., Inc.)

"The Office Wife," by Faith Baldwin, the most discussed novel of the day, starts Thursday in the Sun-Telegraph.

Vicious Plan

"She seemed interested in its weakness. The morning of that day when she ran away, I brought the baby to her. I said 'See if it will nurse.' She didn't want to do it and looked at me very angrily. But I put the child right to her. After a while she said to me: 'It's so little. It wouldn't take much to smother a little thing like this—would it?'"

A gasp—then silence dropping in a pall. Jonathan's hand closing—pouring strength into hers. But the red stain flamed now in Chickie's heart. She remembered. She had said it. Just that—the very words.

Yes—she had dozed with the baby against her. She had awakened trembling with fear from a dream that she had leaned on the child and crushed it. She had told her fright to the nurse.

Now it was repeated, now it made a vicious thing—a cruel and vicious plan.

Something struck in Chickie's mind then struck wild. Perhaps it was a sudden image of that little flickering movement on the baby's lips when she had laid it on the ground, blowing the pitiful breath in its mouth.

But she rose, her hand reached out—she swayed. The words she meant to say failed. And Jonathan drew her back, drew her quiet, his arm about her. The lawyer Jake had sent whispered: "Raise your veil, Mrs. Clayton. You'll be called soon—raise your veil."

She shook her head.

"Yes—so they can hear. It will help."

The coroner asked. "What else, Mrs. Paris?"

Doctor Called

"Well, she asked me if I ever knew of a mother smothering her child like that. Of course, I never thought of anything, and I said 'Yes.' She wanted to know all about it. She asked and asked. Then she touched the baby's mouth and its cheeks. She said: 'Why, it's so small, if I were to roll over on it—it would be dead in a moment—'"

Chickie sank down in the chair. The lawyer repeated: "Raise your veil."

And she did this—showed her white face, her dark eyes. Those about her looked and turned their heads away. Her eyes were hunted things—tortured, pleading things in the marble of her face.

The coroner said: "And that afternoon the mother stole away with the child?"

"Yes."

"And that night the baby was dead?"

"Yes."

Not a breath. Women sat forward, fever in their glances.

The doctor was called. The coroner ran his big forefinger between his collar and his red, bull's neck. He blew a gusty breath from the wide nostrils.

"Is it a fact, Dr. Emerson, that the child known as Merle Clayton was brought to your office dead on the night of January 25?"

"Yes."

"You were not present at the moment of the death?"

"I was not."

"You signed the death certificate?"

"Yes."

"You took charge of the funeral arrangements?"

Household Hints

When damping clothes before ironing, warm water spreads through them better than cold.

Father may smile with the rest of the family when he sees a formidable bird come to the table if he will use this method of carving. A good number of slices of the juicy meat of the breast should be taken from each side alternately, beginning close to the wings. Next separate the legs from the body and cut into slices. A sharp knife with a very sharp point will make the carver's task a pleasant pastime.

YOUR ANCESTOR, GIRLS.

Says young Bib-and-Tucker, leaning upon his stick and pondering the picture in contrasts of a bevy of bright Glorietttes clustered about one small gray monkey: "How would a fellow know what to believe? Until now I liked my story of Adam and Eve, as a delightful and pretty fairy-tale, but I believed in evolution, my friend. But CAN I, looking from those glorified faces to our little plain friend?"

Whichever you believe in, Glorietta and young Bib-and-Tucker—the first woman and man in Paradise, or the speck of life in the primeval ooze, struggling up to the light of intelligence—every one of you has said one time or another, watching with that fascination that all humans seem to feel toward this little, clever, gray brother: "Doesn't he look human, though! Look at those brown eyes; they are so bright, and seem to THINK. And his hands. He can actually tie a knot!" Whoever has watched his sad little eyes brighten over a pair of amber beads while he turns them in the light, or felt the grip of his sensitive little hand on their fingers, has said those unoriginal words, "HOW HUMAN HE IS!"

Whether he always would take that as a compliment or would prefer to believe in the story of Eden and Adam and Eve is something to think about. Save, of course, WHEN Beauty and Youth were smiling 'round his cage.' —NELL BRINKLEY.

Madge's Father Turns Aside Suspension of Realty Man

"Is there anything wrong?" Mr. Halset demanded.

The urbanity with which the real estate man had treated me upon my visit of inquiry to him had entirely disappeared. His voice was testy, his manner fussy and fully justified Mrs. Thoer's comment that he was "awful fussy and unreasonable if anything went wrong with a house he was renting."

My father, however, has gone through too many ticklish situations with his life the stake for which he played to be disturbed by the possible discoveries of Mr. Halset. His answer was prompt as he waved swiftly toward the real estate agent and held out a cordial hand.

"Mr. Halset," he said, the words an assertion rather than a query. "I am glad to see you, sir. We have taken rather a liberty with The Larches, but one which I am sure you will pardon because we have done it for your prospective tenant. And we have injured nothing. Indeed, I believe we can boast that we left it in better condition than we found it, for we swept and dusted a bit lest some traces of our errand should be left."

My father is a man of infinite charm of manner whenever he emerges from his shell, and Mr. Halset's suspicious manner vanished at his smile.

"I am sure everything is all right, Mr. Spencer," he said. I had hurriedly mumbled a one-sided introduction at my father's tentative recognition of him. "I just saw you all here, and the man packing something into his car—I wondered if anything had got broken or something."

"Oh, no. I can assure you nothing is broken," my father said heartily—and truthfully—for queerly enough there had been no broken dishes. "And Jim was simply putting my big camera into the car. I ventured to take some photographs of the rooms to send Mrs. Brixton, so that she could plan her Christmas decorations if she decided to rent the house. You know ladies are fussy about such things."

His confidential manner as man to man, which joined himself and Mr. Halset and shut all irresponsible femininity outside was delicious. I choked back a laugh as Mr. Halset shot a glance at me which I knew was meant to express good-natured indulgence.

"Yes, yes," he agreed with the invariable response of the native Long Islander. "I know that from experience."

His smirk pointedly characterized his absent spouse as a striking example of feminine fussiness. Then his curiosity banished everything else from his mind.

"Picture of the rooms, you say?" he queried. "They ought to be very nice. When you get them done—"

"I shall furnish you with a set of prints for future use, of course," my father said as carelessly as though his promise did not involve another trip to the house and the taking of the photographs he had described to Mr. Halset from his imagination. "But, of course, these may not come out well. You know what cameras are."

"Couldn't you take 'em again if these didn't come out well?" Mr. Halset asked eagerly, and my father gave the relieved little sigh of one whose adversary is delivered into his hands.

"Oh, yes, that can be done easily," he answered.

"Well, then, if they don't come out, and it don't cost too much—" Mr. Halset hesitated cautiously.

"The cost to you will be nothing," my father interposed swiftly. "I shall be glad to do it."

"I'll be obliged, I'm sure," Mr. Halset returned. "And now, is there anything you want done, or do you know yet whether this friend of yours will take the house?" He turned to me inquiringly.

"I have wired her," I returned, "and I am sure I shall have an answer tomorrow. I will let you know as soon as I hear."

"Thank you." He was again the likable, courteous man whom I had interviewed earlier in the day. Every trace of pettiness was gone. "Remember, I will do anything in reason, Mrs. Thoer, can you be ready to go over the house throughout as soon as there is a definite answer from this Mrs. Brixton?"

"Sure," my neighbor replied laconically. "I hain't got nothing else to do for the next two or three days besides my own housework."

"Thats all right then. You can get to work as soon as the telegram comes. Bye, bye," and with this invariable farewell of the countryside the mollified Mr. Halset climbed into his car and drove off.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Maure Decade Girls

In MY mother's time, life may not have been very exciting, but, somehow, everything was so much more settled and certain—AND comfortable.

You had no soul-problems! And no inhibitions or complexes or domestic questions, to worry about. Your place in the scheme of things was as definite and indisputable as your tooth-brush and your engraved napkin ring.

You knew who had the divine right to the first crack at the morning newspaper; and you wasted no energy scrambling for it or wrangling over it.

You knew that good people were good and bad people were bad—and Freud hadn't gotten you all mixed up about it. Sin was sin, a married man was a married man, Monday was wash-day, and Saturday was bath-night. And that was THAT!

* * *

You knew who was THOSE in matrimony, and you were not constantly in danger of inviting the same woman's past and current husbands to the same dinner party, nor of introducing a supposed bachelor to his ex-wife.

You knew that either you would get married and have Thursday afternoon "At Homes" and be called "fortunate"; or you would be an old maid and live with your married sister and be called "poor thing." So, you set out early to capture the harmless, necessary husband, and you worked hard to HOLD him and make him think he'd won a prize.

* * *

There were no installment collectors hovering around, and no unpaid charge accounts to keep you awake nights; because, you never bought anything until you could afford to pay for it—and not even then, if it was too expensive for your mode of living. A three-thousand-dollar car in front of a plain little bungalow would have been considered "vulgar."

* * *

You knew, when a man put a wedding ring on your finger, that it would STAY there; that it was as fixed as the stars or cleaning day, or the Sunday breakfast menu of hot waffles. Unless something awful and unprecedented happened, you were "all set" for life!

You knew that Father would take off his "heavies" in May—and catch cold. And that Mother would say, "I told you so." That a potted palm on the piazza was a sign of refinement. That "nice girls" couldn't be kissed; that easily-kissed girls couldn't get husbands, and that to be a spinster was a calamity.

balm, mental cruelty, eugenic babies, down payments, psychoanalysis, sex-appeal or the 18-day diet.

So you never questioned life or God or man's superiority; but just floated blissfully through your dancing days, your courting days, and your honeymoon, accepted marriage "as is," and grew old or fat without a struggle.

* * *

A dull life, perhaps—but there were fewer sanitariums and no nerve specialists in those placid days B. F.—Before Feminism.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Asking Permission to Call

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I noticed your answer to "Mickey" the other day, in which you informed her that it is correct for either party to express pleasure at having met the other, when a man escorts a woman home after having been presented to her for the first time. You also stated that in answering, the other party, whether the man or the girl, may say, "I hope to have the pleasure of meeting you again." Now, I have always understood that it is the lady's privilege to indicate whether, when a man is presented to her, she wishes the acquaintance to continue or not; but I have also been taught that it is the man's part to ask permission to call for the first time, although after the first call the girl may extend further invitations.

Your answer to "Mickey" would seem to indicate that the girl may be first in expressing her desire to meet the man again. Will you please straighten out this point for me?

TONY.

Yes, I did mean to say all of these things—that it is in good form for either the girl or the man to say that she or he has enjoyed the meeting, for such a statement is humanly friendly and is not a matter of gender.

Also it is good form, too, for the girl to invite the man to come to see her, even at a first meeting. This is an obviously friendly extending of the hospitality of her home—she invites a gentleman to come to see her in the same hospitable spirit in which she would invite a lady to come to see her. Don't you think that this is reasonable? However, if she doesn't think that this is correct she should wait until the gentleman has asked for the privilege—and men have a way of asking for what they want!

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

That Bugbear Indigestion

Indigestion is the bugbear of thousands of persons. They would do almost anything to be restored to good health.

DR COPELAND

There are many varieties of indigestion or dyspepsia. What is called "acidity" is commonest of all. It comes at any age and may last only a few days or it may persist for months, perhaps the Sometimes it ends in ulcer of the stomach or something worse. That is sufficient reason for avoiding this condition.

There are three symptoms always present in ulcer of the stomach. They are pain, vomiting and hemorrhage; pain is the chief sign of this trouble. Heartburn and constipation, blood mingled with the vomited food, severe pains in the middle of the back and stomach, may indicate ulcer.

Rest is the first remedy for this condition. The patient must have special feeding, but the physician in attendance will see to this. He must direct the treatment.

One of the common causes of indigestion is taking food without chewing it properly. Whole pieces of meat and other food are too commonly swallowed without chewing. You are bound to have disturbances in stomach and bowels after such a performance.

Digestion begins in the mouth. For this reason thorough mastication of the food and free mixture with the saliva are necessary to good digestion.

If you properly chew your food and then have pain in the stomach and belching of gas, that might mean the indigestion is caused by an insufficient quantity or a poor quality of gastric juice.

There may be deficient muscular power in the stomach. This will present an important factor in digestion. This leads to a very common form of indigestion. Sometimes the food is only partly digested. Fermentation and decomposition of food in the stomach result.

There are means of preventing these digestive troubles. But every system of cure calls for a drastic change in the diet, as well as in the eating and living habits.

It is important to have properly balanced meals. Eat sparingly—not too much sugar and starches. Eat easily digested foods and chew them thoroughly. To this end good teeth are essential.

Drink lots of water, and bear in mind that this is a most important part of the treatment. It is only when a proper amount of water is maintained in the system that perfect elimination of the wastes of the body is possible.

Don't keep the hands busily occupied when the stomach and intestines are hard at work. Be relaxed, light-hearted and cheerful. If you are depressed and despondent, other ills follow. If the nervous balance is disturbed, or if the emotions are aroused over every little thing, digestion is almost entirely stopped.

Change your attitude of mind. Change your environment. See a bevy of cheerful friends. And change your diet.

See your doctor. The chances are that you are not so badly off as you thought you were, but find out for sure. A good rest and a pleasant vacation can do wonders for you. Try them!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, June 3

An eventful day is the augury based on a very interesting chain of sidereal activities. There will be a high degree of initiative and courage, crashing forth to break open a long stagnant and crystallizing state of affairs and making way for important new ventures. Nevertheless, there may be some disagreeable or hostile development with employers or those in authority, but with resolution, application and sustained courage all should thrive and attain certain stability and responsible position.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a most eventful and important year, with the energies and faculties under high stimulus. This may break open old congestions and obstructions to make way for high adventure and substantial success, despite the opposition of employers or those in places of authority, who may be disposed to hamper or demote. With determination and stern application the most stable results may be expected.

A child born on this day should be resourceful, courageous, enterprising, and should attain stable place, position and fortune through its own efforts and determination.

STYLES OF 90'S BESOUGHT OF MISS DAVIES

Hundreds Send Appeals To 'Florodora Girl' Star For Dress of Olden Days

HOLLYWOOD, June 2.—Bring back the styles of the Gay Nineties.

That is the cry of hundreds of people who are sending their opinions to Marion Davies in the style contest.

Old gentlemen [illegible] feminine [illegible] in the belle [illegible] days. Mothers write that for daughters. [illegible] have lost some [illegible] ness. Young [illegible] the ruffles [illegible] their grandmothers were "just too cute." [illegible] who deplore the [illegible] the modern [illegible] dream of [illegible] "clinging [illegible] ness and [illegible] flattering [illegible]

Miss Davies [illegible] furbelows of the [illegible] period in her new picture, "The Florodora Girl," with Florodora Girls of 1930 at the New Fairbanks Theater in Hollywood.

I am also [illegible] that it is only a matter of time before we will again see the gay styles of the Nineties, writes Florence Nagle, 39 Webster street, Somerville, Mass.

What a woman wants she is bound to have. And does she not wish to become more graceful and charming in the eyes of the opposite sex? A thousand times, yes!

Can you imagine the short, dumpy woman looking graceful with her skirt above her knees? Absolutely no! She looks ridiculous!

A long skirt adds dignity if not charm, but a short skirt subtracts and leaves a ridiculous little woman who is ill-at-ease with the world, in general. And the modern Miss—in her short skirt is merely a "youthful gawk."

A few of the hundreds of other letters received follow.

How often you must have heard your mother say: Handsome is as handsome does. It is not always the dress you admire. It is the individual who is wearing it.

MRS. AGNES G. HOWELL.
San Francisco, Cal.

FOR SANITY AND COMFORT

Oh, for a sensible dress reform! Do I like the modern style of dress? No!

I want to be able to pass along through the world unnoticed for my extravagant dress and extreme style and not conspicuous for my shabbiness or old style.

Why not adopt a safely sane and comfortable uniform for American women?

MRS. CLARENCE H. CASE.
West Seattle, Wash.

"GIVES ME HORRORS!"

At the time of the Florodora Sextet those styles were considered perfectly grand—because the women didn't know what it was to be comfortable!

I am familiar enough with the styles of the gay nineties never to want them back. When I think of all the discomfort I went through, it gives me the horrors!

MRS. S. S. MORITZ.
Santa Cruz, Cal.

SOME LOVELY GIRLS

I know there are many girls made bold by the scant skirts—but there is still the girl who is modest, reticent and lovely, dainty and fine.

Let's go on and on until all is modified to real loveliness and real, worth while modes.

FERNE WHIPPS.
Burlingame, Cal.

OLD CHIVALRY GONE

When women were garbed as women, man instinctively felt the great difference between himself and these lovely creatures and treated them with more gallantry and fervor. Woman is inwardly affected by her attire and becomes the charming, sweet, dependent creature that she is by nature meant to be.

To be dressed "mannishly" is to be treated "mannishly," patted on the back, allowed to cross the streets unaided and—last but not least—allowed to don the trousers and earn the family bread.

How much more delightful to revel in yards of clinging chiffon! These are the sentiments of a 1930 modern miss!

ALICE LORAYE ROSSBERG.
Milwaukee.

TODAY'S STYLES APPEAL

Our young ladies of today are respected for their careless nonchalance. Not ashamed of their bodies. Rather proud of them. They dress in clothes that fit well, yet are devoid of the little coquettish nothings of their older sisters. True, their clothes do not charm in the same way—or quite as much—so straight, tending to so much freedom, the delight of healthy bodies. The dependence on man has almost disappeared—much to the sorrow of his chivalrous sense!

Yet immensely appealing are they to our modern youths.

Give me the straight-forward young thing who trips down the avenue with her scant sixteen ounces of clothes!

ANNETTE ROY.
Medford, Mass.

THINGS CHANGE

Things have changed fast in 40 years and the world has made a wonderful improvement. Everything is faster and peppier to what they were those days and our girls of today have the pep in them when it comes to dancing and going to parties, but when it comes to housework they are not there with their pep. They are used to wearing sport dresses and stepping lively and, oh boy, how they can step on your bara you.

LOUIS BRANZEI.
Detroit.

JUST A PARABLE

Speaking of styles and fashion I would like to relate a question that was asked by a father to his daughter. "If it were the style to wear bathing suits on the street, I suppose you would wear them, too." "Sure I would," she answered.

ALDEN M. HILLS.
Malden, Mass.

NINETIES' STYLE DOOMED

Bobbed hair and short dresses have been a noble experiment. But like the stock market they went too high and had to come down.

The latest 1930 style shows science and progress. The fashions of the 90's is and always will be history. The gay parachute dresses and long hair entanglement of 90's is doomed forever in this mechanical age.

Any man that gets excited to see a woman's legs a few inches above the shoe tops should have his head examined. My tip to woman is such men do not amount to much as husbands and friends.

Gene T. Tennefass, Klamath Falls, Oregon.

DEPENDS ON GIRL

The dress of the gay nineties or that of 1930 doesn't make a particle of difference—it is the female who knows how to wear them.

NOAH A. WEINER.
New Haven, Conn.

Well do I remember the styles of the "gay nineties." In those days I earned my livelihood as a stenographer and as I recall the fashions of those years a shudder runs down my spine. It is a "nightmare." I'm glad to forget. And as to making young girls look twice their age, I could write a book about this.

ANNA GOLDENBERG LEVY.
Chicago.

CHANGE NECESSARY

The style of women's dress will no doubt always remain a puzzle to most men, but for the benefit and convenience of 90 per cent of womankind some change from the present style of short skirts is absolutely necessary except for those who cast their pride and modesty to the four winds for the sake of style.

It is hard to believe that so many women would have a desire to show their unshapely limbs for any other reason. Seventy-five per cent of all women have unshapely limbs in some respect. Fifteen per cent might be able to pass muster while 10 per cent, as you well know, have anything to boast of.

WM. F. GRAHAM.
Riverside, Ill.

HERE'S TO NEW STYLES

We are dressing to suit 1930 ideas. Whether the long skirts last or not, they will have had their season just as the "gay nineties" outfits had theirs. Here's to them while they last! At least they again are giving the male population a chance to develop a little imagination and perseverance.

VIRGINIA G. BAILEY.
Southwest, Pa.

GOOD FOR BOTH

I am an advocate of the short skirts for girls and long pants for men.

CLIVE HOXIE.
Boston, Mass.

HELPS BOTH

People that looked old 30 years ago today look young and beautiful because of their short skirts and bobbed hair.

FIGHT RENEWED ON TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(INS.)—While administration leaders predicted passage of the bill by June 16, the Senate today resumed its tariff war with a clash over the flexible powers vested in President Hoover.

Senator Watson (Rep.), the majority leader, voiced the hopes of the administration with the prediction the measure would become law by June 16. Opposition leaders shared his belief but foresaw a close vote.

The question now is whether the second section of the tariff conferees' report shall be approved. This contained the highly controversial flexible provision which gives the Tariff Commission power to recommend specific rate changes but vests in Mr. Hoover the sole power to effect such changes.

Reparations Duty Urged to Germans

HALLE, Germany, June 2.—(AP.)—A plan to make the rest of the world contribute toward paying the "burden of the Young plan" was proposed today by Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist leader, in addressing a convention of Nationalists here.

Doctor Hugenberg, bitter opponent of the Young plan, advised a "reparations duty" on all goods and raw products imported into Germany. He said that Germany was one of the most important markets in the world and it should be made the rule that "whoever utilizes Central Europe—its market, traffic system and culture—must help us bear the burden which the rest of the world imposed."

On the opposite wall hang studies of H. R. H. Prince George, Lady Mountbatten, the Marchioness of Douro and many other titled personages.

FACES COURT IN KILLING OF 4

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., June 2.—(AP.)—John (Tex) Nallus was to go on trial today on a charge of murder growing out of the dynamiting of a Glen Alden pay car and the killing of four men near Warrior Run several weeks ago. His alleged accomplice, Sigismund Czachowski, alias "Big Joe," was convicted of murder in the first degree at the April term.

Martha Calvit, 29, of Hanover Township, will also be arraigned for trial Monday. The woman is alleged to have shot her mother, Mrs. Louise Dettler, 69, to death in her bed March 21. The defendant then tried suicide by leaping from a third-story porch. Since her recovery she has been a mental patient at Retreat.

Brown and Maller, entering the place while the raid was in progress, were arrested when they said they had intended to play "the numbers." The five men, charged with being suspicious persons, will be given hearings tomorrow.

Woman, Boy Hurt In Street Car Crash

A woman and a boy passengers on a Frankstown avenue street car were injured and several others were shaken up when the car split a switch at Penn avenue and Seventh street and crashed into a pole.

John McFadden, 14, of 5171 Kincaid street, suffered lacerations on the face and was treated at Mercy Hospital. The woman refused to give police her name and remained her journey in a taxicab, police said. Several windows in the car, operated by John Wire, were shattered.

Plane Afire, Pilot Lands Unhurt In Treetops

CAMP DEVENS, Mass., June 2.—(AP.)—A leap for life from a disabled airplane, qualification for membership in the Caterpillar Club but without a parachute, has been made by a Harvard senior.

Horace Williams Fuller, Harvard, '30, a commercial pilot, drove his plane into a group of trees near here after the engine had backfired and set the craft ablaze. The plane had just taken off and was only about 150 feet up. Jumping as it landed, he slid through the branches safely to the ground.

BARNES NOTES TRADE GAINS

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(AP.)—In present expansion activities of American corporations, Julius H. Barnes sees a preparation for enlarged earning power in the future and confidence that such will be the result.

In addition he reported borrowings by public authorities to a total of $400,000,000, as compared with $339,000,000 for the corresponding period of 1929.

CHAMPION A'S MEET BUCS

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Jones May Quit Golf. Crowds Breaking Him. Trying to Brace Bucs.

Offers for Players Fail. Record Casualty Year. Wilson and Ruth Tied.

GALLERIES PUT BOBBY UNDER STRAIN

Though Bobby Jones has just reached the greatest heights of his amazing career by winning the British amateur championship, the only major title he had not previously captured in an unparalleled string of conquests that included four United States amateur crowns, three United States opens and two British opens, it is reported that, as far as tournament play is concerned, golf soon may lose its champion of all champions and the most famous star in its history.

Bobby Jones

The Georgia marvel, whose victory over Roger Wethered at St. Andrews last Saturday gave him not only the British amateur diadem and his tenth major championship, but also the distinction of being the only player who ever won the open and amateur titles of both the United States and Great Britain, is said to have confided to friends that he will not engage in championship competition after this year. An increased law practice is the explanation given, but the real reason is said to be that the crowds are "getting him." He can do anything else in golf, but he can't beat the galleries. Instead of a game or a sport they have made it the hardest kind of work for him.

IT IS POINTED out that Jones never has a moment's relaxation during a match, and that driving through a crowd and waiting at each tee until several thousand milling spectators come to a stop and settle down involves a greater strain than does actual play. Other players find it possible to let down and relax a bit on some of the less difficult holes that are to be found on every course, but there is no temporary mental relief for Jones.

The crowd makes every hole a test for Bobby. His real burden is not the strain of competition, but the pressure of the galleries. Those following Jones have been the longest in history. He doesn't get even the same chance to practice that other players enjoy, as during his preparatory rounds, as well as in actual tournament competition, he is forced to shoot through narrow lanes bordered by milling spectators. He can't let down, or try a practice shot like other golfers, but is forced at all times to live up to his reputation. It's a severe strain, and from all reports it will cut short the most brilliant competitive career in the history of the game.

THE ALREADY PATCHED Pirate lineup showed still another change yesterday, when Dick Bartell was benched in favor of Charley Engle after a dizzy afternoon at shortstop on Saturday.

The shift failed to alter the club's luck, as attested by the 16-to-4 beating in Chicago, the largest score rolled up against the Bucs this season, but a day or two of rest ought to help bring the little shortstop back to the good form he showed earlier in the season.

Dick Bartell

IT'S A DESPERATE situation, when, with two regulars out and a third playing under the handicap of impaired vision, a manager finds it necessary to bench a fourth, in addition to starting a pitcher with a sore arm, as Skipper Ens did yesterday. Things appear to be going from bad to worse for the Rovers. The breaks of baseball are said to even themselves up during the course of a season, and if that rule holds good for the Pittsburgh team this year the Corsairs surely ought to be favored with a lot of smooth sailing during the remainder of the campaign.

UNTIL SOME OF the missing players return to action, however, the going is likely to be rough for the Ensmen. With both Waners, Brame, Swetonic and Clarke out of commission, and Meine handicapped by an ailing arm, the club is in a sadly weakened state for the hard Eastern trip that starts tomorrow at Brooklyn.

The management has made several attempts to get players from other clubs during the last two weeks, but could not induce any of them to part with material that might help the locals. Cincinnati demanded for Hughey Critz two players whom Pittsburgh could not afford to give up, and it is also said that in the case of Pete Donohue the Red management promised not to dispose of that pitcher until after a scheduled talk with the Buc officials last Friday, but turned around and sold him to New York three days earlier.

LLOYD WANER is being missed more sorely than any of the other Pirates who are out of commission. Without counting the value of the little star on the offense, his absence causes a gaping hole in the defense. More games have been lost through weakness in center field than from any other single cause.

Lloyd Waner

At that the Rovers have not skidded as badly as the Giants. The latter lost nine out of 10 and 15 out of 18 games preceding yesterday's two victories. Prior to Sunday's double win, the McGrawites had not bagged two games in succession since May 11 and 12.

IT'S A TOUGH year for star ball players. More of them have been knocked out by injuries or illness than in any other season within memory. Here are only some of the more serious cases aside from the death of Hal Carlson: Lloyd Waner, illness; Paul Waner, injured hip; Pie Traynor, iritis; Ervin Brame, grip; Steve Swetonic, appendicitis operation; Stuart Clarke, sprained ankle; Heinie Meine, illness; Rogers Hornsby, broken ankle; Lew Fonseca, broken arm; Mickey Cochrane, fractured ankle; Travis Jackson and Walter Roettger, mumps; Freddie Lindstrom, boils; Ernest Orsatti, fractured ankle; Glenn Wright, stone bruise; Joe Sewell, illness; Joe Boley, injured arm; Art Shires, injured hip; Riggs Stephenson, injured shoulder; Lester Bell, injured arm; Guy Bush, illness; George Kelly, tonsil operation; Al Simmons, injured leg; Goose Goslin, injured arm, and Harry Heilmann, injured leg.

SINCE JACK HIGH, in winning the Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont Park, set a new world record of 1:35 for a mile by a horse in competition running around one turn, beating Cherry Pie's performance of September 23, 1923, on the same track, by two-fifths of a second, turf authorities have been digging through the dope books in search of the best other feats at that distance.

Six other horses in this country and England have beaten Jack High's time, but not in competition nor around a turn. The fastest mile on record is 1:33. It was made by Blue Pete, a 3-year-old, carry-

Willie Davies, of Charleroi, tonight is back in the spot where he has done his best fighting—the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock. There he meets Black Bill, the Cuban mite, in the 10-round main bout which he hopes will lead to a title match with Midget Wolgast, of Philadelphia, who recently was accorded that recognition after winning a tournament in New York from which Black Bill eliminated Davies, only to bow himself to Wolgast in the final round.

Wolgast and Black Bill are two busy little fellows who always have given the clever Davies his hardest tussles. Wolgast, with his speed and slapping style, has euchered Davies out of several decisions, while Black Bill will be facing Willie for the fifth time tonight. Willie won the first scrap, in Philadelphia, and then made two trips to Havana, Cuba, Black Bill's home town, for 12-round meetings with the Negro, each of which was ruled a draw. Then followed the defeat for Willie in New York.

TITLE MATCH INCENTIVE

The Meyers Bowl management has promised to do all within its power to lure Wolgast into a title match with Davies in its arena if Davies wins tonight, and to this end Willie has trained harder than ever before in his own camp in the mountains near Everett, Pa. He defeated Frankie Genaro and Corp. Izzy Schwartz, two championship claimants, in the Meyers Bowl last summer, and hopes to continues his winning streak there at the expense of the Cuban.

Black Bill arrived on the scene yesterday fit for battle. He was to be accompanied by his stablemate, Kid Chocolate, but the injuries suffered by Chocolate recently in an automobile accident, and which prevented him from going through with a bout with Fidel LaBarba in New York last week, forced him to remain behind.

After poor turnouts for the first two shows, the Meyers Bowl is looking for a sellout tonight. The advance sale has been large, and, with a favorable change in the EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF SATURDAY: THE UNITED STATES HAS BEEN IN 101 WARS—It will astound many to be informed that this great, peaceful nation has engaged in 101 wars since its inception. The six major wars will come to mind quickly—Revolution (1775), War of 1812, Mexican War (1846), Civil War (1861), Spanish-American War (1898) and the World War (1917). The official war record of the U. S. Government lists such wars as the Heatherly Indian War (1838), the Tripolitanian War (1801), the Tin Horn War (1891) and many others which were in the nature of full-fledged hostile undertakings. The full list may be obtained from the War Department in their pamphlet "The Work of the War Department." JAAFAR WON BOTH THE GERMAN IRON CROSS AND THE BRITISH C. M. G.—Jaafar was a staff officer in the Turkish Army at the outbreak of the World War, and fought the British as a German ally. The Germans decorated him with the Iron Cross for gallantry. In 1918, he foreswore his Turkish allegiance and joined the British in their fight against the Turks. Gen. Allenby decorated him with the C. M. G. for conspicuous gallantry in the face of the enemy. Jaafar is the only combatant to be decorated by both sides in the war. (Reference: "Revolt in the Desert" by Thomas Lawrence.) YOBO OF TOKIO—Yobo, who subsisted on an exclusive diet of wine, is one of a group of eccentrics who have subsisted on a single article of food for an astonishingly long period. One of them was Zaratustra, the Persian lawgiver, who subsisted on an exclusive diet of cheese for 30 years, and, lately, a certain M. Luft, a French chemist, has lived on an exclusive diet of castor oil for a long period. EGGS BREATHE—Living eggs breathe through the pores of the shells. If the supply of air be stopped by varnishing the egg, or coating it with a non-porous substance, the egg will die in an embryological sense.

An interesting and spirited week of tennis looms for local racquet followers between now and Saturday evening. Topping the card and by all odds the most attractive intercollegiate net offering ever displayed for Steel City edification is the Pitt-University of California contest billed for the Fox Chapel Country Club grass courts Wednesday afternoon. The Golden Bears bring with them a troop of stars quite capable of furnishing torrid competition for the undefeated Panthers. Their visit here is one of later features of perhaps the most pretentious program undertaken by a varsity squad in the history of college tennis.

The Californians have been on the go since February 21. Between that date and April 19, they took occasion to clean up pretty generally on rival Coast aggregations, including Stanford University. Their lone setbacks were suffered at the hands of the crack Berkeley Tennis Club and Los Angeles Tennis Club crews, teams composed of veteran aces of national renown, while the only blot—and that a slight one—on their college record was a 3-3 deadlock with Southern California.

OBERLIN WINS

WOOSTER, O., June 2.—(AP.)—Oberlin College, with 56 points, won the twenty-eighth annual Big Six track meet here. Wooster and Muskingum Colleges and Case School tied for second place with 27¼ points. Western Reserve University was fifth with 24½ points.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

Well, folks, we don't jes' know where we're goin', but we're on our way tonight. We've got a rough trip ahead, judging by the condition of the team, but the Pullman League has been pretty good to us, at that.

The Buccos and Cubs of this season are a great advertisement for the benefits of spring training in California. Some wise bird yelled into our bench Saturday telling us to train in The Strip next spring and get toughened up.

OLDTIMERS CHUCKLE

The oldtimers are given the present-day players the laugh these days. I guess in the days of the Cleveland Spiders and the Baltimore Orioles, the players would take their training on cinder dumps and you couldn't get them out of action with a derrick. And in them days they use to carve each other up. They tell me that Mickey Doolan and Kid Gleason, couldn't play good ball unless they had some fresh spike marks on their shins.

Well, it's a long sidetrack that has no curve, and maybe we'll get out on that main line one of these days. I'm not a knocker, but our pitchers, outside of Brame and Steve, are up in the air as much these days as the air mail carriers. Every time one of them goes nine rounds we have a celebration in the clubhouse. Let's hope we can get together on the road. Anyhow, the gang is glad to get away from Forbes Field because a long home stay was a

Golf Tourney Victor Over Commencement

KANSAS CITY, June 2.—(AP.)—To Miss Mary Elizabeth Ford, of Kansas City, a debut in senior women's golf competition is more important than her presence at commencement exercises of her high school class of '30.

Therefore, while her classmates are receiving their diplomas here tomorrow night, 16-year-old Miss Ford expects to be mulling over the best means to eliminate an opponent in the women's trans-Mississippi tournament, which starts at Tulsa, Okla., today.

WOMEN OPEN TITLE PLAY

TULSA, Okla., June 2.—(AP.)—Contenders for the 1930 championship of the women's trans-Mississippi Golf Association had their final practice rounds and will battle today in the association's fourth annual tournament here.

Approximately 200 feminine wielders of iron and wood will tee off in the qualifying round which will be for 18 holes. The 32 low scores will make up the championship flight and the next 96 will be grouped in six flights of sixteen players each with a trophy for the winner of each flight.

The field of entrants is the largest ever attracted to an association tournament. Seventy clubs, in Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado, Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Arkansas, and Tennessee are represented.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Our floundering Pirates can lose a ball game today without feeling any ill effect in the National League standings. Connie Mack led his World Champion Athletics into Pittsburgh this morning, the "A's" to disport themselves for the edification of local fans at Forbes Field this afternoon when they take on the Buccos.

Mack's great team reached the American League pinnacle again just before they left Washington for Pittsburgh. The Mackian band displaced the Senators by a victory in Washington yesterday. Heavy favorites to repeat in their own circuit, the Athletics are on the threshold of their first Western invasion, a jaunt that carries quite a test for the Monarchs of the game.

A'S CRIPPLED

The director of the championship team expects to play many of his stars, although Al Simmons has been out recently with injuries and one or two other stars are said to be out of whack. However, there will be enough of the team in action to give the fans an idea of the skill of the outfit.

The Pirates, a somewhat demoralized outfit, returned this morning from Chicago where yesterday they were given a 16 to 4 trimming by the Cubs.

P. WANER X-RAY'D

An x-ray photograph was made Saturday night of Paul Waner's injured right hip. The results of the plate will be made known some time today. Brother Paul accompanied the Buccos to Chicago so that he could be available as pinch-hitter, he being unable to run on account of his hurt.

The Pirates will leave tonight on their first Eastern invasion, but they will be a sorry lot as they take the field tomorrow against the Robins. Without the two Waners, Brame and Swetonic, the club is hardly any more than a second-division entry.

In the event that P. Waner's injury is worse than at first believed, he may not be allowed to accompany the club. Brame also may be kept in Pittsburgh although the big pitcher is on the road to recovery.

BARTELL BENCHED

Manager Ens benched Dick Bartell yesterday in Chicago. The loose play of the shortstop Saturday caused the skipper to yank

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Now I know the Philadelphia Athletics read these pieces I write for the papers. Last week I said if the A's figured our Washington club didn't belong at the top of the lead why didn't they come up and get us. Well they certainly gave us service. They have been doing that little thing. It sure pays to advertise in Nick's column. The surprise of the season is the Giants. McGraw's team couldn't have gone down any faster if they were roller skates. The last two weeks they have been blowing ball games just like soap bubbles and McGraw threw his arm out just waving pitchers off the slab.

COCHET VICTOR OVER TILDEN

AUTEUIL, France, June 2 (AP.)—Henri Cochet, of France, whose rise into the realm of tennis began at the lowest rung of the ladder, was crowned unchallenged king of the court yesterday while Mrs. Helen Wills Moody re-emphasized her right to rule women's tennis.

Big Bill Tilden, fighting a gallant but vain battle against the little Frenchman's racquet wizardry, was beaten by Cochet 3-6, 8-6, 6-3, 6-1 in the men's singles finals of the French hardcourt championships.

A determined onslaught to snatch from the classic brow of Mrs. Moody the diadem she has worn for several years also ended disastrously. Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Cal., lone remaining fighter out of a field of 64 insurgents who rebelled against the feminine dynasty of tennis last Sunday, suffered the same fate as her rebellious sisters, losing in straight sets to Mrs. Moody, 6-2, 6-1.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 2 (AP.)—H. H. Gregory, sports editor of the Portland Oregonian, printed a letter from a subscriber who suggested that Thomas L. Turner, owner of the Portland Pacific Coast baseball team, remain in the East and let the boys win another four or five straight games.

After that things happened rapidly.

Turner revoked Gregory's newspaper pass.

The manager also disconnected telephone wires leading from the press box at the ball park to the Oregonian office. He made no further comment.

Today's Oregonian contained a story on Sunday's game between Portland and Oakland, Cal., written by Gregory. The sports editor obtained his data while a paid spectator in the grandstand. He had been named official scorer for the game.

THREE OTHER HORSES did 1:34 2-5 at Brighton, England. Kepplestone, a 5-year-old, carrying 122 pounds, made the mark in a straightaway run in 1925, and on August 4, 1927, it was equaled by two 3-year-olds that ran a dead heat straightaway—Spionetta, 103 pounds, and Hermos, 99.

Roamer, a 7-year-old, with 110 pounds, was running against time and was not in competition when he made 134 4-5 at Saratoga in August, 1918. Salvator, a 4-year-old, with 110 pounds, also was running against time in making 1:35½ at Monmouth Park in 1890.

BY MAKING TWO home runs against the Pirates yesterday while Babe Ruth got only one against the Red Sox, Hack Wilson overtook the Bambino in the race for four-base honors. Hack and the Babe were tied for first place today, with 16 to the credit of each. A new threat in the round-trip slugging competition is Walter Berger, the Braves' coast recruit, who made one in each game against the Giants yesterday and boosted his season's total to 14. Chuck Klein is next with 13, followed by Babe Herman with 12, Jimmy Foxx and Lou Gehrig with 11 each. Al Simmons, Mel Ott and Del Bissonette with nine each, and Bill Terry with eight. The two big leagues yesterday passed the 400 mark in home runs for the season. The grand total to date is 417, the National having turned in 232 and the American 185.

Boat Racer Near Crash With Steamer

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Pa., June 2 (AP.)—The Akron Anchor Outboard Motor Club's speedboat regatta here yesterday was featured by the mad dash of Sam Henry, Youngstown, O., under the prow of a steamer and the unique victory of Louie Schrader, also of Youngstown.

Henry, in a craft he constructed, found he was headed directly toward the passenger steamer Helena. Swinging to one side, he cut under the prow as the 12,000 spectators gasped their amazement.

Schrader passed one of the buoys by rods, turned around, circled it, and then outdistanced his competitors.

Prizes were awarded as follows:

Class B, Division 2—Louis Schrader, Youngstown, first; Sam Henry, Youngstown, second; W. Y. Goddard, Orwell, O., third. Time, 8 minutes, 13 seconds.

Class B, Division 3—Alvin Conner, Akron, first; Louis Schrader, second; Goddard, third. Time, 8:19.

TONIGHT'S ENTRIES AT NEW KENSINGTON

TWO DISTRICT TRACK, FIELD MARKS SET

By JESS CARVER

With the National Intercollegiate from the state this coming week-end in Chicago and the college track and field campaign for 1930 will be over and done with. It would up local affairs in true style with the Army's decisive whipping of Pitt. Had it not been for one of those ... exultant performances ... the track, the ... meet would just have been another one of those ... that things do so brilliantly, did George Lermond and Pete Bowen run, and so sharply did Ed Knoblock hurdle, that the afternoon was far from a total loss.

One new champion was crowned in the tri-state district during the past season of track competition and two records were smashed. Strangely enough, the records that were established were both made in the final meets of the year, and one of them by an athlete competing in his last district competition.

HURDLE MARK SET

The new marks that were written on the skein came in the high hurdles and in the javelin. In the hurdles, Calloway of West Virginia, a mighty atom as it were, tore over the barriers in the dual meet with Pitt in 15 seconds to hang up a new district mark.

For a new javelin standard, Leo Friedman, Geneva's class sprinkman, got off a 201 foot three-inch toss in the Tri-State Conference championship meet at Reeves Stadium on Memorial Day, setting a Geneva Conference district and field mark and throwing the spear 200 feet for the first time in section history.

Friedman merely bettered his own district record while Calloway stepped into the picture as a champion with his 15 flat hurdle mark.

As the title list stands now, Pitt is in outright possession of 11 marks holding the 220, 440, 880, mile, two-mile, shot, discus, pole vault, hammer and high and broad jumps.

Geneva possess the low hurdle and javelin crowns and West Virginia the high timbers. Geneva, Pitt and Duquesne have joint possession of the record in the century, which was equaled Saturday by Bowen.

FINE HALF MILE

Lermond's fine 1:55 half-mile in the meet with Pitt was a commendable piece of work considering that he had to run against a stiff head wind on the Stadium back-stretch. He took the lead at the first turn and was soon far out in front, winning from a teammate by 20 yards.

Bowen, running a 9.7 hundred, a 22 flat furlong and a 50 flat quarter-mile, made his closing appearance here, and made it a spectacular one. He was pressed to the limit in the "century" by Edwin Moore, the captain-elect of the Army squad, who was fast enough to beat out Wid Harris for second place.

Knoblock, also, completing his career at Pitt was in fine fettle here and almost equaling the record in the highs by one-fifth of a second. Had George Murrell, Army's star not fallen in this event and been able to press Ed closer, Calloway's week-old mark might have fallen.

G. Murrell

TOUGH ON MURRELL

Murrell suffered a tough break. There he was, competing in his final race, the graduates from West Point in two weeks, and back of him a record of not having hit a SINGLE timber in three years of competition. He crashed into the very first one, however, and was never a factor in the race.

Hagen Elated Over Bobby's Triumph

TOKIO, June 2 (AP.)—Walter Hagen, winner of more British golf championships than any other American, said he was "highly elated" at Bobby Jones' victory in the British amateur championship at St. Andrews.

"I am tremendously pleased that Bobby finally crashed through and rounded out a collection of crowns such as no other golfer has ever acquired," he said.

"The victory is no surprise. He undoubtedly is the greatest golfer in the field. It was his previous failures to win the British amateur that makes it more surprising.

"Roger Wethered also deserves credit for reaching the finals again."

Hagen, who has been playing in exhibitions here, has been chafing for the past week at Tokio newspapers' meager dispatches from St. Andrews.

You can't see a blowout coming. It hides under rubber that still looks good—and "blows"

Split seconds that make you realize the priceless value of General's EXTRA MARGIN OF SAFETY

You never need risk your life again on doubtful tires. General's perfection of the Blow-Out Proof Tire gives you the absolute safety of freedom from blowouts ... and far more.

Local sandlot teams will start another week's campaign this evening, most of the leading lodge of the district holding feature battles.

At Sullivan field a battle for the leadership of the Commercial and Industrial loop will be at stake when the Reliance Life nine, titleholder of the circuit, clashes with the wide-awake Rensalier Life team. Should the Rensalier boys get away with this game it is difficult to see how they will be beaten out of the first half championship. However, Manager Stuhlfarr seems to be confident of copping the game. Spencer is due to work against Lebson.

In the West Penn loop two games will be staged. Homewood will travel to Wilkinsburg and the North Braddock team goes to West Field to meet Homestead Ares. Fertig wants to win this game and has primed Athletech for needed duty. Steele will work for Homewood against Wilkinsburg.

ETNA, COSLETTO CLASH

One game will be played in the Central League. Etna, which has been going good in the last few games, will appear at Schenley High School field opposing the Coslettos.

The Steel City League features a real battle on the South Side when Meeder's Observatory Civics travel to Arlington Park to meet Sam Mazzie. The Clover Club is scheduled to clash with St. Joachims at Mountain Park.

Warmer weather is expected and this should draw out big crowds. Much interest is being shown in the various league races. The leading races are tight.

In the City League yesterday the Jimmy Smiths handed a 6-to-2 victory over the North Side Civics in the only game carded. W. O. W., playing Flitter of the Central circuit turned in a 6-to-5 win. The Stove Civics ended the winning streak of the crack Five Point aggregation at Five Points winning by 10 to 8.

Babe Ruth Explains Duties of Coach

BABE
MAC
THIS WILL GIVE YOU AN IDEA OF HOW A COACH MIGHT GIVE SIGNALS. - SOME COACHES USE CERTAIN WORDS ALTHOUGH USUALLY IT IS DONE BY MOTION OF HANDS OR FEET.
THIS IS THE COACHS BOX

By BABE RUTH,
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

Mac had an idea that coaches were just out there for ornaments.

"Gee," he said, "I don't see why those fellows want to get out there and jump around and yell like that. They don't help anybody win any ball games."

"Do you know, Mac," I said to him, "that those fellows out there jumping and yelling around, as you say, really are directing the plays there on the field. In their jumping and yelling, they're giving signals to the hitter as to when he is to sacrifice, when he is to put on the hit and run, whether he is to hit the first good one or wait the pitcher out."

Mac looked in amazement.

"How does a coach give signals?" he said.

"Oh, there are lots of ways," I told him. Some coaches use certain words as signals; usually, though, it is done by some motion of the hands or feet—something that is natural and won't be noticed by the other players."

"Show me some signals," Mac demanded.

HOW TO GIVE SIGNALS

So I stood him in the coach's box, as you see in the picture, explaining that simply putting his hand on his hip, as you see in the picture, might be turned into a signal. Hooking the thumb under the belt, as it is in the picture, might be used as the signal for a sacrifice. Putting the hand on the hip without hooking the thumb in the belt might be the hit-and-run signal. Putting both hands on the hips might mean to wait out the pitcher and take a couple of strikes.

Of course that is merely a suggestion. Any set of signals can be arranged that a club desires. They can be given with the feet as well as with the hands. But the point I wish to make is that a coach really is good for something besides standing out there yelling and jumping around, as Mac said.

Here's another thing a coach always must do—and kid teams can use coaches just as well as big league clubs. The coach is responsible for the base-runner and it's up to him to signal the runner when to slide and when to stay up, when to run and when to hold a base. You know when a man is running it slows him down if he has to watch the ball, and the coach by doing the watching for him often can get a runner an extra base.

MUST STAY IN BOX

Here's another thing about coaching. Always stay in that coach's box. The minute a coach gets outside the box the umpire can call him for it, and, if he persists in getting out, the umpire can chase him out of the game. One smart coach a few years ago got in a habit of running in with the runner, or maybe with a runner on base, running up and down the baseline trying to distract the pitcher and draw a throw. So a new rule was passed making it illegal for the coach to run up and down the line, and it also is illegal for the coach to touch the runner either to stop him or to push him on his way.

Mac seemed mighty pleased to know what the coach was for. A couple of days later he came up to me with a grin.

"We've got a whole set of coaching signals on our club now," he said, "and you know how we give 'em? With a glove."

Apparently it didn't take Mac long to get the idea.

him for a few days. Bartell, however, is a hustler, Ens making the move with the idea in mind of helping Dick. A short rest may put him back in his stride. Charlie Engle, who took Bartell's place in the contest with the Cubs, was charged with two misplays. Mosolf also erred twice as he subbed for P. Waner.

The Bears pounded Heinie Meine hard in the early frames to get a winning lead. Heinie's arm has been bothering him, and apparently it is not right yet. Glenn Spencer and Jess Petty finished the game, Spencer relieving Heinie in the fourth. Guy Bush worked the entire game for the Cubs, he holding the Pirates to eight hits. The Bears sewed up the contest in the third, when they made five runs.

WILSON HITS PAIR

Slugging Hack Wilson led the attack of the Cubs against the Pirates with four hits out of as many trips to the plate. He cracked out two home runs, a double and a single. His first homer came in the fourth inning and scored two of his mates ahead of him, and his second, in the seventh, was smashed with one Cub aboard.

Hartnett, the peppery Bruin catcher, also laced out a four-sacker. Grantham and Hemsley drove out home runs for the Pirates.

Paul Neal Paces Jockeys in West

CHICAGO, June 2.—(AP.)—Jockey Paul Neal, who led riders on Chicago tracks in victories last year, is away to a big start at Washington Park. Neal booted in five winners to take the lead at the end of the first week of the meeting. Jockeys Keiser, Crees, Ayraud, Legnon and Corbett were tied for second place with three victories each.

GENERALS DOWN GUYS; LEADERS BEAT JAYS

New leaders bobbed up in the seven-team Middle Atlantic League baseball campaign during the third seven-day period which ended Saturday. Jeannette led the first week. It was Johnstown the second. Last week Cumberland and Fairmont shared the honors, each winning six games and losing two.

Fairmont's Black Diamonds also batted out the most hits, 96, and tied with Johnstown in crossing home plate the most times, 58.

Jeannette held the opposition to the fewest runs, 27. Charleroi committed the fewest errors, six, and batted out the most homers, 13. Struckin, Charleroi first baseman, is setting the pace for individual home run honors. His total stands at nine. His nearest opponent, Cunnington, a teammate, has seven.

Yesterday, at Clarksburg, the Generals walloped Charleroi, 11 to 3. Johnstown strengthened its hold on first place by defeating Jeannette, 10 to 6, at Johnstown and at Cumberland, Burkman's home run in the eighth inning with two men on enabled Scottdale to defeat the Colts, 9 to 8. Fairmont defeated Wheeling, 2 to 1, at Wheeling.

PITT TO FACE CAL. BEARS

the trip got under way on May 22 and the schedule calls for action right up to Saturday, June 28. Before hitting Pittsburgh the Bears have mingled or will mingle with Salt Lake City Tennis Club, Brigham Young University, Nebraska, Northwestern University, Notre Dame, Butler College, University of Cincinnati and Ohio State University. Following the Pitt affair, they meet University of Pennsylvania and Princeton and take flings successively at the Maryland State, Delaware State, and the National Intercollegiate championship tourney.

The personnel of the Western host is impressive. Dolf Muehlleisen, Capt. Martin McKee, Robert Muench, and Ted Ludlow make up the varsity group, with Capt. Russel Gallaway of the freshman array coming along for the experience of tangling with yearling aces of the schools encountered. Muehlleisen and Muench have played together at doubles for many years and are rated among the strongest pairs in Pacific racquet circles.

Pitt probably will counter the Berkeley attack with Capt. Eddie Jacobs, Lave O'Loughlin, Mort Baker and Milt Cohen. Blue and Gold adherents are counting upon Jacobs and O'Loughlin to render excellent accounts of themselves in both singles and doubles. Baker and Cohen represent the unknown quantities in the Panther lineup. Baker will have a tough assignment in taking on Muench, and Cohen will surely be called upon to flash his prettiest against the accomplished Ludlow.

WILL BOOST INTEREST

The Pitt-California affair is certain to stimulate enthusiasm for the impending West Penn championships not a little. Incidentally, plans for the district titular tourney are going forward apace under the energetic direction of Chairman Ed Seitz and his bevy of committeemen. Many invitations are already out and the rest will be in the mail early this week. All matters of U. S. L. T. A. sanction of the event have been definitely attended to and all that remains now is to bring zest for the jousting to climax at Stanton Heights on opening day, June 21.

Fair weather Saturday elicited fast action from netmen of Section II of the P. T. A. Inter-Club League. Washington Heights, Edgewood, Canonsburg and Minnetonka flashed brilliantly with decisive triumphs. Next week-end will see the powerful forces of Section I in general melee and, with P. A. A. eagerly seeking lost title laurels and Frank Smith's Edgewoodmen equally determined to cling to honors hard won in 1929, plenty of excitement can be looked for the entire way down the path.

Bobby Jones Makes Debut in France

SAINT GERMAIN, France, June 2.—(AP.)—Bobby Jones, newly-crowned amateur champion of England, makes his debut on French golf courses at 4 p. m. today when he is paired with Harrison Johnson to meet Andre Vagliano, French amateur champion, and Marcel Dallemagne, one of France's best professionals.

Jones' first appearance in France is attracting considerable attention. He never has been seen here in action before.

LONDON, June 2.—(AP.)—The British press acclaimed Bobby Jones' feat at St. Andrews, and there was no question but that his victory was more popular, after his many efforts at the British golf crown, than would have been that of any other foreigner. Praise in some of the papers extended even beyond the sporting pages onto the editorial columns.

The Daily Express, however, summed up the situation saying:

"If the last of our male championships has to leave this country there can be no more popular winner."

BOXING BEST FRIEND OF CHARITY

By JACK DEMPSEY,
Former Heavyweight Champion

Whenever the reformers find themselves in need of a little excuse or desire personal publicity they achieve both by throwing bricks at the boxing game.

They exempt practically all other sports and all other athletes as being clean and uplifting to the community. But they never will let boxing alone. If opposition to the game does not break out in one spot, it is present somewhere else, and the most trivial incident that happens in the ring which might lack in 100 per cent sportsmanship is eagerly seized upon by the "holier-than-thou" crowd as positive proof that the game is crooked and dishonorable and should be abolished.

Jack Dempsey

APPEAL TO BOXERS

But have you noticed that whenever any charitable organizations need money—when sick babies need milk, when tubercular youngsters need help, when the jobless and "broke" need food and clothes and rent money—that the appeal always is made to the boxers?

No one ever noticed a boxer backing away from the chance to help a good cause. The boys not only have offered their services, but they have contributed their cash. If you go through the list of donations made by the various athletes to different charities it is quite likely you will find that the boxers have given more than all the other types of athletes put together.

MITTMEN GOOD SPORTS

Always it has seemed strange to me that the folks sponsoring some great charity have not appealed to the baseball club owners, the tennis organizations, the race track people, the footballing colleges, etc., for help. Maybe they have. If so, the answer must have been a turndown, for I do not recall hearing about any important games of baseball, tennis, football and such being played for the benefit of some great charity.

Boxing may be a little rough as sport at times and maybe all the boys do not know which fork or spoon to use at certain moments, but they are the most generous, the biggest hearted and the most human of any set of athletes I can think of offhand.

Campus Comment

By KNUTE ROCKNE.

MEMBER ALL AMERICA BOARD TRACK AND FIELD.

NATIONAL COLLEGIATE MEET

The National collegiate track meet to be held at Stagg Field next Saturday should be the outstanding college meet of the year. Never before in any college track meet that I can remember has there been such a galaxy of class in every event. The University of Southern California should win the team honors, but will meet plenty of competition from Michigan, Illinois, Nebraska and Ohio State. However it is in the individual championship event that the marks hung up will be the best of the year with four or five champions from various parts of America contesting fast and furiously.

Knute Rockne

In the dashes, Simpson of Ohio State looks best to me in spite of such formidable sprinters as Leland of Texas Christian, Bracey of Rice, Wykoff of Southern California, Meier of Iowa State, Tolan of Michigan, and Useman, of Illinois. This will be Simpson's last college appearance and I have a hunch that he will prove the class of a remarkable sprint field.

BOWEN IN 440

The quarter-mile will bring together Walters, of Northwestern; Dill and Hursley of Missouri; Wilson of Notre Dame; Bowen, of Pittsburgh, and possibly Williamson, of Oklahoma Baptist. There is some doubt as to Williamson's eligibility. All of these men have done around 48 seconds. Walters, last year's champion, has not rounded into shape as yet, and Bowen, of Pittsburgh, looks like the favorite.

The half-mile run will find Letts, of the University of Chicago; Martin, of Purdue; Hayes, of Ohio State; McGeah, of Southern California; Little, of Notre Dame, and Moran, of Oregon—the outstanding champions of the various sections—competing. If Martin confines himself to the mile, Letts looks like the winner, particularly if he can come through with a race such as he ran at the Penn relays.

MILE A FEATURE RACE

Next to the sprints, the mile run should be the outstanding race of the day. Kiser, of Washington, who won it two years ago in 4:17 6-10, was beaten six yards recently by a chap named Hill, of Oregon. The winner's time was 4:42 4-10. Then there is Martin, of Purdue. Eddie O'Connor, his coach, believes he can crack the record if the early running is speedy. Walters, of Marquette, ran 4:18 6-10 recently in the central intercollegiates on a heavy track and the coaches who saw his performance are confident he is good for two or three seconds faster time. In the Indiana State meet Sivak, of Butler, ran 4:19 8-10. McKeever, of Illinois, and Schwartz, of Western State Normal, are other performers who are good for better than 4:20. Here is a mile race that should be a corker. It includes every college miler who has done better than 4:20 this year except Lennond, of the Army. If R. Hill, of Oregon, can repeat, he will set a new world collegiate mark, as his last performance came within two seconds of breaking the world amateur mark of 4:10 4-10, held by Nurmi, the Finn.

MARTIN BEST TWO-MILER

C. Hill, of Oregon, a brother of R. Hill, has run the two-mile around 9:30, and so have Leas and Brocksmith, of Indiana. Putman, of Iowa; Chamberlain, of Michigan State, and Fellows, of Wisconsin, are strong possibilities in this race.

Personally, I believe Martin, of Pardue, could win the two-mile, as his mark of 9:26 at the Drake relays shows that he is capable of doing better than 9:20 if the conditions are right. But, if Martin does not run the two-mile, my pick is Manning, of Wichita University. He ran a close second to Abbott, of Illinois, last year. Manning is good for close to 9:20 and is a great finisher.

Fewer Companies Are Increasing Dividend Rate.

By B. C. FORBES

DIVIDEND RECORDS compiled exclusively for this column are now reflecting the poorer profits earned by many companies thus far this year.

During May 105 improved dividends were announced, a gain of 12 over April, but a decrease of 61 compared with a year ago.

Since January first better dividends have been declared by 648 companies, against 767 during first five months of last year. But this year's showing is well ahead of the total of 456 in 1928 and 391 in 1927.

MORE STOCKHOLDERS than a year ago are now having to reconcile themselves to reduced dividend checks. No fewer than 43 unfavorable dividend announcements were made last month. 17 corporations reduced their rates, 18 omitted payments and 8 deferred their payments. Only 11 companies took adverse action in May of last year.

Since January one of the unfavorable declarations have totaled 229, contrasted with 48 a year ago, 55 two years ago and 71 three years ago. The prospect is that unfavorable dividend action will continue rather common during the next few months, reflecting the shrinkage in net now being reported by many industrial companies by practically all railroads and by some—but not many — utility corporations. Railway net is off one-third from last year.

THIS TABLE GIVES the form of the cheerful dividend announcements made last month by industrial, public utility and railway companies:

	Ind.	P U.	R R.
Extra	37	1	2
Stock	24	4	0
Initial	21	2	0
Increased	8	2	2
Totals	92	9	4

The May, 1929, record was:

	Ind.	P U.	R R.
Initial	59	5	0
Extra	49	2	2
Resumed	9	0	0
Totals	155	8	3

A summary of the improved dividend payments, month by month, since the end of 1925, is given in the following table:

Jan.	172	130	111	89	67

ON THE WHOLE, the business trend seems to be towards some improvement. Admittedly, however, the recovery is slow and slight. Some industries show unmistakable improvement; others are not quite holding their own.

Which industries are in the most promising condition? Here are the ones classified by standard statistics as "most promising": Agricultural machinery, chain stores, chemicals, electrical equipment, motion pictures, shipbuilding, tobacco—cigarets, utilities—electric light and power, utilities—telephone and telegraph.

These industries are classified as "good": Cement, machinery and machine equipment, oil producing, oil refining and marketing, railroads, railroad equipment, steel and iron.

The "uncertain" ones are fertilizers, mail order, meat packing.

The following are described as "fair": Automobiles—passenger, automobiles—trucks, automobile parts, building, copper, department stores, leather and shoes, office equipment, paper, radio, rayon, sugar refining, tobacco—cigars.

Under the head of "poor" are cited: Aircraft, apparel, automobile tires, coal, cotton goods, lead, lumber, shipping, silk goods, sugar producing, utilities—tractions, etc.; woolen goods; zinc.

THE TONE on the New York Stock Exchange before it closed for the week on Thursday was somewhat more pleasing to the bulls than to the bears. It has become less easy to send stocks down precipitately and harder for shorts to rebuy without sending quotations up. This encourages the belief that, since it apparently cannot be put down, the market may prove capable of going up.

The writer regards such reasoning as logical.

May Delay Western Md. Stock Sale

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

WHO WILL BUY THE STOCK of the Western Maryland Railway? This is a question of vital interest to many in railroad and financial circles. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, which now holds control of the Western Maryland, has been ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission to sell its interest in the line by July 13. The commission, in issuing its ruling, charged that the purchase of the stock was in violation of the Clayton Act.

Due to the unsettled condition of the railroad merger situation, it is rumored that the commission may permit an extension of time.

The Western Maryland has been allotted to the Wabash in the general railroad consolidation plan. But the Wabash is controlled by the Pennsylvania Railroad. This leads many to believe that the commission would hardly force the sale of the line by one carrier, as a violation of the Clayton Act, to another carrier which may be involved in a similar offense.

Purchase Offer Made

SEVERAL LINES are interested but only one concrete offer for the Western Maryland has been made. This came from the Pittsburgh & West Virginia, which is willing to pay $18,673,040 plus carrying charges. This is about what the stock cost the Baltimore & Ohio. The Pittsburgh & West Virginia is also scheduled to enter the Wabash group, but it too is controlled by the Pennsylvania through the Pennroad Corporation.

The sale of the stock to either the Wabash or the Pittsburgh & West Virginia would be entirely logical. It would fit in with the commission's merger plan but some railroad men are inclined to believe that the commission may be hesitant about approving such a step while the Pennsylvania continues its control of the two lines and the legal status of this domination is still unsettled.

Others Interested

OTHER GROUPS MAY also attempt to buy the Western Maryland. The New York Central and the Van Sweringens are believed to be interested in the line. Control by these interests would block the formation of the new trunk line from the Great Lakes through Pittsburgh to the Atlantic seaboard. For this reason the commission would not be likely to favor such a step, but if the sale should be made to a holding company, the commission might be powerless to object.

The disposition of the road is of importance to Pittsburgh since the Western Maryland would be the eastern link in the trunk line to be built by consolidation with the Pittsburgh & West Virginia and the Wheeling & Lake Erie. The operation of such a line will soon be made physically possible by the completion of the Connellsville extension of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia which will bridge the gap between the two roads.

BANK WARNS OF PESSIMISM

NEW YORK, June 2.—The National City Bank's June review of economic conditions says it is not surprising that business recovery should be slow "considering the extent of over production in some important lines, the unprecedented scale of stock speculation and the degree of disorganization resulting from these extravagances."

The publication adds:

"The thing to be guarded against at the present time is an excess of pessimism, just as an excess of optimism was the basis of danger a year ago. It is true that the situation is not without serious complications, including the world-wide scope of the reaction, the fall in commodity prices and accumulation of stocks of raw materials. We do not wish to minimize these difficulties, but we are impressed with the recuperative powers of the country as demonstrated repeatedly in the past."

Wall Street Looks for Sharp Contraction in Oil Stocks on Hand

Wall Street is looking for a substantial contraction in surplus oil stocks on hand when the Bureau of Mines monthly report for April comes to hand this week. Well-informed oil people are looking for the figures to show a decline of between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 barrels as of the end of April, this course being the net reduction in all kinds of petroleum products, including crude, gasoline, etc. Such a showing would seem bullish on the position of the oil companies, indicating as it would their ability to get inventories well down as the big season of consumption looms ahead.

The month of May closed buoyantly on the stock market, though the last four full sessions showed little indication of any widespread buying demand for stocks. On the first Saturday of the month the violent turnover of 4,867,000 shares contrasted strangely with the 790,000-share volume of a fortnight hence. On May 5 stock sales totaled 8,279,000 shares, the largest volume outside of panic days and in contrast with 1,560,000 shares in a recent dull session.

In the summer session which is now to follow, the market faces a number of handicaps. The stormy passage of the tariff bill with the threatened reprisals of the European countries, and the long discussions incident to its development in Congress have had an injurious reaction on business and many prominent industrial leaders are hoping it goes into the discard. There will be some unfavorable dividend action in the next month or two and disappointing earnings statements to be absorbed. After that, the market would appear to have clear sailing. Robbed of its glamor as at present, the market offers some attractive investments which according to the best Wall Street testimony have been quietly up by prudent traders. The road ahead, both for business and the stock market, is becoming clearer with the passage of each succeeding week.

As usual with a holiday of unusually long duration looming up, house of issue were inclined to hold back the flotation of new securities in any heavy volume. This is reflected in the fact that new offerings for last week totaled only about $46,767,000 as against an aggregate of $104,653,000 in new securities brought out the previous week. The tendency toward slackening in a holiday period is further set forth by the fact that new flotations in the same week last year totaled only $61,081,000. In the present instance it is perhaps attributable to some extent to a desire on the part of issuing houses to hold the way clear for the German annuity issue.

The senior partner of one large Broadway wire house is convinced by the results of a survey which he has just completed that leading stocks have been unusually well absorbed in the course of the recent setback. His deductions are based on the result of a survey which he undertook with a view to obtaining some idea of the open market position of Steel common. By means of telegraph he communicated with a number of New York and out-of-town firms, inquiring the amount of Steel held by them for traders' account. The response has been unexpectedly good, and indicates, according to his calculations, that the floating supply of Steel is at present far under the normal percentage, indicating that the stock has been passing to decidedly strong hands recently.

The average of eight principal iron and steels products decline rather sharply last week to $46.99 a gross ton, Pittsburgh base, from $47.24 the week previous. The drop was due very largely to a recession of $2 a gross ton in billets. The average, however, does not reflect the declines reported in sheet bars and slabs, or heavy steel scrap. The current average compares with a high of $51.25 a gross ton for 1929, and the low for that year of $49.88 a gross ton recorded in December.

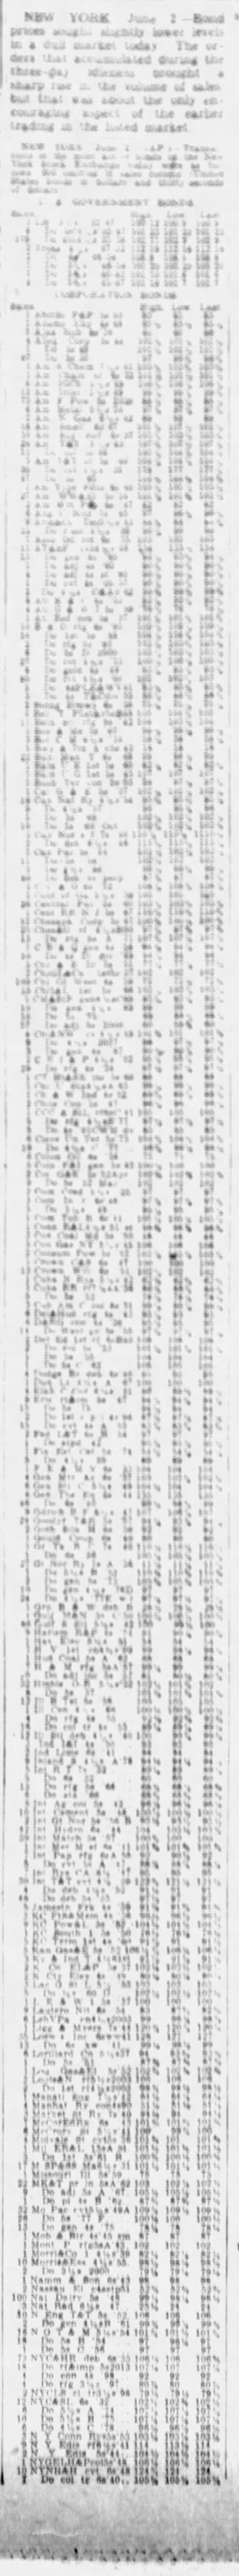
NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 2.—Bond prices sought slightly lower levels in a dull market today. The orders that accumulated during the three-day holiday brought a sharp rise in the volume of sales, but that was about the only encouraging aspect of the earlier trading in the listed market.



KENNECOTT ON $3 BASIS

NEW YORK, June 2.—(AP.)—The Kennecott Copper Company, one of the largest copper producing companies in the world, today declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents, placing the stock on a $3 annual basis instead of $5, the previous rate. The dividend is payable July 1 on stock of record June 12.

The action of the directors in Kennecott was forecast earlier in the day when it was announced that two of its subsidiaries, the Utah Copper Company and the Nevada Consolidated Copper Company had cut their dividend in half, Utah to an $8 annual basis, and Nevada to $1.50.

Several of the smaller producers have drastically reduced their dividends during the past month, reflecting the reduction in copper prices from 18 to 13 cents a pound.

The Anaconda Copper Mining Company, the other leading producer, has not yet reduced its rate. Kennecott, with its subsidiaries, constitutes the largest copper producing group, but Anaconda is the largest producer from mines directly owned.

National Steel Co. Forms Subsidiary

NEW YORK, June 2.—Formation of the Midwest Steel Corporation as a wholly-owned subsidiary of the National Steel Corporation was announced today. The new company's initial capital of $100,000 will be increased later to $50,000,000 or more. E. T. Weir, chairman of the board of National Steel, fills the same post in Midwest Steel, which is to be National Steel's operating subsidiary in the Chicago area. The company has acquired a 1,000-acre tract on Lake Michigan, on which a new plant will be built.

STOCK TRADING LIGHT AFTER HOLIDAY

Market Moves Wearily, Trends Unconvincing As Public Holds Aloof

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP.)—Trading was wearily resumed in the stock market today. Price trends were unconvincing, and the sections light. The three-day holiday apparently failed to restore either the courage or the zest of professional traders and the public held aloof.

Business news in addition to the Kennecott dividend included announcements of price reductions by Ford Motor which on top of recent reductions by Chrysler and Packard, tended to hold the motor shares [illegible]. Rails continued to lag far with the unsatisfactory April earnings reports out of the way. Indications are that the May reports will show scant improvement. President Storey, of the Atchison, said he saw little prospect of improvement in traffic until new grain begins to move late in June.

The most pleasing news coming to hand over the week-end was the May sales report of Montgomery Ward showing an unexpectedly large gain. The weekly mercantile reports had not been particularly encouraging during the last month. The report brought substantial buying into Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck was firm in sympathy.

ADVANCES RECORDED

Chain store issues made moderate gains in sympathy with the mail order houses and utilities were again well supported, as well as some of the industrial specialties and chemicals. Eastman Kodak rose several points and shares gaining 2 or more points included Air Reduction, Colorado Fuel, Allied Chemical, American Water Works, Spiegel May Stern, Amerada, United Cigar preferred and Ingersoll Rand. Celotex sold up a couple of points in response to dismissal of the receivership suit.

The Kennecott dividend action had been too widely expected to have much influence on the copper shares. Case dropped 12 points, apparently under bear pressure, and Worthington Pump declined several points. Foster Wheeler, Westinghouse, International Harvester and Columbia Carbon were also under pressure.

Banco-Kentucky-Caldwell Unite

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 2—(AP.)—Rogers Caldwell, president of Caldwell and Company, Nashville investment bankers, and James B. Brown, president of the Banco-Kentucky Company, announced here today that the Banco-Kentucky had acquired a half interest in Caldwell and Company and Rogers Caldwell had acquired a substantial interest in the Banco-Kentucky, creating a financial structure controlling banks and insurance companies with combined assets of $615,000,000.

The banks have total resources of $285,000,000 and deposits of $225,000,000, and the insurance companies have $216,000,000 of admitted assets and $1,840,000,000 of insurance in force.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, June 2. Cotton opened steady at a decline of 11 to 19 points under selling stimulated by relatively easy Liverpool cables and reports of generally favorable weather over the boll belt in the South. There was some buying of July against sales of new crop months, but the demand was readily supplied. By the end of the first half hour the market showed net losses of 16 to 25 points with July selling around 16.00 and the new October contract at 14.85. Cables said the Liverpool market was inactive and that trade calling had abandoned Bombay, selling at the close. Private advices reported small sales of cotton on the with yarn order lists running down rapidly. Reports from the domestic cloth markets indicated a poor business last week and these unfavorable trade reports contributed to the early decline.

The market was quiet later in the morning, with prices showing rallies of 3 or 4 points from the lowest on covering. At midday, July was selling at 16.03, and the new October contract at 14.89. A private report to 20 points a bale. Private cables was published placing the condition of the crop at 68.5, compared with 69.7 last year.

AUTO INDUSTRY GATEWAY TO PROSPERITY

Return of Good Times Hinges on Motor Trade; Large Spurt Seen Soon

By MERRILL STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, June 2. The return of prosperity hinges a good deal on the automobile industry, which has become a new balance wheel of industry.

Since the panic, the automobile industry as a whole has perhaps been better managed than ever before in its history. Manufacturers have learned restraint, and have abstained from forcing dealers to take cars in excessive quantities.

Instead, they have attuned production to consumer demand. The result of the new policy has been to cut down dealers' stocks and any small increase in consumer demand will promptly be reflected in enlarged manufacturing schedules. Unquestionably there has been some postponement of purchases on account of economic conditions. In other words, a new pent-up demand is accumulating which in time will cause a spurt in the automobile industry, and through it in business generally. The signal for returning prosperity may well come from the automobile industry.

Describing the new philosophy of management, W. B. Campbell, president of the Ford Motor Company, of Canada, who has pursued American methods, pointed out:

"We have endeavored to more nearly fit our manufacturing schedule to dealers' requirements month by month. The result is that at the moment we are opening our factory on its most economical basis and our outlook is promising, whereas a year ago we were curtailing our production at this time of the year, due to large stocks of finished products in our warehouses and in dealers' hands. The movement of Ford cars and trucks to the public so far this year is practically level with a year ago which indicates very definitely the trend toward Ford products."

CONSUMPTION DROPS

In general merchandise statistics of consumption indicate an unusually heavy setback compared with a year ago. Ordinarily there is not a very vast fluctuation in fundamental consumption from good to bad times. The published figures exaggerate the setback because they are expressed in dollars and cents not in physical units. The decline in commodity prices accounts for most of the setback, expressed in dollars. Another factor is that last year was super-normal and demand was overexploited and overstimulated, all somewhat ahead of the basic line on which business can count.

Time, however, is one the side of business recovery for consumption has not fallen off as much as production. This means that the public has been eating into accumulated stocks of merchandise and that shortages are in the marking. That is obvious enough, but what is less apparent is that the unusually heavy inventory in the hands of consumers, who bought ahead on the instalment plan, is also being gradually reduced, and in time they will have to come into the market again as more energetic buyers. Out of such gradual transitions come the impulses for a robust trade revival.

H. A. Scandrett, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad, thinks that the signal of the end of the setback will come when we know definitely that commodity prices have turned upward. He points out:

"It is my judgment that the drastic drop in railroad revenues during the first quarter of 1930 is indicative of nothing more than a temporary business recession. Just when the depression will end and business pick up is largely speculative. My view is it is largely dependent upon whether the bottom has been reached in the decline of commodity prices."

NEW YORK, June 2.—United States Pipe and Foundry Company has called for redemption July 1 all outstanding second preferred stock at $21 a share, plus accrued dividends to date of redemption, amounting to 20 cents a share.

The company has some first preferred stock in its treasury and will extend this privilege to the extent of its holdings.

Midwest to Build $50,000,000 Plant

CHICAGO, June 2.—(AP.)—Erection of a huge new steel plant on Lake Michigan, near Gary, is announced today by the Midwest Steel Corporation, an Indiana subsidiary of the National Steel Corporation. Ernest T. Weir, chairman of both companies, said the plant, to cost up to $50,000,000, will include blast furnaces, finishing mills and all latest improvements.

Thatcher's Dunkirk Plant Working Full

DUNKIRK, N. Y., June 2.—The local plant of the Thatcher Manufacturing Company, idle since November, 1929, has resumed operations at capacity. During the shut-down the glass furnace has been re-built and many other improvements made.

Orders being received will permit of capacity operations for several months.

New Director

CHARLES S. W. PACKARD

Mr. Packard, president of Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities, who has been elected to Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania board of directors, succeeding Owen J. Roberts, resigning all professional and business connections to assume his duties as Associate Justice, Supreme Court.

CARNEGIE FIRES 4TH FURNACE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 2.—The Carnegie Steel Company yesterday started the fourth active blast furnace out of six at its Ohio works, Youngstown, presaging enlarged steel output at this plant. This indicates broader range of activity by Carnegie plants which draw upon the Ohio works for steel supplies in semi-finished form.

Otherwise district steel capacity operates during the first week of June at a 65 per cent average, with growing irregularity in sheet demand. Requirements for steel pipe and tinplate are producing enlargements in the operating schedules of such departments, but declines are shown in other directions.

Of 34 blast furnaces in the Youngstown district, 19 are melting, representing 62 per cent of rated capacity. Of 51 independent open-hearth furnaces, 28 are melting, with Bessemer steel plants active at 65 per cent. Of the 19 active blast furnaces, Carnegie Steel is operating seven, including four at Youngstown, two at New Castle and one at Farrell.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube has four in action, including two at its Campbell works, one at Hubbard and one at Brier Hill. Republic Steel Corporation is likewise operating four stacks, three at Youngstown and one at Warren. Struthers Furnace, Sharon Steel Hoop, Shenango Furnace and United Iron Company are each operating a single stack.

Indicating the low rate of sheet mill activity is the operation of only 65 of 120 Valley mills this week, the lowest in several months. Sheet and Tube, Republic, Newton Steel and Carnegie are averaging 65 per cent, with Sharon Steel at 75 per cent. Truscon is averaging 75 per cent, producing fabricated steel products, while General Fireproofing Company is at 85 per cent.

The outlook for June is for an improvement in the average operating rate, as recent pipe awards are translated to the operating departments and are started through the mills.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Mary's Lamb

Mary Tamlin was a resident student at Martin College. Being a resident student means that her home was in the college town, hence she merely attended classes and lectures and lived at home.

This had its advantages. She missed the night spreads so delectable because forbidden, and a lot of the fun of dormitory life, but after class hours there were no restrictions on her goings and she didn't have to get permission to go out or rush back at 11.

Then there was the matter of boy friends.

Mary didn't have to primly talk with some friend while the social directoress sat in the room. She could go out to movies or dances or parties with them and get back reasonably late. Mary's people were reasonable about Mary's idea of a reasonable hour.

Still another advantage Mary had her own little car. She had to park it outside the campus because college rules did not permit any of the students to have cars. Mary, living in the town, was a necessary exception.

Every three or four weeks the students were permitted to have a polite little 9-to-12 Saturday night dance in the gymnasium hall. It was very strictly chaperoned. The young men who attended had to be vouched for and approved by the social directoress.

Most of the young men who attended these polite little dances came down from Narthal University or over from Thorpe Military Academy. A few young men from the town got in through friendship with some of the girls, but for the most part the Martin College girls regarded the town boys with disfavor.

Popular Youth

The exception was Duane Dennison.

Almost every girl in the college would have gurgled with joy if she could have had Duane Dennison come to one of these dances as her own especial boy friend.

Young Dennison was supposed in looks to be the answer to a maiden's prayer. And it was an open secret that he was working at the Apex Auto plant solely to learn the business from the ground up, as he expected to inherit it from his uncle. Dennison even admitted this. This uncle was president of the mammoth concern and unmarried. He was also around 65 and it looked as though the handsome Duane would, before many years, be one of the youngest captains in the automotive industry.

Mary often attended these college dances. Much of the time she brought Willie Knight, who operated the soda counter in his father's drug store.

The girls secretly made much fun of Mary and her "cheap soda-jerker boy friend." But they liked to dance with Willie. Willie knew all the steps as well as all the holds and all the amusing lines.

Twice Mary brought Duane Dennison over to the dances. This made her popular with the girls. Mary would have the first and last dance with him and generously give him up to the others for the remainder of the dances.

"Aren't you terribly thrilled?" Sue Manton asked Mary the first time she brought Duane.

"Not a thrill—if you mean about Dee Dennison," Mary truthfully confessed.

"She's just bluffing," Sue told Jean Currier. "She doesn't want to let on. The chances are that Duane Dennison fell down on a real date some place and so, having nothing better to do, got Mary to bring him over."

Jean agreed.

Winona Sawyer asked Mary the same thing. Winona was Mary's closest friend in the school.

"Not a thrill. Win—not a one. I went to school with him. He was a couple classes higher. I can tell you that he has always been a swell-headed, disagreeable sort until lately, when he seemed to get wise to himself."

"But think how wonderful he is—and how wealthy he will be, Mary!"

"You may have him," Mary told her.

On the second time that Mary brought him several of her friends told her that she was a sly little minx.

Prefers Willie

"You just pretend, Mary," one of them declared. "You have the advantage over us and some sweet day you'll just march him up to a minister—I know."

But she didn't know.

"I'd rather take Willie Knight—he's heaps of fun, and can he say bright things to laugh at, and can he dance? Oh!"

"Yes, you would!"

Sue Manton made a big play for young Dennison the second time Mary brought him.

Sue seemed to have fair success. Mary saw her at a picture show with him a week later, and in class next day Sue seemed to be quite serious.

"I hope you aren't going to be sore because Duane has picked me out, Mary."

"Picked you out of what?" Mary asked, with a grave face.

"Oh, my dear, please don't be heartbroken over it—but Duane is crazy about me."

"Is that the cause?"

Sue didn't get that one. She spread word that Mary Tamlin was heartbroken and furious because she, Sue, had stolen Duane Dennison away from her.

Mary heard of it. Before a crowd of girls Mary asked Sue's advice about poisons.

"I've got to take poison," she said, "because you have stolen Dee Dennison away from me. What do you advise?"

"Don't be silly — there are plenty of other nice young men, Mary."

It was around this time that Harvey Edwards came to the town. He went to work in the steel foundry of the Apex Auto plant. Willie Knight introduced him to Mary one evening at the drug store.

Mary thought he was a pleasant young man, but rather quiet.

Harvey thought that Mary Tamlin was perfectly wonderful. He didn't say so to anyone, but he didn't have to. His expression, his eyes, the way he hung around her on every possible occasion proclaimed that.

On Saturday afternoons at the field hockey games Harvey was trailing Mary almost constantly.

Several times he drove behind her to school in the morning just to get to say a word to her.

"You shouldn't, Harvey. You ought to be in the foundry. You mustn't neglect your work," Mary scolded.

Falls in Love

"I'm out of the foundry. I moved into the design department," Harvey told her.

The girls at the college had great sport over it. They called Harvey Edwards "Mary's lamb."

They couldn't very well call him a "little" lamb because he wasn't little at all, but he certainly did follow her around.

Mary took him to a college dance. He did dance twice with Winona because Mary asked him to do so, but he did his best to have all the other dances with Mary.

Gradually it dawned upon Mary that she had fallen in love with quiet Harvey Edwards.

She hoped she would get over it, at first. Harvey was just a laborer at the Apex Auto plant. She would have done better if she had encouraged Duane Dennison; only she couldn't ever care for Dennison in that way.

Dennison asked her to take him over to one of the dances.

"Sorry, but I've asked Mr. Edwards, Dee," Mary explained.

"Stand him up, Babe—take me along!"

"Wouldn't be right."

"But he's nobody—just one of the gang of cattle that work in uncle's plant."

"I like him," and with that Mary walked away.

"We'll have this dance, Mary, old girl," Dennison said.

"Pardon me, this is my dance," Harvey replied.

"Don't act out of your character, fellow. You better get going. You need sleep to be on the job," Dennison said.

"Go sell your papers, Dee. I'm dancing with Harvey," Mary said softly. She danced away with Harvey.

She tried to make Dennison snap out of it, but he seemed in an ugly mood.

Again he stepped in and danced away with Mary this time. Harvey Edwards couldn't prevent it without making a scene.

"I'll put that sap in his place. I'll have him fired," Dennison assured Mary.

"If you do I'll never speak to you," Mary exclaimed.

Sue and some others who had seen Dennison dance away with Mary began to joke her about the meekness of her sad lamb.

At midnight Harvey went out to Mary's car. She had brought him in her car. So far as she knew, he had none. Dennison followed them. Sue had told him how the girls had called Harvey Edward's Mary's "lamb."

Harvey Hits Dee

"Listen, lamb," Dennison said, "if you don't want to lose your job in my uncle's plant you fade away—get me?"

"I will see you after I ride home with Miss Tamlin, Dennison," Harvey said.

"You'll do nothing of the sort, you damn lamb. You'll fade away right now, you—"

Harvey turned slowly and suddenly his hand shot out. It caught Dennison's nose and held on. Harvey twisted. Dennison bellowed. He fell to his knees. Harvey yanked him up and spun him around. Harvey kicked him three times down the drive. Dennison outdistanced him then.

Mary was crying.

"Look here, Mary. I'm sorry—mighty sorry. I didn't know you cared for Dennison like that," Harvey said.

"Dee Dennison? I loathe him—I always did—but he'll get his uncle to fire you, Harvey—and all over me—and—and——"

"Forget it, sweetheart."

"But your position—and you are so anxious to learn—and now you'll lose it. Dennison is mean like that; he always has been mean. When he inherits the factory he is going to be mean to everyone, Harvey, and I'm sorry——"

Harvey kissed Mary Tamlin.

"Mary, your lamb wants to follow you always, everywhere. He wants to marry you—he's going to marry you!"

"Yes, Harvey dear. I'm sure there are other factories where you can learn the business."

"Would you care if I had Dennison fired?"

"What do you mean, Harvey?"

"Well, you see my father was chairman of the board of directors because he controlled the stock in the Apex company, and when he left it all to me they suggested that I come on and learn the business thoroughly. It's a good idea. I'm going to be head of the company in a few years."

WHY PITTSBURGH IS GREAT
Can Handle More Tonnage Than Any Other Railroad Center

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

We Need an American Administration. Bring Back Coolidge and Americanism, Coolidge and Patriotism, Coolidge and Confidence

Testimony taken at the hearings on the London naval treaty before the Committees on Foreign Relations and Naval Affairs shows conclusively that the traditional American position which President Coolidge upheld at Geneva was surrendered by President Hoover at London.

As a result, the British and the Japanese got from President Hoover at London the sort of treaty which President Coolidge refused to give them at Geneva.

In view of this disclosure the Committee on Foreign Relations must examine all the exchanges leading up to and during the Geneva conference as well as those bearing on the London conference if the work of the two conferences is to be intelligently compared.

It is not only the right of that committee to examine all these exchanges, but it is the bounden duty of the committee to demand them — the Geneva as well as the London correspondence—before it undertakes to advise the Senate regarding its disposition of the London treaty.

Moreover, a comparison of the way in which President Coolidge championed the cause of his own country at Geneva and of the instructions which he gave to the delegates that he sent there, with the course of the American delegation at London and the instructions under which they acted, ought to be informing, perhaps inspiring, to senators in general and in particular to those senators who have the honor to hold membership on "The Great Committee of the Senate."

President Coolidge had his reasons for preferring the advice and counsel of the highest American naval authorities in regard to the naval needs of this country to the advice and counsel of British and Japanese naval authorities.

President Coolidge had his reasons for refusing to abandon the principle of limitation by categories of ships and the 5-5-3 ratio agreed to by the United States, Great Britain and Japan at the Washington conference.

President Coolidge had his reasons for refusing to permit the British to dictate to the United States the kind of cruisers this country should build to protect American commerce and to defend American territory.

President Coolidge had his reasons for insisting that the primary function of the American Navy, which, since the days of President Washington, has been the protection of American sea-borne commerce, should not be changed.

President Coolidge had his reasons for refusing to disregard the advice and counsel and warnings and recommendations in regard to naval policy and technical matters of the highest American naval authorities.

And the Committee on Foreign Relations should inform itself of the reasons which President Coolidge had for pursuing the course he did at Geneva in order that it may advise the Senate wisely regarding the reasons which President Hoover may offer for making at London the surrender which President Coolidge refused to make at Geneva.

Let the Committee on Foreign Relations demand the Geneva papers as well as the London papers before it presumes to advise the Senate whether the cardinal principles of American naval policy since the days of Washington should be maintained or abandoned.

Only by a careful comparison of the Geneva papers with the London papers can Senator Borah and his committee qualify themselves to advise the Senate whether President Coolidge was right when he vigorously upheld the American position at Geneva or whether President Hoover was right when he surrendered the American position at London without a struggle.

State Airplane Jaunt Points the Way for Us

A novel expedition is the flight of a group of airplanes over the state on a Good Will tour. Sponsored by the Aero Clubs of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, the flyers, who departed from Rogers Field, Pittsburgh, in 19 airplanes, will have visited 15 to 20 cities in all parts of the state before arriving at Bettis Field late this week.

The purpose of the trip is to demonstrate the practicability of flying in every part of Pennsylvania and to extend public knowledge of the possibilities of aerial transportation. Various aeronautical corporations are participating in the trip in which the pilots are handling well-known makes of airships.

We have had good will and trade extension tours sponsored by business men for years. Traveling by railroad, the ambassadors have spread the spirit of friendship. The same message, plus an introduction to "air-mindedness," now is borne along on wings. These flyers are showing us the way. How soon we shall follow is hard to forecast. Very likely it will be sooner than most of us think.

She Wrecked the Bar

The Soft Drinks Were Not Soft Enough.

MRS. MAUDE WILSON, MILITANT KANSAS CITY PROHIBITIONIST.

This picture shows that you may HAVE prohibition, and yet NOT have prohibition.

The lady leaning on the bar is Mrs. Maude Wilson, of Kansas City. The place in which she stands is, theoretically, a "soft drink" parlor.

It ceased to do business after Mrs. Wilson arrived with an ax, breaking doors, smashing fixtures.

She told the judge that the soft drink parlor had "sold 'hooch' to her husband and daughter."

This is an interesting change from the old days of Carrie Nation, who smashed the old-fashioned saloon.

Little did that energetic lady of days gone by imagine that prohibition would come, and change soft drink parlors into whisky selling bars, and, in one American city alone, New York, establish more than 40,000 whisky selling speakeasies to take the place of 15,000 or 16,000 saloons.

The saloon was bad enough; wets and drys alike hope that will never come back.

But some prohibition "improvements" are a little worse than the saloon ever was.

The old saloon would have sold whisky to Mrs. Wilson's husband, but it wouldn't have sold it to her daughter, because the daughter would not have gone to a saloon.

The old kind of saloon and the old kind of whisky sent hundreds to their graves, but did not send high school girls and boys to parties carrying bottles of poisonous whisky with them.

Not all changes are for the better.

Gate Crasher Halted

Don't rush and push at such a rate,
You cannot hope to crash the gate,
You'll have to take your time and show
Your full credentials as you go.

May bring another painful smack,
A pact that barges in that way
Had best return another day.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

"With us it is different, because half of us must live within the other half or perish. Parasites upon the rest, levying a daily toll of nutriment upon their hosts, they are yet in some measure the arbiters of the destiny of those within whom they dwell.

"At the moment of union of two gametes is decided the character of another zygote, as well as the nature of the population of gametes which must make its home within him.

"The union once effected, the inevitable sequence takes its course, and H. G. Wells whether it be good or whether it be evil, we, the zygotes, have no longer power to alter it."

Section Five.
Some Evasions and Replacements of Sexuality.

In most of the higher animals, we have noted, reproduction becomes inseparably entangled with sex. But Nature is a tricky worker; as living things have evolved she has vacillated and often enough she has changed her mind and gone back on her previous acts.

One or two animals are curious in that they have returned to sexless methods of reproduction; evolved from purely sexual stocks they have found ways of dodging the entanglement.

In many species there exist females which produce eggs as if for sexual reproduction, but nevertheless dispense with males. The eggs develop without fusion with a sperm; the offspring are fatherless.

This "virgin reproduction" or Parthenogenesis is found in a number of organisms, such as green-fly, water-fleas, rotifers and occasionally flowering plants. From one point of view it is like spore-production, since a single cell is detached and grows into a new organism. But it is different in its origin.

Spore-production is among the main original methods of reproduction. Parthenogenesis is secondarily simple, having arisen from true sexual reproduction by dispensing with the need for spermatozoa and with the male that bears them.

The spore-producing fern or fungus is a sexual, a neuter creature; but the parthenogenetic green fly or rotifer is on the other hand definitely a female, even though she lacks a mate.

Moreover, the human experimenter has found ways of getting round the need for sexual fusion. One of the most striking discoveries of modern biology was that of Jacques Loeb in 1899, that eggs which normally needed to be fertilized could be made to develop by substituting some man-devised treatment for the natural stimulus of the sperm.

In other words, he caused artificial parthenogenesis. Artificial parthenogenhesis was first produced by chemical treatment of sea-urchin eggs; later it was found that almost any eggs which are easily accessible to the experimenter by being laid into the water—including those of sea-urchins, starfish, worms, snails and even frogs—can be made to develop unfertilized; and that the fatherless young thus produced can be as healthy as those arising in the ordinary course of Nature—fatherless starfish have been reared to the adult stage.

The agencies needed to lift the ban from the unfertilized egg and make it develop differ from animal to animal. Heat or shaking will do in the starfish, while pricking with a needle dipped in blood (a recipe reminiscent of magic!) is needed for frogs.

In mammals the ovum is inaccessible to the experimenter, so that we do not know whether artificial parthenogenesis is possible. There is no reason to suppose that it is not.

Surgery and experimental technique are advancing rapidly, so probably we shall find out very soon.

From these strange facts an important point emerges. It is that a spermatozoon does two things to the egg-cell when it fertilizes it.

First of all it activates the egg cell and makes development possible; this is the step that Loeb and his followers can imitate. Secondly, it, or part of it, blends physically with the egg, contributing material from another stock and so, as we shall learn, affording a basis for father-to-child heredity.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Ever see a rabbit ducking into its burrow, trying to escape some panting pup? That's what some folk do with sorrow and trouble. Duck into it as though it were a burrow—hide themselves in it to escape that panting pup, Reality.

You've seen it done scores of times. Perhaps you've done it yourself. I have! Grief comes. Any one of the hundred forms of grief. The death of some loved one. The loss of a fine job. An unhappy love affair. Sickness. Sudden shock or shame. Remorse over some big blunder. And the thing gets us down—

Of course, we know we should jump up and tackle life again. But it's so terribly hard. Our hearts have been broken. Our courage has been shaken. Our egotism has been terribly hurt. We're tired and frightened and sad—and mad! We don't want to face life again, any more than the rabbit wants to face that pup. We want to get away from life—hide, be safe.

Maybe we've always felt that way, secretly. Perhaps we have never been very keen on facing life. Naturally, we want all the regular rewards out of life.

We want to be admired, we want to succeed. But we dread to struggle. And we certainly hate hard work. So we've always had a sneaking desire to duck Reality. But we never had a chance to duck, decently. People expected us to fight. They'd have blamed us or ridiculed us if we had quit. We couldn't stand that. But, now, at last our chance has come. We can quit without being blamed or becoming unpopular. We're in trouble and everyone is sorry for people in trouble. Every one will make excuses for us if we quit trying—and coddle us. Nothing could be nicer for our egotism, our laziness and cowardice.

We don't reason it out that way. But we feel it out that way—and we seize the chance. Instead of running away from trouble, we hide ourselves in it. Instead of fighting defeat, we make an alibi of it—a profession of it. We become defeatists. And the world no longer knows us as regular, active citizens. It knows us as "Poor old Ed, who lost his job" or "Poor dear Nelly, who lost her little girl" or "Those poor Smiths, who had that frightful experience."

Well, defeatism is a great racket for cowards and egotists—

Just as burrows are a great racket for frightened rabbits.

But the racket doesn't last.

Rabbits speedily sicken if they stay in burrows too much. So do humans. The darkness of a burrow, however safe, is a very poor exchange for the sunshine and hazard of the open air. And the safety and indolence of defeatism in contemptible exchange for the glorious challenge of Reality.

Don't be a defeatist. Don't duck and hide from Reality. Crawl out of that grave. Scramble up from that beating. Stiffen your chin—clench your fists—face life! Dare that old panting pup of Reality to come on and do his darndest!

INDOOR SPORTS

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Nobody seems to know why perjury and bribery are our leading indoor sports. Every day you see by the papers that another prominent citizen has followed the path of glory that leads to getting arrested for picking a kangaroo's pouch.

"Bugs" Baer

You cannot expect noise commissions to stop the rackets. It is the general consensus of guesses that malfeasance in office starts in the corridor.

Bootlegging and its allied industries have placed corpulent chunks of money in the hands of the mobs. The neighbor's children need protection and will pay for it as cheerfully as a flivver shakes its fenders.

The lobbyists who fester the halls of administration and justice are not there for Uncle Googly's hammock stories. And even when a man has sworn to be the servant of the people you cannot blame him for wanting Thursday night out.

Some very prominent men have been poked in the eye by the careless finger of suspicion. In many cases the jury has come back with the Scotch verdict of soda on the side.

In other and more rare instances the servant of the people has been weighed in the balance and found to be too heavy in the pockets.

But there has been too few convictions and too many loopholes in the crullers. If we had grown all the wool they tried to pull over our eyes we would be all the sheep in Australia.

So many rumors and so little verification still makes you as suspicious as you would be of a bank where the cashier keeps his hat on all the time.

We know it seems all right in manner and appearance. But there is nothing in the world that looks squarer than loaded dice.

The reason why we have wired ourself for this tremendous squawk is that the wrong boys are getting it.

When does our side come to the bat?

Bribery seems to be an all-year round sport and can be played either in swallow-tails or golf clothes. We have an inkling on what the well-dressed perjurer will wear this summer and you can expect to find us up in the king row when the ugly charges are making faces at each other.

If we can grab a million we don't even want a friend on the jury. We'll make friends with 'em during the trial.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 2.—Diary of a modern Pepys: A letter from Billy B, Van, the minstrel, who is living in the New Hampshire pines and happier, too, than ever before. Also a cable from South Africa from a man I do not recall asking a ticket home. This day my wife bought for us permanent living quarters at 290 Park avenue.

With my mother-in-law to drive to Greenwich, Conn., and the Hutchison River road one of singular beauty. And we stopped under a leafy maple and ate sugar cookies and drank milk from a thermos. So home and met again Pat O'Brien, who wrote that red corpuscled anonymous volume "Wine, Women and War."

In the evening to a dinner and talked with Robert P. Scripps, the publisher, about this, that and the other and also to Tom White and Dave Town. And on my way home could kick myself for always introducing people at parties who were either graduated together or knew each other all their lives.

Some one explain this: On my desk was a phone message to call a gentleman at Wickersham 5,000 about an important matter. He did want to discuss something of importance, but had not communicated with me in any way, knowing about it himself just two minutes before I telephoned. The only other person concerned was in India. And I'm beginning to look under tables and chairs.

* * *

Only two New York theaters have rows lettered I, the reason being its similarity to J. In most theaters, too, Row A has been abolished to make room for an orchestra pit.

One of the fastest tap dancers on Broadway is actually named Ginger Pepper Rogers although Pepper is dropped in programs. Incidentally she is a Texas red head who never had a dancing lesson.

Indeed, the most agile of the feather-footed guild was not "college trained." Illustrious examples—who began as youngsters dancing along the sidewalks—are George White, Jack Donahue, James Barton, Frisco, Will Mahoney and innumerable other headliners.

The man who has elevated more dancers and singers to stardom than any other cannot carry a tune or do the simplest step. He is the lavender shirted and pouty Flo Ziegfeld.

In a tea room the other afternoon there arrived a stalwart six footer, a trifle embarrassed among fashionable flappers and oily-haired cuff shooters. He wore a buff two gallon hat, high-heeled Texas star boots with glittering spurs and a tobacco tag dangled from his shirt pocket. He accepted tea but did not taste it. The big room was buzzing with conversation before he entered but was painfully silent until he left. For some reason a group of gossip-mongering and tea drinking New Yorkers became sudde ly and miserably self conscious.
